TRANSIT DEPARTMENT REPORTS ON GOVERNOR SQUARE AND TUNNEL WORK.

His Honor the Mayor is in receipt of the following communication from Chairman Thomas F. Sullivan of the Transit Department:

DEAR SIR,—On the construction of the extension of the Boylston Street Subway at Governor square, there is now employed a labor force in excess of two hundred men.

The department has proceeded with the work of excavation and has increased the number of shafts, four having been started during the past month. In all the shafts considerable water has been encountered at a grade about twelve feet below the street surface. In one of the shafts considerable hydrogen sulphide gas has been found at a depth of from thirty to forty feet and an electric-driven exhaust fan is being installed to take care of this situation.

There are six electric derricks, a 6-inch and a 4-inch centrifugal pump, four diaphragm pumps and four portable air compressors in operation. The work of setting up a stationary air compressor to supply air for the entire work has progressed and is practically completed.

On the traffic tunnel property takings have been made on the Boston side, and in practically three quarters of such takings settlements have been made or are in process of adjustment.

The engineering division has been engaged on survey work and on the preparation of notes on condition of buildings both on the Boston and East Boston sides, and in the main office has been engaged on detailed plans for both the Boylston Street Subway extension and the traffic tunnel.

Number of employees on July 1, 1930, 131.

Number of employees on September 1, 1930, 363.

PRAISES AND DISTRIBUTES MAYOR'S BROCHURE ON LABOR.

Mayor Curley, on September 4, received the following communication from Mr. Patrick J. King, Financial Secretary, International Association of Machinists, Boston Lodge No. 264, Boston, Mass.:

I have read with interest your timely booklet entitled, "The Vanishing Job." It is packed solidly with facts relating to dangers and hardships following in the wake of the changing conditions within industry, especially as they affect the worker and his family.

It is a book that would repay every man to read, whether he is an employer or an employee. As citizens of this state we must study and confront the conditions that affect our welfare. The times are too serious and can no longer be ignored or colored with false optimism. Only with an intelligent understanding of the causes can we assist such agencies as are earnestly working for their amelioration.

I could use to good advantage a number of these booklets, if they could be spared, among those who I know will be interested, and would be willing to call for them at the City Hall or any other department you might name.

I am hoping that you can favor me in this request, to some extent, and I take pleasure in expressing my best wishes for your success in all your plans for making Old Boston the city of our home and pride."

PATRICK J. KING.

LAW DEPARTMENT FOLLOWS MAYOR CURLEY'S ADVICE.

Mayor Curley, on September 4, received the following communication from Samuel Silverman, Corporation Counsel, City of Boston:

DEAR SIR,—Following your example of making certain purchases of necessities in order to help stimulate business, I beg to advise you that every member of this department has this day made a purchase of some necessity which could have been deferred, but which was made today in order to follow your example of placing money in circulation and thereby stimulating business.

SEEKS TO AID FORMER VETERANS.

His Honor the Mayor is in receipt of the following communication:

SHERBURNE, POWERS & NEEDHAM, 75 FEDERAL STREET,
BOSTON, MASS.

September 3, 1930.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston.

MY DEAR MAYOR CURLEY,—I am familiar with your general attitude in rendering assistance, both to former veterans and the public in general. For that reason I am inviting your attention to the National Sailors' Home at Wollaston, Mass. This institution was created as a home for men who have served in the navy and are unable to support themselves because of physical disability.

There are at the present time a few vacancies in this home. The requirements for admission to this home are merely that the applicant have honorable service in the navy at some time, regardless of whether it is of any specific war, or during peace time. The home has ample funds and the trustees make no requests for public contributions.

There may be in some of the different institutions conducted by the city, or there may be persons making application to the various departments under your jurisdiction, persons who would be entitled to the benefit of this home. If so, we would like to render that assistance to them if brought to our attention.

Will you be good enough to notify the various departments under your jurisdiction to whom application for relief may be made, advising them if there appears for home care any person who has had honorable service in the navy, that they advise these people to make application to Richard Flynn, Commissioner of State Aid and Pensions, State House, Boston, who is the agent for admission to this home. If any of your departments desire further information, they can obtain the same from me or from the superintendent at the home in Wollaston.

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR C. SULLIVAN.

MAYOR CURLEY WILLING TO ABIDE BY DEMOCRATIC STATE COMMITTEE.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 10, issued the following statement:

I have sufficient confidence in the Democratic State Committee to abide by any judgment they may arrive at with reference to a standard bearer for the office of Governor upon the Democratic ticket.

I have nothing but profound sympathy for the two young men at present candidates for the Gubernatorial nomination, Messrs. Ely and Cummings. My sole concern is the well-being and the happiness of the great mass of the people of America whose misfortune and miseries during the past year may be traced to the failure of governmental agencies to adopt an economic program that would serve as a safeguard to the industrial depression that has obtained in America during the past ten months, notwithstanding the fact that money has been in more abundant supply than at any previous time in the history of America.

There has never been a time since 1861, with few exceptions, that the Republican Party has not been supreme in its control both nationally and in state. This control at times has not been limited; it has been absolute in all three branches of government, executive, legislative and judicial, and the failure of the Republican Party to enact an economic program that would serve as a protection to the workers places squarely upon the Republican Party, both nationally and in state, the full responsibility for the present industrial depression.

At a time like the present when millions of persons are without employment in America, and in our own Commonwealth the number approximates 200,000, there is no way to justify the selection of men because of amiability and affability, provided these are the only two qualities they possess.

In a crisis like the present it is the duty of all persons, regardless of party, who are interested in providing some measure of relief for the citizenship of the state, to select the ablest and most capable man in the party. There is no dearth of available timber of a high type and when such timber is both available and necessary we should not resort to the shaving heap.

SETTLEMENTS FOR EAST BOSTON TUNNEL LAND DAMAGES.

Mayor Curley, on September 6, issued the following statement:

The Transit Department has actually settled on the Boston site of the East Boston Traffic Tunnel $1,782,630 worth of land damage cases. The department has tentatively settled $545,050 worth of claims. The owners of property in the amount of $679,140 have not been heard from. To summarize the actual tentative settlement $2,327,680, and the amount of money involved where the owners of the property have not been heard from is $804,140, in other words tentative settlements have already been made for 74 per cent of the property taken on the Boston side of the tunnel.

The payment of taxes by the Transit Department was made to the City of Boston on Wednesday, September 3, in the amount of $45,201.44, for the property taken by the Transit Department in connection with the East Boston Tunnel construction.

MAYOR CURLEY GETS PLEDGE OF SUPPORT FROM WARD 20 DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 10, received the following communication from Frank L. Jacobs, President of the Ward 20 Democratic Club:

DEAR MR. MAYOR, The Ward 20 Democratic Club of Boston, having endorsed the candidacy of Hon. John F. Fitzgerald for Governor of Massachusetts, and having worked unceasingly in his behalf throughout the district, refuse to consider seriously his withdrawal from the contest and will continue to advocate his nomination even more vigorously now that he is confined to his bed.

It is now, and has been from the beginning of this contest, unnecessary for Mr. Fitzgerald to overtax himself by any arduous campaign on his own part.

The fact that he is the logical candidate of Massachusetts Democracy from the standpoint of experience in city, state and national politics, and having the legion of friends and workers that he has in every city and town in the state makes his nomination only a matter of by what plurality he will win.

It is becoming more apparent as each day passes in this contest that two distinct elements are at work in an effort to disrupt the Massachusetts Democracy.

First, the "Power Trust" has its own particular candidate in the field with its money bags open to buy the nomination and, secondly, the same disgruntled and discredited coterie of villifiers and slanderers who have preyed upon candidates of both parties in the past are assiduously working to break the united front that the Democratic Party has shown for Honorable John F. Fitzgerald for Governor.

Therefore, the Ward Twenty Democratic Club of Boston urges all true Democrats throughout the state to continue to work and vote to nominate Honorable John F. Fitzgerald for Governor of Massachusetts on Tuesday, September 16 next.

A united Democracy behind Honorable John F. Fitzgerald in this contest will mean the defeat of the Republican Party at the polls this year and the regeneration of Massachusetts.

Very truly yours,

WARD TWENTY DEMOCRATIC CLUB OF BOSTON,

FRANK J. JACOBS, President.

September 9, 1930.

ST. LOUIS POSTERS TO ADVERTISE BOSTON.

Mayor Curley, on September 5, stated that the Advisory Committee on Advertising of the City of Boston Commercial, Industrial and Publicity Bureau, had been able to conclude an arrangement with the Al Fresco Advertising Company of St. Louis, Mo., under which 100-24 sheet posters, calling attention to the City of Boston's Tercentenary activities, would be on display in that city for at least one month, without charge to the City of Boston.

The Mayor likewise stated that these posters, which were produced by a local concern, are now on their way to St. Louis and will be posted there within the next ten days and should prove very useful in interesting people of that city in the Tercentenary activities here.

Patrolman Daniel A. Patrolman Wholey demonstrated his fearlessness by entering a dark cellar through a cellar window, which he had discovered open, and there discovered the felon who ran to another window and forced his way out and ran for some distance, not surrendering until the officer discharged his revolver into the air.

General Order No. 94.

It has been called to my attention that officers and employees of this department have in the past endeavored to obtain financial assistance from the City of Boston Employees' Credit Union, but for some reason or other they were not permitted to do so.

The City of Boston Employees' Credit Union has, at my solicitation, agreed to admit to membership officers and employees of this department and will be glad to render financial assistance to such officers and employees as are worthy of and entitled to consideration. This credit union was established for the sole purpose of promoting thrift among its members by permitting the accumulations of their savings in small amounts, and by loan to its members for such purpose which promises to be of benefit to the borrower, small loans not exceeding in the aggregate $250, to be repaid by weekly installments over a period of one year, and for which a moderate rate of interest is charged.

Any employee of this department who is desirous of obtaining a loan in the future may make use of this credit union and such employees and officers who in the past have found it necessary to resort to money lenders and have found it impossible to free themselves from their present obligations should make application to the credit union, which in cases of reliable officers and employees, will be glad to refinance these loans.

Since the credit union requires each application to be approved by the captain of the division, captains are hereby authorized to make such approval of applications where, in their judgment and discretion, the employee or officer requires relief and should be afforded the same by the credit union. Captains shall give their approval only after complete satisfaction as to the full worthiness of the applicant. Captains will inform officers of their respective divisions that applications for loans must be made upon blanks furnished for that purpose, and which may be obtained at the office of the City of Boston Employees' Credit Union, Room 42, City Hall.

The credit union, by its rules, requires an assignment of wages of all those who make loans from it. This assignment plus the honesty of the applicant is the only security that the credit union has. In order that such assignment of wages may be made by officers and employees of this department, it is hereby ordered that section 9 of Rule 37 be, and it hereby is, amended by adding at the end of the said section the following:

but assignments of pay made to the City of Boston Employees' Credit Union for the purpose of securing loans made by it are hereby authorized.

so that said section, as amended, reads as follows:

9. No police officer or employee shall sell or assign his pay, or give power of attorney for the collections thereof, except by permission of the Commissioner, but assignments of pay made to the City of Boston Employees' Credit Union for the purpose of securing loans made by it are hereby authorized.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

BOSTON'S 300TH BIRTHDAY PARTY MOST MEMORABLE SPECTACLE STAGED SINCE DAYS OF ANCIENT ROME AND GREECE — DISTINGUISHED CITIZENS OF MANY COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD COME AT BIDDING OF MAYOR CURLEY AND CITIZENS TO SHARE IN STUPENDOUS EVENT — MILLIONS SHARE IN FETE.

BOSTON'S SIXTH HEALTH UNIT ERECTED IN WEST END, DEDICATED AS OPENING EVENT OF TERCENTENARY OF CITY'S FOUNDING.

Boston's birthday party is over. The memory of the event, however, will linger in the minds of millions who shared in it as long as life shall last. And whenever, as well as wherever, the event shall be discussed, the name of Mayor James M. Curley will be mentioned in praise whether mention be made in song or narrative. For it was due to his vision, due to his enthusiastic leadership, thought and planning that Boston today looks back with pride on the celebration of her three hundredth natal occasion.

That the event might be of the world-wide significance that attaches to it the hands of the Old World joined with the New in relinking friendship, in renewing good will, and in pledging anew faith in the eternal and everlasting goodness of men, the beneficence of God and the fellowship of soul. As far back as the early part of his second administration as Mayor of Boston, Mayor James M. Curley began to look forward to this day and to make plans for the proper and fitting celebration. That planning has been fulfilled and vision verified is attested on every hand by the pride that shows in the faces of his fellow citizens and the satisfaction that fills every heart with the knowledge that Boston lived up to her possibilities, and added new laurels to her reputation for doing things in a fitting manner.

Not in recorded history since the days of ancient Rome has there ever been a linking of hands across seas and over deserts for congratulations upon achievement and progress as has been the case during this Tercentenary celebration of the founding of Boston. Deeply cognizant of the importance of Boston's growth and influence upon world events, Mayor Curley, that this three hundredth event might be properly commemorated, called to the gates of the city guests from every known quarter of the world. In addition to the representatives of the great nations and cities and states that assembled at his bidding, there came to Boston, to partake of her hospitality and to share in her party, citizens of lesser fame, from the islands of the sea and the continents of the world. (Continued on page 1536.)

"O Boston, fair City enthroned like a radiant queen.

From thy hills looking down on the ship-teeming plain of the ocean,
May thy future be bright, thy skies beam with light all serene,
Ensured by thy sons' and thy daughters' unselfish devotion!"

NATHAN HASKELL DOLE.

MAYOR CURLEY LAUDS THE PRINTING TRADE IN ADDRESS AT BANQUET TO HIS WORSHIP, REUBEN SALTER, AT ANNIVERSARY DINNER.

Speaking at the dinner tendered by Typographical Union, No. 13, to His Worship, Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, England, at the Hotel Statler on September 15, Mayor Curley said in part as follows:

Among the many monuments erected by a grateful people to sons who have laid the future under tribute by their services not only to their native city but to humanity, none in the City of Boston is cherished with greater affection than that which in the middle fifties the City of Boston set up in the area in front of her City Hall to the memory of Benjamin Franklin, a printer's runaway boy, and on one of the four sides of the memorial is cast in bronze a representation of Franklin at work at a printing press. Fitting it is that this statue should stand on School street, for the scientist, philosopher and statesman seems to be looking with affection on the site of the old school which he attended for two years, the Boston Latin School, and which gave him the only formal education which in a life of eighty-four years he received, and yet think of the wonderful structure of service which he raised on this small foundation!

I think, Your Worship, that among all the exercises which we are privileged to have you attend in this Boston Week none is more fitting than this which you are enjoying here tonight in the company of your fellow printers. I have cast my eyes over the range of the arts and sciences in order that I might descry if possible that one which has done the greatest service to humanity and I can think of none that begins to compare in service to humanity in the improvement of man's position upon the earth and the relationship existing among the various peoples of the earth than the art of printing which has been so well called "The art preservative of all arts."

DECLINE OF LEARNING.

Among the English the name which stands highest in the art of printing is William Caxton who printed the first English book, about the year 1474, and whose name is known and honored wherever the English language is spoken. Would you know what the art of printing has meant to civilization? Does not the world know the effects of the want of it in ancient Greece and Rome, and do we not in ancient history discover the first rudiments of its fundamentals, and who is there who is not aware of the passage in Cicero which nearly approaches a description of it. The need for such a mechanical instrumentality has been filled from the earliest times and there are some who say that it was the art in a crude form which was known even among the Chinese. Who is there who is not aware of the decline of learning in the middle ages when all the learning in Europe was confined almost exclusively to one little island, the outpost of Europe, the Green Isle. The Irish monks who were afflicted with a fine frenzy for knowledge carried their learning to every country on the continent of Europe, then when the art of printing became a realization, the Renaissance broke forth in the lands. The universities became the goal of an untold number of pilgrimages of young and old anxious to increase their fund of knowledge and the Bible, the common possession of mankind, through the instrumentality of the church and the art of printing, carried its sweet message of comfort to all mankind. Indeed it may be said that the history of the art of printing is a summary of modern civilization. Where would the arts and the trades and the sciences be without it, and the civilization which we are enjoying today would, without the art of printing, be so little advanced that the year 1930 might be named among the dark ages.

Has civilization forgotten its debt to the printing press? Oh, no. Only a short time ago the Congress of the United States appropriated at the suggestion of the librarian of Congress more than one million dollars for the purchase of the Bible printed by Gutenberg, who is commonly agreed upon as the inventor of printing, and this book is now the precious possession of the United States of America. The invention so far as we are able to figure goes back to the middle of the 15th century. The press seemed at that time to be adequate for all the needs of people and yet as we trace the advances made in the art of printing down to the present day we marvel at the wonderful service that it has been in bringing about the material advancement in which the world rejoices today.

Now what effect has association with this art had on the printers themselves? It has, as it seems to me, lifted them higher in the intellectual scale among trades than any other class of artisans, and a general dissatisfaction among them on account of wages or working conditions would do more to cripple humanity than the cessation from work of any other body of tradesmen. At the time of the French Revolution the printers of Paris combined not to work and as part of their plan to bring about better conditions destroyed the printing presses. These men crowded down by the power of capital as represented in the nobles knew what they were doing. It was as if in our modern civilization the locomotive engineers and trainmen were to call a general strike and thus cripple the business not only of the country but of the world. At the time when the Turks were overrunning Europe and Mahomet the Second had struck down the last Christian emperor, Gutenberg and his associates, the Strasbourg printers, as someone has well said, aimed a deadly blow at the Turk's code of barbarism and all the hosts of political darkness throughout the world, the mind of the world rallied under the living artillery of the press and came off victorious. From the day that Gutenberg printed his Bible and gave it to the world, the civilized world is indebted to the art of printing for the fact that no dark ages, so called, can ever come again, that the vandal will never again appear upon the face of the earth and all this is due to enlightened, conscientious, independent press. I have been thinking perhaps in these remarks that I have made here tonight I might be said to be bringing "Coals to Newcastle," that I might be telling you only what you know, but when an art is so universal as is the art of printing it becomes so obvious and, of course, that we are apt to forget its history and fail to give due credit to those who in distant time did such wonderful service for the world and the pioneers through whose ingenuity the printing press became the possession of all mankind. I might tell you the story of the advances in the art, but these, too, you must also know, and yet do we not, simply because of the universal use of the instruments, sometimes forget names that should never be forgotten. In my own day the Hoe press, the Mergenthaler, and the Linotype. These are names that even the layman knows and though he little knows what his condition would be today were it not for the blessings showered upon the world by the genius that advanced the art of printing.

AMBASSADOR OF GOOD WILL.

And so, Your Worship, you come tonight to visit your own and there is a certain community between you as guest and these as hosts, and I am sure that your association with your fellow tradesmen of the very first day of your arrival in Boston will make you feel, though a stranger, so much at home that you will almost forget you have a home on the other side of the great Atlantic. Indeed the width of the Atlantic by the warmth of the greeting that you receive here tonight will be so narrowed that you will almost forget that it exists. That brings to my mind still another thought. The telegraph and the cable would not be possible or practicable without the art of printing, and the radio which now exists for intercommunication among all the peoples of the earth and among all individuals could not have whatever of its messages are immortal preserved for all time, without the kindly service of the printing press. Still another thought occurs to me. Think you that the charter which was brought over to America in 1630 by Governor Winthrop would be preserved at the State House in the City of Boston today unless it had been translated to the parchment by the art of printing? No, sir. I have dilated much tonight upon your art; I have spoken with a full heart; I am glad to be here, particularly on an occasion of this kind and I congratulate you, Your Worship, and you gentlemen of Typographical Union, No. 13, upon the means to which the Almighty has called you for the making of a livelihood. You are certainly, if any are, the ambassadors of good will, and I believe will continue to be so so long as the art of printing remains existent, and that I am sure will be until there shall be no more sea.

THE WORST YEAR YET IN DEATHS FROM AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS.

Thirty-one thousand five hundred motor-vehicle deaths in the United States during 1929 is the estimate of the National Safety Council. This is 13 per cent worse than the 1928 record, although motor-vehicle registration increased only 8 per cent during the year. This increase corresponds closely to figures just reported by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, covering automobile accident deaths of its Industrial Department weekly premium policyholders for the last two years. The insurance company's total for this group for the calendar year 1929 is 4,127, as compared with 3,619 in 1928. The comparisons on a basis of policyholders exposed to risk are 21.8 motor-vehicle deaths per 100,000 policyholders in 1929, and 19.7 in 1928.

Many have been coming and returning since the beginning of the year, carrying away with them the concession of Boston's greatness, the truth as to her hospitality, and the soundness of her fame. During the past few days, however, the official guests, bidden to her party, have been entertained by Boston as never before have visitors.

Distinguished visitors and guests from all parts of New England and Canada, present in the reviewing stand, included Mayor Reuben Salter, in his official robe of office of scarlet, with brown fur trimming and black border and the long gold chain of his office; Deputy Mayor and Mrs. E. A. Bailey, Councilor James Tait and Councilor Jabez H. Mountain, Gaspar G. Bacon, Speaker of the House; Prof. Joseph H. Beal, Harvard; Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Brown, Mayor W. G. Clark, Fredericton, N. B.; Secretary of State Fred W. Cook; Lieutenant Commander R. O. Davis, U. S. N.; Hon. J. M. DeArmada, Brazilian Consul; City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, Rev. James H. Dolan, S. J.; S. Harold Dubond, Governor Louis Emerson, Illinois; Allan Forbes, Hon. J. M. de Bettercourt Serrara, Consul of Portugal; Gov. William Tudor Gardiner, Maine; Mayor Louis A. Gaston-guay, Halifax, N. S.; Hon. Frederick B. Greenhalge, Capt. Alvan C. Howes, Thomas J. Jackson, Carl Johansson, Swedish Consul; Lieut.-Col. H. E. Lavigne, Mayor of Quebec; Gen. Edward L. Logan, chief marshal of the parade, Mrs. Logan; Maj.-Gen. Walter E. Lombard; Hon. Pro Margati, Italian Consul; Dr. Daniel Lash Marsh; Hon. James McConnell, Mayor of Sydney, N. S.; Col. S. C. McCodich, Hugh H. McLean, Lieutenant Governor New Brunswick; William A. Mossman, Uruguayan Consul; Enrique Naranjo, Columbian Consul; P. G. Clay, Spanish Consul; former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, Herbert Parker; John Peebles, Mayor of Hamilton, Ont.; Pericles J. Polycias, Greek Consul; George N. Priski, Albanian Consul; P. W. L. Prowse, Mayor of Charlottetown, P. E. I.; William Randolph Hearst; Gov. John G. Richards, South Carolina; Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, members of the Boston City Council and their wives.

The first event prepared for their entertainment was the dedication of the sixth health unit in the West End, made possible from the fund created by the will of the late George R. White. This was dedicated on Monday morning. For the entertainment of the guests during the evening of the first day an illuminated parade was staged. On Tuesday forenoon, for the especial entertaining of the guests, the memorial to the Founders of Boston, located on Beacon street, near the location of the home of the first white settler, William Blaxton, and in the immediate vicinity of the spring from which he slaked his thirst.

To this event guests from the Nation, neighboring states and cities as well as the overseas' guests were bidden. On Tuesday evening the great Towne Meeting was held in the Boston Gardens, where 10,000 persons gathered and paid their respects to Mayor Reuben Salter and his companions. Here, also, Madame Schumann-Heink, in that generous manner that has always been so gracefully characteristic of her, came and sang her way again into the hearts of all, that the guests might be delighted and entertained.

Here greetings were exchanged between visiting guests and Mayor Curley and his fellow citizens.

The master stroke of entertainment, however, was the actual date of Boston's birth, Wednesday, September 17, 1930. This spectacle, shared in by 40,000 citizens, was witnessed by millions who had flocked to the city for the event. And what an event! Even the Roman conquerors, returning from their battles with their captive hosts, in the time of the Cæsars, never provided, if history is correct, a greater or more stupendous spectacle. Representatives of every nation that furnishes its quota of our cosmopolitan population shared in the event. For six long hours they marched past the reviewing stand and along the streets of Boston. For six long hours the city's guests and the citizens assembled to watch and to witness, cheered and applauded, while bands blared and the echoes of marching treads could be heard along the streets. Then when it was over, and the last float had vanished, a wearied but happy throng gathered about the visiting guests and cheered, pride in their hearts that Boston had added new laurels to her famed hospitality, and that they, with Mayor Curley, had made the event the success it was.

No such demonstration in its various symbolical representations of war, peace, history and industry had ever been seen before in New England. It was headed by Lieut.-Gen. Edward L. Logan, as chief marshal, carrying the truncheon of authority which his predecessor of 100 years ago had used and which, after that celebration, had been deposited in the city's vaults to be brought out for the occasion of today. General Logan waved the white baton to the cheering crowds all along the route.

TOWN CRIER IN THE LEAD.

Three hundred feet ahead of the parade walked a town crier, ringing his hand bell and announcing the day's celebration. He was followed by the police escort of nine mounted men and the band which headed the contingent of World War veterans. This was a large group, and warmly received by hand-clapping all along the route. The men were dressed in everything from the regulation blue Legion uniform to olive drab and trench helmets, much-laundered khaki suits and civilian attire, including the latest models in fall hats.

Lieut.-Gen. Edward L. Logan, at the head of his staff of mounted men, received a great ovation. Following the military group, the civilian aides included more than a dozen riding on horseback in formal day dress, striped trousers, frock coats and silk hats. These in turn were followed by the dignitaries of the city and state and members of the various Tercentenary committees, in automobiles, which kept two abreast.

FOR FIRE PROTECTION IN THEATERS.

On April 24 a conference was held at the office of the Mayor to discuss the matter of added fire protection for all theaters and moving picture houses.

Conferences were held at the office of the Building Commissioner between the committee representing the Allied Theaters and Fire and Building Commissioners, with the result that a set of requirements for all houses was finally accepted.

A copy of the requirements were sent May 29 by registered mail to the owner of each house, and was followed by a questionnaire to be answered, signed and returned to the Building Commissioner on or before July 25, showing that the requirements had been complied with.

The managers very generally started work at once so that on August 1 when the licenses for the season 1930-31 went into effect all but three houses which had applied for licenses were approved by the Building Department and those three, after realizing that their houses would be closed, went to work with such rapidity that they were approved on the following day.

For September 2 the report of the Building Commissioner is as follows: Of the 58 theaters that were licensed last season, 49 have been approved, 7 have applied for licenses but are not ready for final inspection, and 2 have not applied for a license.

Of the 27 moving picture houses, 21 have been approved, 2 have applied for licenses but are not ready for an inspection, and 4 have not applied for a license.

Finally, the result of the conference in the Mayor's office has not only been very satisfactory from the practical side but also for the moral effect it has had on the theater owners and managers in regard to their responsibility to their patrons, who, in turn, should be notified through the press of what has been done to make their theater homes safe for themselves and children.

A practical demonstration of the value of flame-proofing was had early Saturday evening, September 5, on the stage of the Shubert Theater. For some unknown reason a fire started in the props near the front of the stage, which was discovered by the watchman. He lowered the asbestos curtain, which sent the heat aloft, setting off the sprinklers, and opened up the ventilators, and due to the fact that curtains, scenery, etc., had been flame-proofed during the summer the fire was quickly extinguished causing very little actual damage to the theater itself (a small section of flooring). The manager was loud in praise of our flame-proofing order and notified the Messrs. Shubert that it unquestionably saved the house from a very serious fire.

MAYOR RECEIVES POEM TO MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK.

Mayor Curley, on September 11, received the following verses written by Agnes Harriet Parker, entitled "The Queen Mother" and dedicated to Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink:

The planets assembled in conference,
A child was about to be born.
There were no royal witnesses present
On that fateful, auspicious morn,
A mother was waiting the moment
When a baby's first, faint, smothered cry
Should end that last measure of torture.
Then it came—almost wildly high,
The stars gave a mischievous twinkle;
The moon, just a hint of a smile,
As the infant eyes opened in wonder
On a world that had waited a while
For the coming of her, who that morning
Lay snuggled at Mother's warm breast
Knowing naught of the planet's strange scheming;
Or the meaning of astral behest.
So she grew, as the gods willed to have her
And bloomed like a Jacqueminot rose Soon the world heard her singing and wondered—

Could a heart that with music o'er-flows,
Feel aught of distress or affliction?
Can eyes that shine bright as twin stars
Ever fill with hot tears? Can the breaking of the heart of a singer leave scars?
Aye, the hand that held Destiny's shaping,
Planned for days when life's battles were wild,
And foresaw in the future of nations,
A place for the sleeping child
It was meant that the child should be mother
When the world in the anguish of war,
Tore the sons of earth's mothers asunder—
Thus have nations established the law
That the flesh of God's image be tortured,
'Till the weaker for clemency begs—
While the lips of the mothers drain moisture
From the bitterness cup at its dregs,
But the gods who designed the Queen
Mother
Made her great with no weakening alloy,
This the planets achieved at their conference—
This I knew when she sang "Danny Boy."

BOSTON DEDICATES SIXTH HEALTH UNIT—IN WEST END—AS INAUGURATION OF CITY'S TRICENTENARY WEEK—DISTINGUISHED VISITORS AS GUESTS.

The first ceremonies to officially open the celebration of Boston's Tercentenary took place on Monday at 11 o'clock when the sixth of the health units being erected out of the funds left to the city by the late George R. White was dedicated. The ceremonies were made most memorable by the fact that Boston's distinguished visitors, here for the great occasion of the three hundredth birthday of the city, were the especial guests of Mayor Curley.

This building is believed to be the last word in public health centers in any city of Boston's size—The West End Health Unit at Blossom and Parkman streets. Dedication was witnessed by about two hundred mothers from the neighborhood and His Worship, Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, England, and his suite, who came as the special guests of Mayor James M. Curley.

The visiting English Mayor from the old city of Boston appeared in his colorful robes of office and was greeted and joyously acclaimed by the assemblage, which comprised among others members of the medical and social spheres and city government.

The exercises began soon after eleven o'clock.

Gen. Edward L. Logan, manager of the White Fund, presided. The invocation was by Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams of the Temple Ohabei Shalom. Lewis B. Abbott, representing the architects, presented the keys of the new building to Henry I. Harriman, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Harriman said that Boston was fortunate in having among her citizens such a public-spirited man as the late George Robert White, who gave his time and his wealth to aid in benefiting the health of the general public.

At this point Mr. Harriman, who is also a member of the Board of Trustees of the White Fund, was to have presented the keys to Mayor Curley, but the Mayor was receiving the English visitors at the Mayoral suite in City Hall, and did not arrive for fifteen or twenty minutes. Meanwhile General Logan went on with the program and presented Dr. F. X. Mahoney, the city Health Commissioner, to the gathering.

Doctor Mahoney outlined the history of the health unit movement, recalling the start of the first unit, near where the sixth was being dedicated today. The speaker said that much of that already accomplished could not have been achieved were it not for the wise counsel, able assistance and time of the present Mayor. The city's health head said the results being accomplished in the West End were most gratifying to him as chief of the Boston Health Department.

HEALTH UNIT WORK BEGUN.

The next speaker was Dr. Charles F. Wilinsky, Deputy Health Commissioner of Boston, who was one of the prime movers in the opening of the first experimental health station on Blossom street in the old ward room and gymnasium adjacent to the finely appointed $550,000 structure thrown open this forenoon. Doctor Wilinsky paid tribute to the benefactor and the founders, to Mayor Curley for his inspiration fifteen years ago and his continued interest and to the late George E. Phelan, former head of the fund, and the present manager of the fund, General Logan, the presiding officer, for their cooperation in raising the level of public health throughout the city where six health units are functioning through the foresight and generosity of the late George Robert White.

City Councilor John I. Fitzgerald of the West End, who was on the platform with William G. Lynch of South Boston, President of the Boston City Council, and a trustee of the White Fund, recounting the long battle for a modern health center in the West End where was located the original center for the preservation of public health.

He said that years ago the people of the district were fortunate in having at their door the greatest medical school in the country and also one of the really great hospitals of the country. It was the people of the same district, he said, who had the first health unit in the city, and now after years of waiting they have the best equipped health station in the whole city.

HEALTH MENACE SCORED.

Councilor Fitzgerald said that unless the city finds some way of eradicating the health menace of decayed fruit stores in the basements and cellars of West End houses and homes, the achievements of the health center and all the health units will have been wasted.

Mr. Fitzgerald made a plea for improved condition along this line, and suggested a modern storage house, where the 3,000 fruit and produce peddlers who live in the West End could sort their products and store the unfit for food products until they could be carted away. At present time, the councilor said, this process of sorting goes on in the cellars and the result is that decayed fruits and vegetables remain there, sometime from Friday to Monday. This was a health menace, he added, that might result in a spread of disease through the entire city.

Lee K. Frankel of New York then spoke. He is a vice president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Mr. Frankel was director of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and ex-president of the American Public Health Association and ex-president of the National Conference of Jewish Societies.

PRAISES MAYOR CURLEY.

Mr. Frankel said he ventured to disagree with the learned members of the medical profession who advocated a policy of don't mind your health; wait until you are sick, then go see the family doctor. The speaker contrasted the old experimental unit with the one being opened today, and said it was a pleasure to those engaged in medical and health work to see Mr. Curley again at the helm of this great city.

He declared that the medical men who tell the public not to worry about their health until it bothers them, are flinging a challenge at the medical profession and lay workers engaged in preventive work, and it remains to be determined whether preventive work is right or harmful.

Why continue building health units and prosecuting educational health work among the masses unless it can be determined whether such work is productive of better health and longer life, or whether it is injurious because it creates a fear complex, he said. "No one can but be impressed with the results of such educational and preventive work as being waged by health departments and privately conducted social agencies, and the result is that the expectation of life has been doubled."

General Logan read a note from George R. Nutter, Boston lawyer, to the effect that the health units of the city were perhaps the best monument to Mayor Curley.

MAYORS AND GUESTS ARRIVE.

The Mayor arrived by this time, with the English visitors, and Mr. Harriman presented the key to him, humorously commenting that no keys were needed for it was intended to keep the building open at all times. Mayor Curley first presented two of three of the visiting party, the Lord Mayor of Boston, England, who stood out in his scarlet robes; General McLean and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick.

Mayor Curley, in his speech, outlined the success of the city health units, and called attention to the fact that the opening was taking place upon the first day of "Boston Week" in the Tercentenary celebration. "What would the founders have thought of this building?" he asked, "For let us remember that in their first year here, almost half the colony was wiped out through disease." Mayor Curley asked the audience to rise, in honor of the memory of George E. Phelan, Mrs. Harriet Bradbury and George Robert White. He introduced from the platform Gen. Hugh Havelock McLean, lieutenant governor of New Brunswick, and Sir Oswald Crockett, chief justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of New Brunswick.

The exercises concluded with benediction by Rev. Charles Heaney, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Chambers street, West End.

GOVERNOR FRANK G. ALLEN DELIVERS ADDRESS AT UNVEILING OF MEMORIAL TO FOUNDERS OF COLONY ON BOSTON COMMON.

Governor Allen at the unveiling of the memorial to the Founders of Boston Common, this afternoon, said in part:

"Your Honor the Mayor, honored guests, citizens of Boston and of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

"We are assembled here today to do such honor as is in our power to Gov. John Winthrop and those others of the founders who laid here the foundation of this city, this Commonwealth, this Nation, and a fairer form of government than the world has ever elsewhere known.

"The centuries have marched their steady way since Winthrop and his associates came. On the long pathway of those years are the imprints of many feet. Courage, happiness, sorrow, tragedy, all have had their part, and all have left their mark on the highway of the Nation's growth.

"Today we reap something of the rich harvest they sowed. We believe, and we have reason to believe, that ours is a mighty Commonwealth, and that this, our chief city, is a fine town. When Dr. Holmes wrote, nearly 75 years ago, that the 'Boston State House is the hub of the solar system,' he coined a phrase often quoted with a smile, as it was written with a smile; but he gave to Bostonians also a sense of continuing responsibility. We must preserve and strengthen what we find before us.

TAKE COMMON FOR GRANTED.

"Amid the many celebrations and observances of this Tercentenary year, this of today is to Boston perhaps the most interesting and most significant. It is so not only because of the great city that has grown from the invitation of William Blaxton, which brought the first settlers to this neighborhood, but also because here, where we stand, has been saved for the present and for posterity this great open space, this broad Common, in the heart of the modern city.

"We who live or have our affairs in Boston fall into the way of taking the Common for granted. It is as familiar to us as the streets over which we travel; yet it is unique. It is more than a park. It is more than a recreation field. It is both of these, but in its freedom, and by its location, it stands forever as a living fulfilment of the implied pledge of freedom and liberality which grew to fine flower here in this Hub city.

"Mrs. Hemans wrote of the Pilgrims, who preceded those who settled our own City of Boston, these inspiring words:

"Ay, call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod!
They have left unstained what there they found—Freedom to worship God!"

"So the poet paints the broad canvas. We know, by observation and by experience, that no people go easily and unhindered along the pleasant ways of peace. Obstacles, difficulties, dangers, come in their inevitable array, with each generation. Man conquers these according to his strength and his purity of purpose. In this never-ceasing battle against wrong, in this ceaseless warfare in behalf of the rights of man, there are influences which are of incalculable aid. To win the war against the enemies of freedom we need not alone the material things, we need even more the spiritual strength that comes to those who are blessed by inspiring history.

QUOTES ORIGINAL LATIN.

"The Massachusetts Bay Colony set up for us of succeeding generations, whether by birth or by adoption, the equal heritage of all, such a background as forever serves us when danger threatens. In this rich heritage this splendid Boston Common is one of the items. It is a symbol of that liberty of thought, speech, and action which have kept Boston not only, as the genial poet and essayist said, the 'hub of the solar system,' but an unchanging star in the firmament of freedom.

"We speak of this memorial which we see unveiled here today as an honor paid to the Founders; and so it is, in the spirit that serves us to erect and to celebrate this thing is breathed upon and made vital by a sense of what we owe them. I like to think as well of the idea that the spirit of these brave men, and women, too, whose memories we reverence today, is reaching out over the long expanse of the centuries, to strengthen and give renewed courage to us now, that the forefathers are seeking by the vitality of their memories to honor us of today, even as they honored the times in which they lived on earth.

"My friends, I stand here to speak in the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. You all know the Latin motto of Massachusetts:

"ENSE PETIT PLACIDAM SUB LIBERTATE QUIETEM."

"There is another line, not in our motto, but found in the original Latin whence our motto comes, and that line reads:

"MANUS HAEC INIMICA TYRANNIS." and translated, it means, with the rest of the phrase which we know:

"This hand, at enmity with tyrants, seeks by the help of the sword peaceful repose under a rule of freedom."

"So let it ever be, in Boston, in Massachusetts, throughout our America. The tyranny of the foreign foe seeking conquest, the tyranny of the lawless who would subvert government, the tyranny of ignorance, of skepticism, of selfishness, of predatory power—against all tyranny we set the sword of righteousness, seeking peace and freedom for all forever."

10,000 CITIZENS GATHER IN BOSTON GARDEN AT YE OLDE TOWNE MEETING TO HONOR MAYOR SALTER AND EXCHANGE OFFICIAL GREETINGS. ALSO TO HEAR AMERICA'S BEST LOVED SONG-BIRD, MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK.

One of the most brilliant events in the three-day celebration of Boston's 300th birthday was the town meeting and reception to his Worship, Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, England, at the Boston Garden, on the evening of Tuesday, September 17.

Here Mayor Curley and 10,000 of Boston's most noted citizens gathered to do honor to the distinguished visitors, to listen to the still golden voice of Madame Schumann-Heink, who came all the way across the continent to grace the occasion and to exchange greetings and presents with the mother town of Boston, 3,000 miles away.

Five governors, nearly a score of New England mayors, the Mayor of Coventry, England, and the Mayors of the cities of Fredericton, N. B.; Halifax, N. S., and Quebec, in addition to the consul generals of all nations, were guests of honor who paid tribute either by speech or by their presence to Mayor Salter and his colleagues from the ancient mother city in Lincolnshire, England.

Governor Allen, Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, Mayor Curley, Supt. Jeremiah E. Burke of the Boston public schools, John Jackson Walsh, chairman of the State Tercentenary Committee, and Col. Percy A. Guthrie were among the Massachusetts men who welcomed the guests, in speeches.

Adding their share of Boston hospitality to the distinguished visitors were 2,000 Boston school children whose choral number, "Jerusalem," was one of the high spots of the evening.

Gov. William Tudor Gardiner of Maine acted as spokesman for the other three visiting Governors, Gov. John E. Weeks of Vermont, Gov. Charles H. Tobey of New Hampshire, and Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois.

Mayor Fred Lee of Coventry, England, and Lieut.-Col. H. E. Lavigueur, M. P., Mayor of Quebec, added their felicitations to the mayors and citizens of the two Bostons, in behalf of the mayors and municipalities of England and Canada.

Maj.-Gen. Hugh Havelock McLean, K. C., V. D., LL.D., Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick, spoke for the Maritime Provinces and Canada, saying that the unfortified boundary between the United States and Canada was the result of simple good faith and friendship, which he was sure would always exist between the two countries.

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink was the star attraction, and her magnetic personality, the kiss she blew to Mayor Curley and the latter's gallant response by kissing the tips of her fingers as he presented her with a bouquet of roses added to the spell woven around the hearts of the crowd by her famed voice.

MAYOR SALTER'S ADDRESS.

Mayor Salter, the principal guest of the evening, made a splendid address which, reduced to the simplest terms, was to the effect that Boston, England, which he declared "a very fine lady," is very proud of her offspring and also very grateful. He said that he thought this city's adherence to the old Puritan spirit of democracy, law-abiding, and high ideals, marked it as the greatest of American cities.

"You were treated very harshly 300 years ago," Mayor Salter continued, "but let me say you were not treated harshly by the people of old Boston. Your persecution came from a tyrannical government."

Mayor Salter thanked Mayor Curley and the citizens of Boston for the Tercentenary plaque, showing William Claxton offering food and water to Governor Winthrop and Ann Pollard, presented by this city to Boston, England, and said that "We, too, want to present your city with a gift from the old town on the banks of the Witham."

Then Mayor Salter handed over three silver spoons, dated 1716, from the silver service of the English city. He was given an ovation at the conclusion of the ceremony as well as one on his approach to the rail of the platform to the music of "God Save the King."

Mayor Salter's colleagues from old Boston were Deputy Mayor Arthur Bailey and Mrs. Bailey, Councilors James Tait and Jabez Holland Mountain, and George Robinson, editor.

Maj.-Gen. Hugh Havelock McLean, Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick, created a sensation in the vast auditorium when he walked down the main aisle behind the colors, with Miss Mary Curley, the Mayor's daughter. He was dressed in the official uniform that he wears at the opening of the Provincial Parliament in New Brunswick, and wore a sword.

The uniform consisted of a black velvet swallowtail coat decked with huge rhinestone buttons straight down the front and on the sleeves, and black velvet knee breeches. At his neck was a white stock and white lace flowed from either sleeve. The uniform was completed with black silk stockings, pumps with rhinestone buckles, and a trim court sword worn at a rakish angle in a silver-trimmed scabbard.

Introduced, he proved a bit wary of the three microphones, two of which were those of Station WBZ-WBZA, which broadcast the reception locally and also overseas to Boston, England, by short wave from Station WIXAZ of the Westinghouse Company.

General McLean paid a tribute to the McLean Highlanders that Colonel Guthrie recruited in Boston during the World War and spoke, in part, as follows:

"I thank you all from the bottom of my heart for your reception tonight and personally pray for the prosperity of this magnificent city. In Boston and its vicinity there are more than 800,000 people from the Maritime Provinces, who live here with you. We regret very much their leaving our Province, but the lure of your great city attracted them. I am glad you received them with the greatest friendship. I am pleased to hear they are good citizens."

Madame Schumann-Heink was presented with a traveling case and accessories by Mayor Curley, who said that he hoped it would bring her safely home to her home in California and back to Boston where she would be always welcome.

With her inimitable humor, the world-famous singer and good mother of the wounded veterans of all nations replied,

"That's all ver-ree boo-ti-ful, but now I have to start powdering my nose and this is empty (of powder)!"

Then, in a more serious vein, she continued: "I want to thank you all. It isn't the last time I'll come. If you need me for your children, I will come."

Mayor Lavigueur of Quebec not only extended his greetings to Boston and its guests but also tendered an invitation to Mayor Salter to pay his city an official visit.

Allan Forbes, who headed the local committee which raised $50,000 for the restoration of Boston "Stump," the tower of old Boston Cathedral, was introduced and applauded.

The guests entered the hall in a procession down the main aisle after the Towne Crier, H. M. Murdough, clad in Puritan costume and swinging a bell, had preceded them by a few minutes with his cry of "Greetings! Greetings!"

The procession was headed by the colors of the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Massachusetts, and Boston, guarded by details from the Boston Navy Yard, the British Naval and Military Veteran Association, the 101st Infantry M. N. G., and the Boston Police and Fire Departments.

There followed some forty Puritan maidens and then the honored guests.

ODE TO BOSTON.

DEDICATORY POEM IS READ BY NOTED POET AND AUTHOR, EDWIN MARKHAM, AT UNVEILING OF FOUNDERS MEMO-RIAL ON BOSTON COMMON.

At the dedication of a $40,000 fountain on Boston Common on Tuesday afternoon a feature was the reading of a Boston ode by its author, Edwin Markham, the picturesque aged man who wrote "The Man With the Hoe."

The fountain was unveiled by Miss Katherine Winthrop, lineal descendant of Gov. John Winthrop.

During the elaborate ceremony there were numerous addresses by officials, including Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, and Mayor James M. Curley. Mr. Markham, white-haired, white-bearded, read from the Tribune his ode to the birth of this city. The ode follows:

BOSTON.

Boston, it was not chance
That drew you hither in the world romance.
Not a loud windmill, nor a noisy tavern,
Nor some mysterious cavern,
But a deep need drew hither your pioneers
In the old heroic years—
A need to find a shore
Where men were free to labor and adore.
This was the urge that made
Your rise to greatness in the winds of trade,
In beauty of wisdom and in moral might,
Till you led all America in light.

Here came an iron race
Who climbed to an imperishable place—
A Puritan band, austere and tense as fire,
With a calm purpose time could never tire.
They found in will their wine,
While humbled by the Vast and the Divine,
Lift hands to them and cry
Their names into the trumpets of the sky,
They stood for the sacred Hearth, yet dared alone
To cleanse the Altar and destroy the Throne.
They stood a rock against a world perverse,
Despite the scoffers' sneer, the courtiers' curse.
On fields of fight, in chambers of debate,
They could hold ground and never yield a gate.
They rode to battle shouting songs to God,
Made terrible the very ground they trod.
Before a King they stood up coldly proud;
But to the King of Kings they humbly bowed.
Humble were they, and yet could trample down
A Church, an Aristocracy, a Crown.
Their conscience raised them to a starry birth;
Their duty hardened them to iron bands.
So they made England terrible on earth,
Terrible to evildoers in all lands.
They were the men who saw
That some things matter, that the hammer of law
Hangs threatening overhead,
Hangs even above the Nations of the dead.
These were the men heroic in their days,
Worthy of all men's honor and God's praise.
They were an iron race,
Who carried the hush of God upon the face—
In language frugal and in faith austere,
Even in their raiment whimsical and queer.
They had no rustling silks, no nodding plumes,
No rattle of spurs, no high chivalric dooms.
Instead, they had the homely paths where lurk
A rock-ribbed faith, a dogged will to work.
They had no families proud of pedigree,
No Lords with jeweled sword and gartered knee.
They had instead the reverence for law
And love for ax and hammer and singing saw.
Was this mere drudging work? So it would seem;
And yet it was fulfillment of a dream,
The purpose to build a State,
With men left free to conquer Time and Fate.
Thus the new epic of the world began.
Where there was room for a man to be a man.

To these free shores they came,
These later pilgrims, with their hearts aflame,
To find homes where the soul
Could worship and push onward to the goal.
Here came the eager band
Who counted all of England's mighty land,
And all her easy luxury, well lost
For the soul's freedom—gladly paid the cost.
"Not a new country only—a new mind!"
This was their cry to all the world behind.

Forgive them if they did not always give
The freedom that the soul must have to live.
They did not grant to others
The freedom needed for a world of brothers.

Death was the one democracy they knew:
And so they cried: "Rule by the chosen few,
Not by the People! "Then a lofty soul
Pointed the ages to a higher goal.
He was a prophet: Thomas Hooker seems
The father of our democratic dreams.
From him went out on men a holy breath,
And dead democracy stood up from death.
He saw her rise into a blessed fate
Where Christ should be the ruler of the State.
This city of God, this was his soul's great vision,
The dream for which he faced the world's derision.

Remember, too, in sixteen-thirty-five,
A man whose soul helps keep the world alive,
Beamed on your streets, a man without a fear—
Sir Henry Vane. Not King, nor Prince, nor peer Could balk his hero soul, nor ever bend
His purpose to be true.
And do the work that God had given to do.
So he blazed onward bravely to the end;
And when old England led him from the Tower,
It was her infamous hour.
But say this thing in praise:
That love and valor walked with all his days.

John Winthrop, too, tender as tears was he,
Yet firm as a grim rock looking on the sea.
John Winthrop and Henry Vane,
This brave, high-hearted twain,
They caught a vision of that greatest thing—
The Christian State, the realm where Christ is King—

The Comrade State that John of Patmos saw,
Justice its gate and Love its sovereign law.
For this New Order, waiting in the sky,
John Winthrop dreamed and Vane was glad to die.

And it was also sixteen thirty-five
Let the heart's memory keep this year alive!)
For, Boston, in that wondrous year of earth,
You called the Free School into early birth.
And did you know the grandeur of your deed,
Boston, the day you flung that heavenly seed
To root the tree of knowledge, whose boughs expand
Rich with their fruit above our mighty land?
It was an hour when Fate
Stood at your opening gate;
For in that hour, primer and speller and pen
Began to mold the destinies of men.
Once more had God in fight
Cried to the darkened world, "Let there be light!"

Yes, when men touched this secret shore of earth,
A world-dream rose to birth,
Among the mightiest dates,
Lettered in light on Valor's towering gates,
Which Time must take account of, this is one.
They fought the bleak soil, the inclement sun;
They turned the wild morass
To garden and grove and fields of rippling grass.
And in later years,
They fetched red bricks from ever-smoking kilns,
Timbers from Maine, granite from shattered hills,
And built long wharves and stretched out sheltering piers,
To draw great ships from all the world of men,
Until it seemed Carthage had come again.

And all around us here, in wood and stone,
We see the work of millions, the unknown.
Here rise their monuments though not a name
Of all their host is on the wind of fame.
We honor them; they built these walls and towers
And share in all the glory of these hours.
They did their valiant parts,
And have their place in the memory of our hearts.
Their names are written in no mortal book;
But I aver that every faithful soul
Will have his name on the Eternal Scroll,
Where the assessing angels lean and look.
So blow your bugle for the silent fame
Of those who serve yet die without a name—
Blow clarions for the unknown tolling bands,
With crooked backs, scarred faces, shattered hands.
They are God's darlings and will get their wage;
Their names are written on his Honor Page.

But, Boston, you have also many a name
Of hero souls that Time has given to fame.
Let memory call back
The great ones who have brightened all your track.
But first behold the spirit of Faneuil Hall,
A spirit tall as the great stars are tall.
Her soul was like a sword;
Through her the passion of the people poured.
Here blazed the great debates;
Here crouched in waiting the expectant Fates.
Here stood the Altar of the People; here
The God seemed ever ready to appear!

When England shook the whip of her desire
Over our heads, James Otis flamed to fire.
Here at this shrine, the bold one towered and thundered,
And all our drowsing people woke and wondered;
For out of the valor of his spirit fell
The far first notes of Independence Bell.
This Patrick Henry of New England blew
The first bright bugle of a world made new.
In his heroic will
Were heard the shots that sang on Bunker Hill.
James Otis, son of flame,
All England heard his name—
Otis, whom all the swords of England could not tame.

Here, too, the lion Franklin mewed his youth,
Caught early visions of his homely truth;
Then, at a later hour,
He stirred with pulses of a godlike power,
Drew down from the locket heavens the lightning's light,
And gave newborn America the might
Of thoughts, which winged her for the deathless flight.

Here Lexington unloosed her lightnings; then
A fire went out upon heroic men.
Here, too, were heard the guns of Bunker Hill,
The guns that were the blazon of God's will.
And in that early flame
And thunder of the Revolution, came
High-hearted Warren, spirit of fire and air,
Son of the morning, son of dream and dare.
Set the bright bugle to your lips and blow,
Boston, for all the centuries must know
This towering soul that had no self to serve—
This leader of men, all daring, all reserve.
No greater gift you gave,

And Heaven's white light still shines on Warren's grave.
The weeping crowds, with steps that were a knell, Walkt your lone streets that night when Warren fell.
Now let the bugle above all battles cry
Warren's great name, a name that must not die.

And it was here under the applauding elm,
Our Washington, the chieftain of the realm,
Drew sword and took his stand
To make come true the dreams of a young land.

And it was here the great Lloyd Garrison saw God's terrible judgment frown
On the black man's fetters, licensed by the law—
Even on the Constitution that came down
From Independence Bell—
A covenant with Death, a league with Hell.
Behooted and behowled,
Bespattered and befouled,
He stood bare-bosomed to the coming storm,
Stood like an angel's fierce accusing form,
And shouted judgment cries,
Shaking his fists against the darkening skies.
Quickened in spirit by the Secret Powers,
He cried to earth the march of judgment hours.
And into these prophecies brave Whittier cried
A fury of God that would not be denied.
On roads that other feet had never trod,
They held the way for God.

And Theodore Parker, too,
One of your gallant sons forever true,
He had the dauntless dare
That leaps, all fires, to strip imposture bare—
His was the wrestle for the naked facts,
A winged will for acts.
Sincere as crystal and as bold as youth,
He never feared the truth.
Friend of the fettered slave,
He fought for every freedom that God gave.

O, Boston, in your Faneuil Hall was heard
Great Wendell Phillips thunder Freedom's word,
A protest that was morally sublime,
A poem that will echo into Time.
Scholar was he, and yet
He saw what men forget—
That scholars must come forth in valor and might,
Battle great questions, riddle them with light.
The cowardice of scholarship is a curse
That sends a darkness on the universe.

And then your poet clan
Thundered the truth of man,
Victoriously sang: their valorous song
Was Beauty's cry against a world gone wrong.
They drew the heavens down to life's dim way
To light the souls that live their little day.

First behold Poe whose birth
Let into Time a soul not meant for earth.
He was a star-crossed one
Who peered into dark gulfs hidden from the sun.
Yet he had power to sing
And touch our souls with some mysterious swing,
Some flash of mystic fire,
Some piercing, strange, ethereal desire.
His song is all one cry
For something that no earth can satisfy.

And now our hearts behold
Your Longfellow—not of heroic mold,
Not one who sees into the tragic deeps,
Wherein the world's incurable sorrow sleeps,
But one who smiles and knows
The easier paths where homely pleasure goes.
Where there is sunburnt mirth
And evermore a sense of home on earth.
Under his hand, the tender homely things
Take color and a lift of sudden wings.

And, Boston, in your litany of fame,
 Fail never to read out Lowell's lordly name.
 His pungent humor, tart with Yankee phrase,
 Saves for us all New England's homespun days.
 He has a genius looking far and wide,
 A nature sloping to the southern side.
 He sees the great wrongs, yet with every one
 He has a broad exposure to the sun.
 Still he can leave the earth-way, and take flight
 Into the heavens and thunder for the right.
 He knows that it is dangerous to cry
 "All's well!" when for the truth we ought to die.
 He is the scholar, poet, sparkling wit,
 His mind an ocean by the lightnings lit.
 Boston, be proud, for Emerson is your son,
 Your starry, high, imperishable one.
 He is the winged man,
 Greatest, save Lincoln, of all our new-world clan.
 He lifts men from the creeping paths to see
 They have place in life's sacred mystery—
 Have sure place in the dignity and worth
 Of these great days on earth.
 He brings to sense-bound souls that wander by
 The mighty dreams that commerce with the sky,
 Dreams deathless and divine—
 Man's sacred bread and wine.

These are your sons, O Boston; these abide
 And rule us from beyond the Last Divide.
 Step softly as your heart remembers; they Made possible your deathless yesterday.
 Step proudly, too, as when a warrior comes
 From battles, victories and martyrdoms.
 Up from stern roads your spirit has ascended:
 By these high souls your soul has been attended.
 Their wisdom lit America, and then
 Lit in all lands the darkened steps of men.
 These high souls have gone on to higher roads,
 And looking backward from their bright abodes,
 Their wild hearts wonder if we will maintain
 The honor of their great days left behind—
 Wonder if we will have the battling mind
 To fight the wrong and bear heroic pain.

In the old days your heroes built the State,
 And stood as sleepless watchers at the gate.
 O Boston, maker of men,
 You hammered heroes on your anvil then.
 So for three centuries you have felt the beat
 Of daring hearts, the pulse of daring feet.
 Now they are looking from their higher ways,
 Touched by the tragic import of our days.
 They call to you: "Do something to befit
 Years lit by flashes from the Infinite!"

And your strong men will rise to meet the call,
 God standing in them, terrible and tall.
 And so we praise, O City by the sea,
 All you have been and all that you will be.

RANDIDGE EXCURSION REPORT.

Following is a copy of report submitted to Mayor Curley on September 11 by Mr. William P. Long, chairman of the Park Department, relative to operations under the Randidge Fund:

I respectfully beg leave to submit the following report on the Randidge summer excursions which was intrusted by you to this department this year for the first time. The purpose of this fund was to provide summer excursions for children confined to the city during the summer months.

During the months of July and August, forty-four excursions were held, which represented forty-four responsible organizations without discrimination as to race, creed or color, special attention being given to the most congested districts of the city and to institutions which care for dependent children.

Through the sympathetic interest of your Honor, an appropriation of $5,000 was provided for transportation, and for the first time buses were used to call for the children in the various districts of the city in the morning and return them there at the end of the day. 12,520 children took advantage of these outings, averaging about 280 to each excursion, eight buses being required to transport the children daily.

Many of the children had never before ridden in a sight-seeing bus and they enjoyed the trip through the park system to Castle Island, where the outings were held. Castle Island, where the day was spent, is ideal for such purposes. It is charmingly situated amongst the inner islands of Boston Harbor, from where a close view may be had of all the vessels that enter or leave the port of Boston as they pass through the channel close by.

The island is well covered with grass, has plenty of good shade trees and a good beach was provided where the children could bathe under the watchful eyes of two life guards. The beach area was carefully roped off with safety lines and a boat was in attendance at all times. The large playground area is equipped with a number of swings and tilts that were sufficient to accommodate all. A play instructor was provided for the boys and a lady for the girls. Paraphernalia for games was supplied by this department and the children were busily engaged in sports from their arrival in the morning until their departure at night. A lunch was served at midday which consisted of raisin buns, rolls, doughnuts, milk, ice cream and candy. A nurse and matron were in daily attendance in case of accident or illness; also, a police officer and a fireman were assigned to duty there. The greatest consideration was shown by all connected with the trips for the safety, comfort and happiness of the children and there were no mishaps of any kind.

I want at this time to thank the officials of the Boston City Hospital for their kindness in providing a very competent nurse; also the Police Commissioner for appointing one of the most competent police officers that has ever been connected with this department, and the Fire Commissioner for the services of a well trained fireman. All these officials were very courteous and kind to the children and took a personal interest in the excursions.

Very respectfully yours,
 WILLIAM P. LONG,
 Chairman, Park Department.

MAYOR CURLEY PRESENTS THE BATON USED IN 1830 TO GENERAL LOGAN—BORNE BY HIM ON WEDNESDAY.

Out of the murk of City Hall vaults on Monday they dug a reminder of the day when Boston celebrated its 200th anniversary. Wrapped in yellowed parchment and streaked with the dust of time, two small packages were brought into light by the City Clerk and before an interested group of spectators the relic of other days was opened up. In one of the packages was wrapped the plain wooden truncheon which the marshal of the parade which passed through Boston streets just one hundred years ago carried. In the other were two letters couched in the grandiloquent style of the eighteen hundreds.

The baton had been used by the Chief Marshal of the parade 100 years ago. He wrapped up his truncheon on September 17, 1830, and wrote on its covering, "To the chief marshal of the centennial celebration of the seventeenth of September, one thousand and nine hundred and thirty." He presented it then to the Mayor with the request that it be kept until this present year when it should be unwrapped and carried in the 1930 parade.

At noon on Monday Wilfred Doyle, City Clerk, and the man who guards the vaults came into the Mayor's office. Present were Mayor Curley and Lieut. Gen. Edward L. Logan. "Sir," said Mr. Doyle, addressing Mayor Curley, "I have been directed to present you with these two packages."

The Mayor accepted them from his City Clerk. First he took the parchment-wrapped truncheon, bound in faded tapes and sealed with wax still as firmly as when Marshal Sullivan had held the stick to the candle.

The Mayor broke the seal, and carefully took off the heavy wrapper. The truncheon, hidden for a century, was touched by human hand for the first time in that long stretch of years. The Mayor extended it to General Logan, with the instruction to carry it "on the public highway and not take it into the home." General Logan accepted it in behalf of the Tercentenary Committee.

With it was a letter, the writing still clear and legible.

Mayor Curley read this to the chief marshal:

BOSTON, September 17, 1830.

To the Honorable Harrison Gray Otis,
 Mayor of the City of Boston.

DEAR SIR,—I venture to hope that I may, through you and your successors, transmit my badge of office to my successor. I enclose it in a parchment addressed to him, and containing a letter of which I enclose to you a copy.

With the highest respect and esteem,
 Your friend and obedient servant.

WM. SULLIVAN.

With this first letter was another, a longer one, addressed to General Logan, although not by name. This too was read:

BOSTON, September 17, 1830.

To the Chief Marshal of the Centennial Celebration of the Seventeenth of September, One Thousand, Nine Hundred and Thirty.

SIR,—I greet you through the lapse of an hundred years, and send to you the truncheon, which I have borne this day. I hope that you will use it in the presence of a mayor who has given his days to commendable industry, to the forming and using of illustrious talents; and to straightforward patriotism; and who is the ornament and the pride of a grateful and happy city;—of an orator, who is learned, philosophic, fervent and eloquent and who carries to the duties of the day a well-earned reputation in many important offices—of a poet, studious, discerning, comprehensive, tender and manly;—of chaplains and psalmists, devout, reverend, faithful, loving and beloved;—of city legislators, worthy of being depositories of power derived from free and satisfied electors;—of citizens, raised to the highest honors within human gift;—of a population delightful to look upon, and self-respecting and decorous in beholding.

May you hold this badge of brief authority with sentiments of self-gratulation, that in your day you are an agent in a celebration due to the memory of the departed, cheering and preceptive to those who engage in it, and exemplary to those who are to follow.

WILLIAM SULLIVAN,
 Chief Marshal.

Then the tin box which had been with the truncheon under City Hall was broken open. Clerk Doyle presented this to the Mayor who in turn gave it to General Logan. In it lay newspaper accounts of the parade of 1830. This was taken by General Logan who will keep it until after the parade when it, along with the baton or truncheon, will be returned to the Mayor, who will direct them sealed and stored away until the parade of 2030.

The fact that these two treasures had lain in City Hall vaults was discovered in 1926 when the late James Donovan was City Clerk. An account in the Transcript of September 20, 1830, told the story of the truncheon and the box. After a long search, in which historical societies, Mayor Nichols, libraries and other agencies had failed to locate them, they were discovered stored in the little-used vaults by Wilfred Doyle, then assistant city clerk.

BOSTON'S NIGHT PARADE OF FLOATS MOST DAZZLING AND BRILLIANT—VIEWED
BY 500,000 TERCENTENARY
SPECTATORS.

Boston witnessed, on Monday night, one of the most colorful and picturesque demonstrations in its history—an illuminated parade depicting historical subjects, and yet with many touches of modernity. The parade was planned to be one of the big features in the Tercentenary observance of Boston Week and it was.

Starting at 8 o'clock at Beacon and Hereford streets it moved down Beacon past the State House, to Tremont street, thence past the reviewing stands on Lafayette Mall, to Boylston street, Park square and Columbus avenue, to Stuart street. Mayor Curley and guests reviewed the procession on Tremont street and Grand Marshal Carroll J. Swan and staff in Park square.

The French flyers, Coste and Bellonte, rode with Mayor Curley at the head of the procession.

The organization of the procession provided for fifty-eight units. Outstanding among the many floats entered were those of leading industries, each portraying a significant event in the 300 years of Boston's history. Typical of these and the largest in size was the float, "Battle of Lexington," sponsored by the Metropolitan Electrical League, and representing all branches of the electrical industry in Greater Boston.

The float depicted the smoke-shrouded village of Lexington seen beyond a spirited conflict of British troops and defenders.

BOSTON PLACES MEMORIAL IN ENDURING BRONZE AND STONE ON COMMON AS TRIBUTE TO STURDY FOUNDERS OF NATION, AT GREAT TRICENTENARY EXERCISES, BEFORE DISTINGUISHED VISITING GUESTS, WITH MAYOR CURLEY AS HOST.

In enduring stone and bronze, on Tuesday afternoon, Boston has seen fit to preserve the memory of those who three hundred years ago paved the way for the city's progress, for this nation's greatness and for the celebration of this Tricentenary, by dedication of a memorial fountain. This memorial stands near by the site of the home and spring of the first white settler in Boston, Rev. William Blaxton. And it was a descendant of Governor Winthrop, Katherine Winthrop, who drew the covering aside that veiled the monument up to this occasion.

Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams, descendant of two presidents, delivered the dedicatory address and Edwin Markham, noted author and poet, read the Tricentenary poem following the unveiling.

That was a brief but impressive exercise. A company of color-bearers from the Marines and National Guard stood at attention. Seated in front were about fifty guests—the official party—with Mayor Curley and Governor Allen. The Mayor briefly introduced Miss Winthrop who pulled the rope which unveiled the tablet. The applause that followed was a spontaneous recognition of the beauty of the panel and the whole fountain.

EXERCISES AT TRIBUNE.

Then, headed by Maj. Charles T. Harding and the color-bearers, a procession, with Governor Allen, Miss Winthrop and Mayor Curley at its head, was formed and marched to the Tribune nearby, on the Charles street edge or the parade ground. Seats had been provided for about 1,500 persons in front of the Tribune.

Seated in front of the Tribune with Mayor Curley were his daughter, Mary; Governor Allen, Miss Katharine Winthrop, Sherman L. Whipple, chairman of the committee of arrangements; Bishop Henry K. Sherrill, Edwin Markham, the poet of the occasion; Secretary of the United States Navy, Charles Francis Adams, orator of the occasion; Judge Thomas H. Dowd, John Francis Paramino and Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England. Others from Boston, England, were Deputy Mayor and Lady E. A. Bailey, Councilor James Tait, Councilor Jabez H. Mountain and Hon. George Robinson. Also, Justice Crockett, representing the judiciary of Canada, and Gen. H. H. McLean, Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick, and Gen. Francis Peabody.

The colors were massed on either side of the Tribune. The Municipal Band was directly in front and a chorus from the Dorchester High School was at the northern end of the Tribune.

The one bit of color in that audience was Mayor Reuben Salter in his red robes of office and his cocked hat. The most dramatic figure was the venerable, white-haired poet, Edwin Markham, who recited his Tricentenary Ode with all the dramatic emphasis of a troubadour of old. He told the epic story of Boston in sonorous verse.

In marked contrast to him was the orator of the occasion, Charles Francis Adams, who also told the Puritan story in incisive prose. This descendant of two Presidents told the story as a business man might tell it—logically, forcibly and in a clear voice. Markham punctuated his lines with intense gestures; Adams never made a gesture.

But there were other notable addresses. That of Mayor Curley brought forth a great burst of applause as did the finished address by Governor Allen; the patriotic words by Judge Dowd and the brief but emphatic introduction of Mayor Curley as the presiding officer by Sherman L. Whipple. The impressive invocation by Bishop Henry K. Sherrill of the Episcopal Church should not be forgotten.

WHIPPLE'S REMARKS.

After a prelude by the band, Sherman L. Whipple in introducing Mayor Curley said: "It is well for a people, as for individual, to pause in the busy activities of life and look over the past that we may get some inspiration for the future. It is now 300 years since John Winthrop and his associates came here to drink of the waters of the Rev. William Blaxton's spring which flowed near the spot where the memorial now stands.

"There is nothing that interests us more than the spirit and purpose which actuated the hardy Winthrop and his followers to leave England and settle here. It was probably both economic and religious. The evidence is preponderate that they came here to better themselves in both civic and religious freedom. These have been fundamental. Through them this has become the land of opportunity where all who merit may achieve."

Mayor Curley in accepting the office of chairman only said a few words. He made his speech later, when Judge Dowd as chairman of the Commission on Marking Historical Sites, presented the memorial foundation to the city.

METHODS OF ELIMINATING GRADE-CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

Five suggestions aimed at the elimination of grade-crossing accidents are offered in the monthly report of the Street Traffic Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

It is estimated that curing the grade-crossing evil would reduce traffic accidents by 10 per cent in a very short time, and the Committee presents the following five points for discussion:

1. Do away with those grade crossings which have the heaviest traffic.
2. Place warning signs not less than 500 feet back from the railroad tracks.
3. Take down all signs from obsolete trackage.
4. Use traffic-light signals (operated by trains) instead of signs, if there are fewer than five trains per day.
5. Consider scrapping all railroad signs in favor of signals for use only when train is approaching.

"The last two points merit consideration first, because, though they are new doctrines, they seem the least expensive and most practical of application."

FIRE DEPARTMENT ORDERS.

General Order No. 80.

I. TERCENTENARY PARADE,
SEPTEMBER 17, 1930.

The following regulations are hereby promulgated for the information and guidance of the department during the Tercentenary Parade on September 17, 1930, and will be in effect at 11 a. m. on that date and continue until the special signal is struck on department tappers after the conclusion of the parade.

The parade will start at twelve o'clock noon, and the route of march will be as follows: Beacon street, from Arlington, School street, Washington street to Dock square, Congress street, through Post Office square to Milk street, Federal street, High street, Summer street, Winter street, Tremont street, Boylston street through Park square to Columbus avenue, Berkeley street.

The following traffic lanes are established for the passage of fire apparatus through the parade, at which points a member will be detailed to facilitate the movement of apparatus:

1. Clarendon and Beacon streets.
2. Beacon and Charles streets.
3. Tremont and School streets.
4. Washington and Court streets.
- (See Note.)
5. Franklin and Federal streets.
6. Washington and Summer streets.
7. Clarendon street and Columbus avenue.

(NOTE.—The traffic lane at Washington and Court streets is established for response to Boxes 1271, 1272 and 1282.)

Prescribed routes will be temporarily suspended during this period in the parade area, and detour routes will be followed, parallel as near as possible to regular routes, the idea being not to break through the parade unless absolutely necessary and then only via the traffic lanes hereinbefore mentioned.

Engines 4 and 6, Ladders 1 and 24, in responding to boxes on the market and water side of Dock square will go through Hanover street, Elm street and Merchants row.

Back street will be kept free for the movement of fire apparatus.

Where it is necessary for apparatus to proceed against traffic in order to reach the fire without unreasonable delay company commanders are instructed to do so. It must be understood, however, that when this method of procedure is followed extreme care should be exercised in order to prevent accidents and loss of life or injury to person.

The following changes in assignments will be in effect:

WILLIAM BLAXTON RECALLED BY SECRETARY OF NAVY ADAMS ON COMMON AT DEDICATION OF FOUNDERS' MEMORIAL — SKETCHES HISTORY OF PAST.

At the dedication of the Founders' Memorial on Boston Common, Secretary Adams of the Navy spoke as follows:

In a summer of pageants and speech-making, when people of all classes are asking themselves what is meant by the words "Pilgrim" and "Puritan," we have come together to look for the first time upon a memorial to the founders of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. It matters little what we today think of this picture in bronze and granite, but it matters much how those who come after us interpret the purpose which we had in fashioning this monument. The passions and policies of the centuries to come are latent here, to be born of the figures which we see before us in bronze.

We must look into the hearts and minds of these figures if we are to get at the real significance of this momentous meeting. Winthrop's visit to the lonely inhabitant of Shawmut, later called Boston, marked the beginning of a great enterprise. As the Rev. William Blaxton walked from his home on what we now call the southern slope of Beacon Hill to watch the approach of Governor Winthrop and his friends, crossing the river from the Charlestown shore, he must have seen the whole panorama of the history of the England he knew pass through his mind. Then he may well have said to himself in grave doubt—What will be the outcome of this day's doings?

But we must go back to England if we are to understand why Blaxton and Winthrop crossed the Atlantic and stood together in Boston on that September day in 1630. The reign of James the First had been fruitful in the growth of commerce. It had penetrated the Orient, and was now reaching out to the great continents in the west. A long procession of courageous explorers had visited and even charted our coast; Sebastian Cabot and Verrazano, who are no more than names in our school books; Bartholomew Gosnold, George Weymouth, and Martin Pring, who came in close contact with our shores; and the more famous rovers of the sea, George Popham and Captain John Smith.

THE PART FISHING PLAYED.

From Smith's day forward fishing in New England brought life and color to the entire west coast of old England. From the English Plymouth, from Weymouth, and Bristol, a hundred ships and thousands of English sailors came here, each year making seasonal and semi-permanent settlements. This west of England enterprise resulted in activity before and after the founding in 1620 of our Plymouth. Blaxton, although a Lincolnshire man from a town almost within the shadow of the famous spire of old Boston, came with the west of England migration. He came with adventurers who hoped for gain or were induced by the promise of good wages; men who settled at Cape Ann, at Portsmouth, and in Maine. They belonged largely to the Established Church, with which they had no quarrel.

But on the east side of England—in the counties of Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex—were men of the best stock of the yeomanry, who had come to prize the greater religious freedom that was developing under King Charles the First. It was a time of free thought and experimentation. The Bible, in the hands of inexperienced people trying to think for themselves with little aid from education, fostered whimsical and untried doctrines. The determination to destroy symbolism, and to reconstruct church worship led to conflict with authority, for church and State were then one. The law, perhaps, dealt with laymen more gently than most historians will admit; refusal to kneel, or to remove the hat, were not serious offences. But when the clergy became rebellious the problem was more difficult. They were under oath, and they were officers of the realm.

It was in these eastern counties, the home of Winthrop, Pynchon and Cotton, that the religious issue became most acute. Many people of substance and influence began to think of New England as a place of refuge. They read Captain John Smith's books, and they sought information from other travelers. In the smallest hamlets every detail relating to the new lands was eagerly sought. The climate, methods for fishing, the language of the Red Men, the soil and minerals, all awakened interest.

STORIES OF ADVENTURE.

The cost of the voyage, the kind of food and clothing needed, the duration at sea, and the tools needed on shore—all these were subjects for keen inquiry. Stories of adventure were passed on from tavern to tavern until it is safe to say that Cape Cod and Pemaquid were known to many a farmer's boy throughout England. Especially was this true in Lincolnshire, the home county of Captain Smith, and land of lean-to houses and hay stacks. It was true, also, of London, and the west coast seaports such as Bristol, and the channel ports of Plymouth and Southampton.

Strangely enough after 300 years moving pictures have made the descendants in England of these seventeenth century boys again familiar with life in America from the Bowery of New York to the cowboys of our Western plains, as no history books ever could or did.

It is well known that the so-called persecution of the Puritans in England was an influence toward the settlement of New England. But that is far from being the whole story. Economic distress in eastern England, and in London as well, pressed hard upon the humbler people. Church tithes, and manorial exactions, kept the farm laborers poor. There was little hope of rising from manual labor, and the church could do no more than counsel the people to bear their burdens with meekness. Then the most vigorous began to feel a great hope of bettering their condition in a new land.

As the clergy began to break away from ecclesiastical forms and authority, they, too, looked for a new Canaan. They became the leaders of the hegira. Most of the ministers who came early to New England were non-conformists or even separatists. They were ready for removal to a new land where the dead hand of precedent could no longer trouble them.

THE BACKGROUND OF THE EMIGRATION.

Colonel Banks has said:

"Although technically the plantations in this new country would be under the jurisdiction of the English authorities, yet they would inevitably become disentangled from all the traditions of the past, and the opportunity to establish a liberal commonwealth was the great aspiration of those who had the courage to break away from the land of their fathers, cross an uncharted ocean, and encounter unknown perils from a savage race and from the wild beasts of the trackless forests. This is the background out of which the Great Emigration emerged."

When Winthrop arrived, with several hundred immigrants in eleven ships, there were settlements already established at Plymouth under the able historian of the colony, William Bradford; at Salem under Endicott; at Piscataqua, and at several places in Maine. Whatever the motives of all these men and women of the Great Emigration, they were the founders of our city. Intolerant, some of them were, but they had the strength, the character and the leadership to make a great community. That community has deeply influenced the history and development of this country of ours. It is fitting, therefore, that we should preserve the history of these early days, and should place a reminder in this city, of theirs and ours, which in three centuries has grown from a few rude dwellings to be one of the largest centers of population on the continent.

BLAXTON'S PART.

A significant fact in the sculptor's conception of John Winthrop's first hour on the peninsula is that one of the two central figures—the Rev. William Blaxton—was already here when the Puritans came. A little way up Spruce street, Blaxton built his house in 1625. He had a garden where the monument now stands, and here where we are gathered today the young clergyman cultivated his vegetables and his roses. Here he trimmed his apple trees and, as we say in New England, he worked about the place. On rainy days he wrote in his diary a record of the weather, and read his books, for he had a large library, judged by the standard of that time. Blaxton had come over to Weymouth in 1623, with a colony prepared to establish Episcopacy in America. It is natural, therefore, to find that he never was a member of the Puritan church, and that, as the years lengthened, he sympathized less and less with Winthrop and his followers.

These men, Winthrop and Blaxton, represent fine types of manhood that sprang into prominence on these shores. They were both tolerant by nature. They were both religious. They both ventured into the wilderness, leaving behind them comforts and friends. Winthrop, conservative in his civic thinking, a champion of organization and orderly government, was a practical politician. He had come across the Atlantic as the head of a typical English trading company. He believed that living together entailed compromise, even when his own gentler impulses were overruled by the ecclesiastical hierarchy with which he allied himself, but when the opportunity came, he and his friends, with their charter in their own hands, interpreted its provisions as they thought expedient, and transformed the company into a government molded to their own liking.

SENSITIVE INDIVIDUALIST.

Blaxton, a sensitive individualist, was a pioneer, to whom the solitude of woodland and sea had a fascination that drew him to these lonely shores. He could have enjoyed in England church preferment, to which one of his social class might have thought himself entitled, but he preferred Indian neighbors and transplanted roses for his companions. When the encroaching wave of organized civilization, for which Winthrop stood, encompassed him about, he moved to Rhode Island, where he found more hospitable surroundings.

This monument pictures also the Indians, that had inhabited New England for countless years before the white men came to settle here. It is well that they should be in the picture. They were friendly enough and taught the first settlers those rudiments of forest life that were so foreign to their life in England—the fertilizing of the furrow with fish or seaweed in order to nourish the kernel of corn, the practical use to which each kind of wood could be put, and the burning of underbrush to make the forest passable. They also taught the pioneers the value of local herbs. If the red man often grew confused when he considered the treatment he received and contemplated the God whom Winthrop feared, or the God whom Blaxton loved, came to reject both conceptions of the white man's Divine Power, it is not so very strange. This Indian was the victim of a dominant and a very imperfect autocracy.

The sculptor has introduced also into the picture the woman and the child, without whom no settlement is permanent. They were the real heroes. They endured and suffered most, and it is fair to say that they had all the courage and strength and far more beauty of character than the men.

A CITY ON A HILL.

They proclaim that on this spot Winthrop and his followers intended a city that should endure, "a city upon a hill," as Winthrop puts it, and he prophesied that the eyes of all people would be upon the Puritan builders. In this respect the Winthrop company and not Blaxton are entitled to be called the founders of Boston. But there is honor enough for all—for the Indians who look up in bewilderment into the faces of the white intruders, for the Church of England clergyman who had tended his roses and cultivated his garden for five years before Winthrop came, and for the sturdy Puritans who swarmed over Shawmut with business-like efficiency in the autumn of 1630.

The gentle young clergyman, Isaac Johnson and his wife, the Lady Arbella, married in the face of fierce parental opposition, had come here as to a haven of peace. They died of exposure. One in every four of those who arrived in the great fleet of that year succumbed. The hardy alone had survived, and of these one in every six left in discouragement, or in discontent. Those who remained to build a commonwealth were, said Governor Stoughton, "the choice grain of a whole nation sent over into this wilderness."

As one scans the list of passengers on the eleven ships of Winthrop's fleet, the Arbella, Jewel, Talbot, Charles, Mayflower, William and Francis, Hopewell, Whale, Success and Trial, these freight ships, with blunt bows and tall sterns, which had been converted into emigrant carriers, it becomes evident that the passengers were not all strictly the "choice grain of a whole nation," in the sense that Stoughton intended, but a fair selection from all grades of society.

NAMES GROWN IN LUSTER.

Some names in the list mean nothing to us today, but others have grown in luster with the years—Simon Bradstreet, distinguished through extreme old age as a wise counselor and administrator; William Coddington, gentleman, an up-builder of Rhode Island; Governor Thomas Dudley, whose letter to the Countess of Lincoln gives an invaluable picture of these first years in Boston; William Hawthorne, ancestor of the famous novelist; Isaac Johnson, gentleman, called by Dr. Prince the actual founder of Boston; the Rev. George Phillips, an independent and courageous thinker, in a group where it was not always safe to think aloud; William Pynchon, gentleman, another courageous man who went home in disgust because his religious views were not approved; Sir Richard Saltonstall, whose fine face has come down to us in portraiture, a face revealing the high character of the man who protested against the cruel and narrow faith of the first minister of Boston, the Rev. John Wilson, another passenger in the fleet. This is not the place for a catalogue of all the well-known names of those who came in the Winthrop fleet. While all grades of society are represented, there are so many names of worth that Stoughton is not far wrong in asserting that these are indeed the choice grain of a nation, sifted out for the building of a colony in the Bay.

The Puritans were consistent in their course. They came here to found a commonwealth built upon their own interpretation of the Bible. It was inevitable that those who agreed with them should be few in number, and that even among the few there should be diverging views as time went on. These Puritan leaders kept to their course as the arrow speeds to its mark. If they could not live in harmony with Roger Williams, they did not compromise, but sent him to that cave of Adullam—the Providence Plantations. Mrs. Hutchinson went the same way. Let us by all means admit the virtue of the Puritan position. Conviction meant strength, but strength little tempered with justice led to excess.

It was the government of England, the royal power, not the so-called democracy of New England, that checked the destruction of Quakers in 1661. It was the royal governor who in 1692 put a stop to the mad course of witchcraft. It was the King's ministers who finally in the new charter forced upon the Massachusetts government suffrage not based upon church membership. There was little of religious or civil liberty in early Puritan Massachusetts. For sixty years strong but ruthless Puritan control made its lasting mark upon two generations of transplanted Englishmen. They were formative years that have influenced the whole land in which we live. But time brought inevitable changes. Other ideals developed in part out of our admirable Puritan institutions, the public free school, the town meeting and representative government, but in part also out of the mingling of races on our soil. You cannot have an old and narrow civilization assaulted year by year by new races, new ideals and other religions without bringing about altered conditions. The coming of other peoples from Europe enlarged our horizon and mellowed our ancient stock. The assimilation of Old and New World ideals is the mission of America. That task had its origin here. This monument stands for the beginning of great progress in those deeper and more significant movements which contribute to a higher civilization. As Bradford puts it:

"As one small candle may light a thousand, so the light here kindled hath shown to many, yea in some sort to our whole nation." This monument brings together in one group more than one race, more than a single shade of religious faith. It may well proclaim to those who come after us the purpose of America to grow strong and great through the mingling of races and through that tolerance of each for all which is the best fruit of these three centuries.

7. Commanding officers are to take notice that it is of the greatest importance, also, that the patrolmen herein detailed report at the polling places in the various precincts promptly according to schedule.

Failure for any reason of an officer to be on hand at a polling place at the appointed time delays the sergeant in the motor vehicle in his delivery of the ballot boxes, ballots, etc., and interferes, as is plainly seen, with the balance of the delivery schedule.

8. This detail of patrolmen at the various precincts will continue until the ballots are counted and the results declared. The officers are then to bring the ballots and returns to the Election Commissioners' Office.

9. Cards with the ward and precinct number and location of voting booth printed thereon have been forwarded to the several police divisions, on which the division commander will write the name, the division number, and the number of the officer detailed at the time stated on the morning of September 16, 1930, at the voting booth of each respective precinct on his division. This card, to be given to the officer so detailed at the voting booth, will be retained in his possession until delivered by him to an employee of the Board of Election Commissioners, who will arrive accompanying a sergeant on motor vehicle from the Election Commissioners' office in the morning of September 16, with ballot boxes, ballots, etc., as hereinbefore stated.

This card, when returned by such employee to the office of the Election Commissioners, will be its receipt that the ballot boxes, ballots, etc., have arrived at their proper destination.

10. On receipt by the patrolman from the sergeant, detailed on motor vehicle, as herein provided, of registering ballot box, ballots, voting lists and such other documents as may have been received from the Election Commissioners, the patrolman detailed at polling place will deliver same to the warden or clerk of the precinct, allowing no person to take or handle them before such delivery, and hand the key of the registering ballot box to the warden. On delivery of the ballots to the warden, the patrolman will take from him a receipt for the same, which receipt will be returned to the Election Commissioners.

11. After the warden has opened the box and allowed the election officers and the public to see that it is empty, the box is to be again locked and the key given to the patrolman who is to retain it until after the polls have closed, except that, at the request of the warden, the patrolman may allow him to open the box for the purpose of pressing down the ballots, in order to make room for more ballots after which the patrolman will see that the box is again locked, and the key returned to the police officer.

12. The patrolman will obtain from the warden copies of poster, which will be sent to the latter, in relation to smoking and the use of liquor in polling places, and post same in conspicuous places where they may be easily read. Tacks will be sent for the purpose.

13. The warden will deliver to the patrolman detailed at the polling place for his use at that place a copy of the descriptive voting list, which must be returned to the warden at the close of the polls.

14. When the polls are opened, the patrolman will mark in the place indicated on the tag attached to the key the figures which the register shows before any ballots are cast.

15. At 4 p. m., Tuesday, September 16, when the polls close, one sergeant will report in each of the twenty-two wards (excepting Ward 1, East Boston, for which two sergeants and two motor trucks are provided), to meet motor vehicle at last point of morning distribution; thence to proceed to each of the several precincts in his respective ward, and receive registering ballot box (which must be locked) and key thereof, voting lists envelope, signed by the warden and other election officers, receipts for ballots, unused ballot envelope, sealed and certified (containing unused and spoiled ballots), stamps for marking spoiled ballots, receipts for ballots and check lists, carry them to the Election Commissioners' office and deliver same to some member of the Board of Election Commissioners.

16. When the polls are closed the patrolman will mark on the same tag the figures which the register shows after all ballots have been cast. He will then hand the key to the warden, who will open the box and take out all the ballots to be sorted and counted. The warden will then cause the voting lists, including the list used by the police officer, to be sealed up in an envelope and the envelope certified by the signatures of himself and the other election officers and the same returned to the Election Commissioners, as described in Section 15 of this order. The patrolman will not allow this envelope to be put into the ballot box. The sergeant who will report on motor vehicle, will keep it about his person until delivery at the office of the Election Commissioners. The unused and spoiled ballots are then to be put in the envelope for unused ballots, and the envelopes sealed and certified.

17. When returning from polls, all motor vehicles must drive to the easterly side of City Hall Annex, Court square, where ballot boxes will be conveyed by chute to the basement.

18. It is important the the patrolman sees that the voting lists envelope is signed by the warden, clerk and all the inspectors. The patrolman will also see that the special book for signatures of voters is returned in the registering ballot box.

19. In case a patrolman is detailed to relieve another after the close of the polls, the commanding officer will see that he is properly instructed as to the duty of bringing the official returns, the box of ballots cast, and the press return to the Election Commissioners' office as soon as they are delivered to him by the election officers.

20. When the ballots have all been counted, the ballots thus counted, tally sheets and nothing else, shall be placed by the warden in the leatheroid box for that purpose, the ballots to be in their separate party envelopes which must be sealed up and signed by all the election officers. The patrolman will particularly see that this box is properly sealed up and that all the election officers have signed their names to the certificate on the box. The patrolman will then bring the box, official return, record book, press return and stamps for marking defective ballots to the City Hall Annex, Court square, and deliver same to the Election Commissioners. The patrolman is directed not to allow the official return, press return or record book to be placed in the leatheroid box.

21. While the polls remain open, an officer of rank will visit the polling place in each division at stated intervals, to be designated by the captain, and in case of any disturbance will report the fact to the commanding officer of the station house without delay. If additional men are needed beyond the number available in that division, the officer in charge will communicate immediately with headquarters.

22. Attention is called to the fact that the polls at the State Primary on Tuesday, September 16, 1930, shall open at 6 o'clock a. m. and close at 4 o'clock p. m.

23. Commanding officers of divisions will see that the officers detailed for duty on State Primary Day are furnished with a copy of the circular issued by the Board of Election Commissioners, entitled: "Instructions to Police Officers on Primary . . . Days."

NOTES.

1. Attention is again called to the last paragraph of the circular, "Instructions to Police Officers on Primary . . . Days," which reads: "The police officer is directed not to allow the official return or record book to be placed in the leatheroid box."

That this may not happen (as it has in the past notwithstanding repeated instructions) in any of the precincts of this city at the coming primary, the officer of rank who will visit the polling places in each division (provided for in Section 21 of this order) shall, at an appropriate time, call to the attention of the police officer and of the warden on duty at the polls, that the official return, press return, and record book are not to be placed in the leatheroid box.

They shall be handed to the police officer who will deliver them as set out in the paragraph immediately following.

2. The officer going to the office of the Board of Election Commissioners with the leatheroid box, after the counting of the ballots, will take with him, in a separate package, the official return, press return and record book, which he shall safely deliver to the election commissioners with the leatheroid box, as provided in Section 20 of this order.

3. The police shall enforce the order that smoking is prohibited within the confines of the polling places, during the entire day, while the polls are open, as well as after they are closed.

The Board of Election Commissioners makes special request that the officers detailed at the 339 precincts be instructed to see that this is enforced.

As polling places and their approaches and exits are, in many instances, in buildings used for places of religious worship, to say nothing of the danger to valuable property from careless persons, the importance of these instructions is apparent.

4. Pastors or stickers to be used by the voter upon the official ballot may be distributed within the polling place to the voter, in such a manner as not to interfere with the voter on his way to vote, or to make any undue noise or confusion in such distribution.

5. Refreshments consisting of coffee and sandwiches will be provided by the Board of Election Commissioners at its office, for the officers detailed to report at that place on the morning of September 16.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

BOSTON AS A TOWN.

From its foundation until 1755, or a period of 125 years, Boston was not only the most outstanding but the most populous town in the American colonies. In 1760, Philadelphia's population was ahead, viz., 18,756, Boston's then being 15,631 and New York's about 14,000. In the last year of town government, viz., 1821, Boston's population was about 45,000 and its public debt $100,000, all incurred for new county buildings.

The history of Boston as a town during a period of nearly two centuries surpasses in civic interest that of Boston as a city because of the untiring zeal and successful efforts of its townsmen to realize more of true democracy than had ever been attained before. Their obligations were held as sacred as their liberties.

ALTITUDES IN BOSTON.

(1) Highest, Custom House tower, 510.71 feet, i. e., top of final above mean low water (same as "city base") or 495 feet from surface of street; (2) Bellevue Hill, West Roxbury, 376.3 feet to top of new reservoir, or about 320 feet of top of hill; (3) Bunker Hill Monument, 307.84 feet, or top of Breed's Hill, Charlestown, at base of monument, 86.44 feet; (4) Slocum Hill, near Allandale street, Jamaica Plain, about 300 feet; (5) High Fort Observatory, Highland Park, Roxbury, 291 feet, on top of hill at base of tower, 158 feet; (6) Revolution Memorial Monument, Telegraph Hill, South Boston, 270 feet, or top of hill at base of monument, 145 feet; (7) State House, top of dome, 261 feet; (8) Hill between Poplar and Dale streets, West Roxbury, near Hyde Park boundary line, about 258 feet; (9) Peters' Hill, Arnold Arboretum, 237 feet; (10) Fairmount Hill, Hyde Park, about 220 feet, Beacon Hill, now 107.89 feet (i. e., at corner of Mt. Vernon and Joy streets), was originally about as high as the base of the State House dome.

SETTLEMENT OF BOSTON, 1630.

Effected by Puritan colonists under Governor John Winthrop in the latter part of August, 1630. The name of the original settlement was changed to Boston from Trimountaine by order of the Court of Assistants on September 7, (O. S.), 1630. This date was moved forward by the new style calendar in 1752 to September 17, the recognized date of the founding of Boston. The name, Trimountaine, had been given because of the three peaks of the most prominent hill, afterward called Beacon Hill, much higher then than now. By the Indians the place was called Shawmut. The name, Boston, was derived from the English town of Boston in Lincolnshire, the home of some of the leading colonists and promoters of the enterprise.

DIMENSIONS, ETC., OF BOSTON.

Boston's greatest length, 13.8 miles, i. e., from northern end of East Boston to southern end of Hyde Park; greatest width, 7.75 miles, i. e., from Marine Park shore to western end of Brighton; median transverse width, 5.75 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Harvard Bridge to Neponset river at Blue Hill avenue; width of business center, 1.2 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Cambridge Bridge to Fort Point channel at Summer street. Geographical center of city in Roxbury, corner Walnut and Westminster avenues.

NEW ORLEANS BUILDING THREE NEW INCINERATORS.

Three new incinerators to cost a total of $700,000 are under construction at New Orleans and will add appreciably to that city's sanitation system. This will make a total of five plants where garbage can be readily disposed of. The plants, according to Commissioner of Public Property John Klorer, will be equipped in the most scientific manner with special provision for the prevention of any smoke nuisance.

The incinerators are conveniently distributed about the city, one of the new ones being almost ready for use. The one now nearing completion can handle 170 tons of garbage every 16 hours with no odor escaping, and its stacks are 125 feet high.

COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT TAXES BY MUNICIPALITIES.

The collection of delinquent taxes is often neglected by city officials, resulting in a considerable financial loss to the municipality.

The sale of property for taxes usually takes place from one to three years after the taxes have become due and after the publication of a tax sale notice for from three to six weeks. The property is sold at auction to the highest bidder provided that the bid covers the amount of taxes, all unpaid assessments, interest, fees, penalties, and other charges against the property. If the bid is not sufficient to cover these items, the city bids in the property. Property sold for taxes may be redeemed after a period varying from one to three years upon payment of sum sold for, together with interest computed at the rate of 12 per cent per annum. If the property is not redeemed within the prescribed time the purchaser is given either a deed, an estate in fee simple, or an absolute estate in fee, subject only to the lien of unpaid state and county taxes.

In two cities, White Plains and Yonkers, the tax lien is sold. This has worked out very satisfactorily. In Yonkers the problem of the collection of delinquent taxes has been cleared up:

1. By keeping the assessed valuation down to the real present market value, thereby preventing the accumulation of a large amount of uncollectible taxes.
2. By foreclosure, in one action, of large numbers of lots in one ownership.
3. By assignment of tax liens, at full value, to any one applying for same.
4. By resale, at reduced amounts, of tax liens held by the city.
5. By compromise with owners, reducing the amounts due to a sum that will make it worth while for such owners to pay up the city thereby saving foreclosure costs, and immediately placing such property on a taxpaying basis, and at the same time allowing the owners to get out with some equity. Foreclosure should never be resorted to where an owner shows any disposition to compromise.

BOSTON AREA TO WARD LINES.

Total, 30,598 acres (i. e., 47.81 square miles), 2,944 acres being filled land, 1,143 acres water area and 1,436 acres flats. Land area only, 28,019 acres (i. e., 43.78 square miles). Included in the latter are 160 acres of filled flats recently added to the land area of South Boston and 175 acres to that of East Boston.

Original Boston contained about 780 acres of land. Of the twelve leading American cities, eight are larger in land area than Boston, viz., Los Angeles (441 square miles), New York (318), Chicago (199.4), Philadelphia (129), Baltimore (91.9), Detroit (80), Cleveland (56.6) and St. Louis (61.25). The only city in Massachusetts with larger land area is Taunton (50 square miles).

If Boston should expand by annexations as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and others have expanded, its total area, in case of including the thirty-nine cities and towns within the 15-mile radius, would be second to the largest, viz., Los Angeles, the present land area of "Greater Boston" being 409.5 square miles.

CHICAGO POLICE ALLOW SPEED ON SAFETY BASIS.

Traffic police in Chicago have been ordered to make a "sane application" of the law on speeding, determining the relation of an automobile's speed to the hazards it may create, according to "Chicago Commerce," published by the Association of Commerce of that city.

Such an interpretation of the law is new to Chicago, but is based on the experience of Michigan police and of those in other states where speed limits have been legally removed in favor of the enforcement of cautious driving.

"The Illinois statute," states Police Commissioner William F. Russell, "makes it illegal to drive at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and the use of the way, or so as to endanger the life or limb or injure the property of any person."

"The following types of fast driving are particularly dangerous and must be stopped:

"Cutting in and out of traffic at excessive speed.

"Excessive speed while approaching or passing pedestrians in the street.

"Excessive speed while approaching an intersection where the view of the other street is obstructed.

"Driving at high speed on a boulevard or through street in such a manner as to prevent other drivers from entering or crossing the same after they have made the legal stop.

"Driving at excessive speed while turning a corner where pedestrians are crossing.

"Driving at excessive speed at any time where an accident results, causing injury to any person or property."

AUTOMOBILE FATALITIES.

Automobile fatalities for the months of January and February of this year, as compared with last year, decreased considerably in the cities and increased considerably in the towns and country, as indicated by the Nation-wide reports received by the National Safety Council.

These reports show that the cities had six per cent fewer automobile deaths this year than last year; 61 of the 90 cities that reported showed declines, or no changes at all, as compared with a year ago. But the state-wide reports received during the same period showed an increase of 11 per cent in fatal automobile accidents. In the total, there were an estimated 4,240 motor vehicle deaths during January and February of this year, as compared with 4,220 such fatalities during the same two months of last year.

SITUATION OF BOSTON.

Boston is situated in latitude, north, 42 degrees, 21 minutes, 29.596 seconds, longitude, west, 71 degrees, 3 minutes, 51.040 seconds (exact situation of apex of State House dome, according to United States Coast and Geodetic Survey). Boston's latitude is similar to that of Detroit and the southern boundary of Oregon, also Rome (Italy), Sofia (Bulgaria) and Mukden (Manchuria); longitude nearly that of Quebec (Canada), Bogota (Colombia) and Santiago (Chile).

LIFE-GIVING PATRIOTISM IS LOCAL.

By civic patriotism is meant the feeling and the taking of a deep, unselfish, earnest, ever-wakeful, active interest in the affairs of one's own city or local community, regarding it as having an autonomy, a distinct personality, a name and interests of its own, and, if one pleases, endowed with a sense of personal honor and with all laudable ambitions for the promotion of the welfare of its people.

Where such civic virtues exist the local community will neither suffer from the dry-rot of public indifference and neglect nor become tainted with graft or corruption. Its life will be healthful, and, like the ocean, will be kept pure by its own ceaseless flow and movement. All life-giving patriotism is local.

Show a good municipal citizen and one will see a citizen who loves his state, and who loves his nation, and who will discharge all the duties of this triple relation. Good government in local affairs is the best assurance of good government in state and national affairs.

STIMULATING WISE MUNICIPAL CONSTRUCTION.

The American people are initiating one of the most important governmental experiments ever tried on any considerable scale. For many years there have been suggestions that public projects could be made to constitute an important element of stabilization in times of economic depression. At the instance of President Hoover the states and cities of the country are about to cooperate with the Federal Government to prevent the stock market depression from spreading into business generally.

CITY RECORD

OFFICIAL CHRONICLE OF BOSTON MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

VOL. 22.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1930.

NO. 39

MAYOR CURLEY BIDS CITIZENS OF EVERY NATION IN WORLD TO LEGION CONVENTION — SPEAKS OVER RADIO AT NATIONAL HOOK-UP IN FANEUIL HALL — CALLS FOR PROGRAM OF INTER- NATIONAL COMITY THAT WILL BENEFIT ALL POSTERITY.

In his radio address over the national hook-up at Faneuil Hall, on American Legion International Broadcast, September 18, 1930, Mayor Curley said:

The City of Boston extends a cordial invitation, not only to the members of the American Legion, but to the citizens of every nation in the world to partake of the hospitality of the municipality and its people during the American Legion convention week of October 6 to 9, inclusive.

We anticipate that the parade to be held on October 7 will be in keeping both from the standpoint of numbers and excellence of detail with any that has been held since the close of the World War. The unselfish character of America's contribution in the winning of the war imposed a responsibility upon the American Legion that should be eagerly welcomed, namely, the drafting of a program that will aid in preventing in the future substitution of armament and force for reason in the settlement of national or international difference. At first glance the past appears improbable but when we reflect on the accomplishment of the last three centuries and the contribution to those accomplishments made by America it does not appear altogether improbable.

The history of these three hundred years marks the destruction of the divine right theory and the establishment of free government not only in America but in many other places throughout the world, the emancipation of the black man the world over, the conquering of many types of dread diseases whose annual toll was not infrequently more in any given years than the losses sustained through the wars between nations, the development of educational opportunities and the gradual progress for a larger measure of opportunity with a more general and generous distribution of the wealth created by the hand and brain of the worker renders it difficult to believe that an attempt at least cannot be made upon a program for national and international comity. The world looks to America now for succor and guidance in the same manner that the allied nations looked during the periods of the World War. The opportunity is here. The glories and benefits will be not only for our generation but for posterity.

In God's name, may we measure up to our opportunity.

"O Boston, fair City enthroned like a radiant queen,
From thy hills looking down on the ship-teeming plain of the ocean,
May thy future be bright, thy skies beam with light all serene,
Ensured by thy sons' and thy daughters' unselfish devotion!"
From Boston Centennial Poem by
NATHAN HASKELL DOLE.

MEN AND WOMEN WHO FOUNDED BOSTON WERE GIFTED WITH VISION AND COURAGE, MAYOR CURLEY TELLS TERCENTENARY AUDIENCE AT DEDICATION OF FOUNDERS' MEMORIAL ON COMMON.

Speaking at the dedication of the Founders' Memorial on Boston Common on September 16, Mayor Curley said in part as follows:

Your Honor, it is with inexpressible pleasure and pride that I accept from your Honor for the City of Boston this memorial to the Founders who under the leadership of Winthrop brought to American soil and to Boston in particular a charter which has served as a model for free government all over the world for the last three hundred years, and which I believe will in its provision serve to be a guide for humanity wherever man aspires to be free until the end of time.

The condition of the world was such at the time of the grant of the charter and ecclesiastical differences were so many and varied that the grantors within seven years realizing that its provisions were so revolutionary as to amount to an attack upon the divine right of kings and perhaps the eventual annihilation of that principle, relented and made almost superhuman efforts to secure its withdrawal. Nonconformity to the tenets of the established church was taking firm hold on the minds of Englishmen and the people, finding themselves forced to worship contrary to their hearts' desires looked for emancipation and naturally cast wistful eyes across the water and to the new found land.

The spirit of rebellion was rife. Men were struggling for the light and it may be said that the first rising demand for absolute freedom of conscience arose in the whole country but could be realized only in the lands across the sea. So they came across a pitiless ocean to a pitiless shore determined to suffer any thing in the way of physical privation if only their souls might be free. I have been struck particularly by the reliance which these, our forebears, placed upon a supreme being. They believed and carried out their belief in every way that unless the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it, and John Winthrop on board the "Arbella" in the year 1630 warns his companions that if they would succeed in the cause to which they had consecrated themselves they must not deal falsely with their God, that they must not forget that word which was in the beginning and that word was God.

We look around us today and we marvel as we read the history of the last three hundred years at the glory and wonder of this city of ours set upon a hill and we are prone to admire what we call the genius and the ingenuity of man but we must not forget that without the help of the creator we can do nothing and we should be eternally thankful to him for the results which we look upon with so much self-admiration and satisfaction today. These men and women who came here three hundred years ago were men and women of vision. They laid the foundations of the new government deep and strong and because of their character, their vision, their industry and their high spirituality for three hundred years the history of Boston and as a consequence the history of the United States and the world tell a tale so striking, so wonderful that we may say in the language of the scripture that in contemplation thereof the angels rejoice and the morning stars sing for joy.

At this moment a thought occurs to me. Tomorrow will be the seventeenth day of September and the birthday of the City of Boston but not Boston alone rejoices in the event, no, the echoes of our celebration are heard throughout the nation and the world. And in the south, St. Augustine, Florida, born on the same day in the year 1565 rejoices with us this day. Furthermore reminds us that on the seventeenth day of September, 1787, the Constitution of the United States was adopted at Philadelphia, a new nation became added to the sisterhood of nations.

The world looked forward with keen expectation; it seemed as if a new era had come in the history of man and those who have contemplated the history of our country since the date of the adoption of the Constitution must be aware that a new day has come and the peoples of the earth wherever oppressed have looked upon the spectacle with the same wild surprise as does the astronomer when a new planet swims into his ken. I recur to a day now almost fifty years ago. Commercialism would make a holocaust of one of our great national shrines, the old South Meeting House, sacred to the memory of Hancock, Adams and Quincy, and Warren was threatened with demolition.

The spirit of patriotism in the people which was not dead but only sleeping burst into flame. Indignation found a place at every fireside. Public meetings were held to rebuke the recreant industrialism that would invade our holy of holies. Emerson says that when a great cause is at stake just one man should speak. This man rose in the ancient pulpit of the Old Meeting House, delivered an oration inspired by the occasion and by the entire history of our country, and the great abolitionist, for it was he, Wendell Phillips, uttered a warning to Boston when he told the assembled gathering and through them told the world that anathema was launched from on high against those who defied the injunction, "Remove not the ancient landmarks of your Fathers." Your Honor, I have done, I accept with a full heart this memorial which you present to the city today through me as its custodian or trustee.

May I continue to be worthy of this sublime trust and when another hundred years or three hundred years shall have rolled by may the Mayor in that day be able to say with truth that the men and women of 1930 were so faithful to the principles taught to them by Winthrop and his companions and carried on their principles with such fidelity that we thank the men of 1930 with the same sincerity as do we now offer a special need of gratitude to the early founders. These men suffered and died for a principle. The historian marvels that a single one of them survived and that despair did not bring an end to their colony. I wonder if our task notwithstanding the advance in civilization is not greater even than theirs was. However, no matter how great, we shall have the same reliance as did these forefathers and put in God our hope. We shall do evenhanded justice to our brethren, demand the same from him. We shall do this whether as individuals or cities or commonwealths or as a nation. If we do this I have abiding faith in the perpetuity of our institutions and I have no fear that another Gibbon will take his pen in hand to write the decline and fall of the United States of America. In fine our prayer is this, "As God was with our fathers so may He be with us." "Lord God of hosts be with us yet lest we forget."

IRISH SILVER GIFT OF BOSTON TO MAYOR SALTER.

The silver Irish swan set, consisting of vase and two candle holders, presented in the name of the City of Boston by Mayor James M. Curley to His Worship Mayor Reuben Salter of England, is the product of a firm of Boston silversmiths specializing in the reproduction of ancient Irish silver.

The silversmith work in ancient days in Ireland was one of the most highly developed arts, and notwithstanding the passage of more than a thousand years no individual in the world up to the present time, not even Benvenuto Cellini, has produced anything so beautiful, artistic and chaste in conception and execution as the chalice of Ardach. The chalice of Ardach, like the book of Kells, are the two finest examples of art, one of silversmithing and the other of book illuminating, that have been produced in the history of the world.

The Irish silver table swan set presented to His Worship Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England, is a reproduction of the work of the Irish silversmiths of the 9th century and pronounced by all who have had opportunity to inspect it as of rare treasure. In silver work, nothing like it, in the minds of many experts, have they been privileged to gaze upon.

CURATOR HARKINS PRAISED FOR COURAGE IN CAPTURING LION.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 22, forwarded the following communication to Curator Daniel J. Harkins of the Franklin Park Zoo:

MY DEAR MR. HARKINS—I have read with interest in today's papers of your splendid act of heroism in capturing the lion which had escaped from its cage in a freight car at the North Station yesterday and desire to publicly commend you for your courageous act.

Such a voluntary deed as you performed, and which unquestionably averted a serious menace to the lives and safety of the public, reflects the high quality of Boston's municipal service and merits the highest praise of its citizens.

With every good and sincere wish, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

PRAISES CITY FOR PROMPT CLEANING OF STREETS AFTER PARADE.

Mayor Curley, on September 19, received the following communications from Mr. Melville D. Liming, Secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce:

"May I join with many in congratulating you and the City of Boston on the success of the great parade which you so ably sponsored and which was yesterday so skillfully executed.

"To the hundreds of thousands who saw the parade, it was a most impressive demonstration of vitality; and it will be an inspiration for many years to come.

"An interesting aftermath of the parade was the splendid work done by the street cleaning service under the direction of Commissioner Rourke and Division Engineer Post.

"We have received many expressions of satisfaction over the swiftness and completeness with which they cleared away the debris; and I thought I would pass this word along to you. This splendid work, though by no means spectacular, should not be overlooked."

MAYOR CURLEY WELCOMES MAYOR SALTER OF OLD BOSTON TO NEW BOSTON IN NOTABLE ADDRESS AT TOWN MEETING IN BOSTON GARDENS — 10,000 GATHER FOR EXERCISES.

Speaking at the Boston Town Meeting at the Boston Gardens, Mayor Curley said in part as follows:

Among the many institutions founded by the wisdom of the forefathers none has served a wiser purpose and created more admiration throughout the world than the so-called New England town meeting, and therefore it is with special fitness that the exercises tonight are called the Boston Town Meeting for there is no New England institution and Boston is the capital of New England that lies closer to the hearts of her people and binds her more closely, annihilating space and time and making sixteen thirty and nineteen thirty, one, and therefore it is that I welcome you, your worship, from Old Boston, St. Botolph's town, to new Boston, in New England.

The name of John Cotton, minister of St. Botolph's is dear to every student of the history of new Boston and to every Bostonian who loves to hear the story of the beginnings of New England. Cotton was not perfection, his attitude towards Ann Hutchinson does his memory no too great credit. His shifting from one side to another in Ann Hutchinson's tragic time mark him as one who had all the frailty of human nature in time of danger, and yet his name is spoken reverently here because we have every reason to believe that it was to his initiative more than to any other course that the first free public school in the world was set up in the wilderness that later became Boston.

The school which today is called the Boston Latin School and which was started with the same spirit which influenced the fathers to establish a college which later became Harvard College and still later in the days of Eliot and Lowell became the renowned Harvard University. If you would be convinced that the highest motives prompted Winthrop and his associates you have only to visit Cambridge and look upon the right wall of the Johnston Gate. There you will see a tablet which contains an inscription from a pamphlet published in London in 1643 called "New England's First Fruits"; the first mention in print of Harvard College. It runs thus: "After God had carried us safe to New England, and we had builded our houses, provided necessities for our livelihood, reared convenient places for God's worship, and settled the civil government, one of the next things we longed for and looked after was to advance learning and perpetuate it to posterity, dreading to leave an illiterate ministry to the churches when our present ministers shall lie in the dust." The college was first established at Newtowne in 1636 but when John Harvard, a graduate of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, England, died in 1638 at Charlestown and left his library of three hundred volumes and half his property, amounting to four hundred pounds to the infant college the name of the college was changed and ever hereafter was called Harvard College.

HARVARD'S GREAT GROWTH.

Founded in the wilderness it has grown to tremendous proportions. When Charles W. Eliot in 1869 at the age of thirty-four became president, its endowment was $2,500,000. When the great educator resigned in 1909 the endowment had grown to $20,500,000 and the institution had emerged from a small college into a great university with all the various faculties attaching thereto. In this year of grace the endowment funds totalled more than a hundred million dollars excluding lands and buildings used for educational purposes.

Note the language on the tablet further and rejoice that its first mention is of God who had carried them safely to New England, had provided the necessities of life, had reared churches and settled the form of government; then the inscription goes on to say that the next thing they yearned for was the advancement and perpetuation of learning because they did not wish to leave an illiterate ministry when their present ministers should have passed away. These ministers were learned men, most of them had been trained in universities of Oxford and Cambridge. They found in the homelands little scope for their intellectual aspirations and for the freedom of their souls, and so were content to come to America and throw their lot in with their kindred and suffer no matter what dire fate.

And while I am on this subject of education because it is the outstanding achievement of our beloved city, let me call your attention to some of the vicissitudes through which it has passed in the period of three hundred years. The old Boston Latin School, established in 1635, treasured the classics, has had an unbroken existence except for a short time during the American Revolution down to this day and is a primary argument in favor of the classics as the best mental training and discipline. It was not until about the time of the adoption of the constitution of the United States that women were accorded privileges hitherto reserved for men, and about the year 1829, but only so far as elementary training was concerned the curriculum in the elementary schools for boys became at last the treasured possession of women.

"QUINCY'S FOLLY" NO MORE FOLLY.

Meantime the population has grown apace. The erection of the immense Quincy Market in 1826, by the Great Mayor of Boston, Josiah Quincy, to supply the needs of a population of 17,000 seemed so bizarre that for years this monument to the vision of Quincy was called Quincy's folly. What do the inhabitants of Boston think of Quincy's folly today? With markets located every here and there to supply the demand of the people. I have spoken of the New England town meeting whither came every citizen to debate questions of government and there is no question that this form was the ideal, but in the early eighteen twenties an agitation was set going in view of the increase in population for a city charter, which was drafted in 1822 by the great Lemuel Shaw, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, who stands to Massachusetts law and its interpretation even as does John Marshall appointed by President Adams in 1801 stands to the Constitution of the United States.

So great were the services of Lemuel Shaw to Massachusetts that when Daniel Webster was dying and was asked what he thought had been his greatest service to his adopted State of Massachusetts, he answered, his success in prevailing upon Lemuel Shaw to drop a practice of $30,000 a year to become the Chief Justice of Massachusetts at a salary of $3,000 a year. I have heard your Worship say since you arrived upon our shores that you were chief magistrate of a little city, as compared with this Boston whose guest we have the honor to make you, but I beg you to remember that bigness and greatness are not interchangeable terms and that perhaps what you seem to lack in size or business importance at the present time you more than make up in the more necessary and enduring qualities and features.

When the great statesman Themistocles of Athens was at one time challenged to a contest on the violin he answered that he could not play on a violin but that he could make a great city out of a little one. This I take it is the duty of every chief magistrate. Wherever it is lacking in any of the qualities that make for greatness it is his business to see that the deficiencies are supplied and exhibit to the world during his incumbency a happy and prosperous people. To his Worship the Mayor of Quebec, Canada, that Gibraltar of the New World, which has given immortal fame to Gen. James Wolfe I extend a most cordial greeting. And need I say to you, sir, representing his Excellency the Governor of Massachusetts I take you to my heart. About the year 1820 Maine, becoming dissatisfied with her connection with Massachusetts, was set off from her mother and unwilling to take the name of Commonwealth became State of Maine. To the Hon. William Tudor Gardiner I extend a most cordial welcome and assure him that we are thankful for one gift he made to us, in furnishing us with a superintendent of the Boston Public Schools, a graduate of Colby University, Waterville, Maine. To the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of New Brunswick, Major General, the Hon. Hugh Havelock McLean, K. C., V. D., LL.D., Boston extends her warmest greetings. May the cordial relations which have ever existed between Canada and New England continue in their wonted course, and remain as they are for all time.

These exercises would be incomplete were not special mention made of our distinguished fellow citizen Mr. Allen Forbes, who when a request came for a subscription to repair Boston Stump collected with alacrity the sum of $50,000 and thus proved that new Boston in America is not ungrateful to old Boston in England. And I gather up the governors of all the other states in New England and outside, wish them a more than pleasant stay among them and express the hope that they will look back upon this all too brief visit to Boston with so much pleasure that it will be impossible for them to resist the impulse to come back soon. Your Worship, your stay with us is all too short. The celebration of Boston week would be like the presentation of the tragedy of Hamlet with the melancholy Dane left out. You have ungrudgingly, with no reluctance accepted our invitation and we rejoice, as does every one here rejoice, to know that you are with us to lend grace and dignity to the celebration of an event the character of which will go down the years to be a model for the anniversary celebrated every fifty years, and this will be till the end of time because our motto is no more slogan but a heartfelt prayer, prompted by faith, hope and love, "As God was with our fathers so may he be with us."

MAYOR SALTER'S PROHIBITION VIEWS NO NEWS TO MAYOR CURLEY.

The statement with reference to prohibition as published in the press on September 23, and said to have been made by His Worship Mayor Salter of Boston, England, cannot be construed in any sense as news; it is simply reiterating a statement that is made by substantially every individual that visits America.

The local prohibitionists are furious over His Worship Mayor Salter's statement that prohibition is a farce in Boston and they are now in consultation as to what they shall do in reply.

Mr. Wilcox told Mr. Johnson, that the statement of Mayor Salter was his (Salter's) opinion of what he heard and saw here. He also told Johnson that no liquor was served at any function held by the City of Boston in honor of Mayor Salter and that Mayor Salter was a teetotaler himself.

The coming of the 'Berlin,' greatly improving our service to Boston, also brings with it the first sailing from Boston of one of the North German Lloyd steamers to a French port. In addition to having service to Ireland and Germany, we can now also offer Bostonians excellent facilities to France. MAYOR CURLEY ENTERTAINS BISHOP EMMET AT CITY HALL.

Bishop Thomas Addis Emmet, who has been appointed in charge of the Jamaica Diocese, was a visitor at the office of the Mayor on September 23.

Bishop Emmet is a former South Boston boy and bears the name which has meant so much to persons of Irish lineage in the field of jurisprudence and leadership at the American bar at New York, namely, Thomas Addis Emmet.

Thomas Addis Emmet, in whose memory and honor the bishop has been named, was a member of the family which contributed so materially to the preservation and the perpetuation of the movement for Irish independence—the hero in the '98 movement—Robert Emmet.

The assignment of the bishop to Jamaica means the hardest possible character of work and in a community where the people are not overburdened with the world's goods. With a recognition of the difficulties confronting the bishop in his new field of activity in the work of God, his Honor presented him with $100 in gold, and in presenting it expressed the wish that citizens of Massachusetts generally, who are familiar with the character of sacrifice entailed in a section of the world such as that to which Bishop Emmet has been assigned, might be equally as considerate and generous.

EXTOLS CIVIL AND CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTY AS THE GIFT OF PURITANS WHO FOUNDED BOSTON — SUPERINTENDENT JEREMIAH E. BURKE DELIVERS ADDRESS AT TERCENTENARY TOWN MEETING.

We are within the Household of the Free. Here upon the soil of New England were sown the seeds of civil liberty which borne upon the wings of democracy have found lodgment in the hearts of mankind everywhere. The cabin of the "Mayflower" witnessed the birth upon this continent of popular constitutional liberty. "In the presence of God and one another," they did covenant and bind themselves together "into a civil body politic . . . to construct, enact and frame just and equal laws . . . for the general good of the whole colony."

As early as 1636 the pilgrims published a declaration of rights and established a body of laws wherein we find advanced the whole principle of free government—the whole doctrine of our republican institution—one hundred and forty years before the Declaration of Independence.

Here stuck the seed—the Pilgrim's roofless town,
Where equal rights and equal bonds were set,
Where all the people equal-franchised met;

Where crests were nought, where vulture flags were furl'd,
And common men began to own the world!

Out of these principles and in harmony with them there evolved the New England town meeting which provided a forum for the propagation of democratic sentiments. It became a training school for leadership. Here were developed such uncompromising champions of liberty as Adams, Otis, Hancock and that beau-ideal of chivalry, Dr. Joseph Warren. The town meeting was the precursor of the Declaration of Independence which reaffirmed certain natural and inalienable rights of men which are antecedent to the state—the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

From the democracy of the town meeting arose the spirit of nationality. Boston ceased to be parochial, it became American. And so when a leader of the American army was to be chosen, although Massachusetts had men worthy of that great distinction, it is not surprising to find John Adams of Massachusetts in the Continental Congress of Philadelphia two days before the battle of Bunker Hill moving that "of the forces raised or to be raised in defense of American liberties, George Washington of Virginia be appointed Commander in Chief."

FOREFATHERS IDEALISTS.

These forefathers of ours were not merely idealists, they were far-seeing statesmen. They knew that absolutism flourishes in illiteracy, but that an unenlightened democracy shall fall! They foresaw that if freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of worship and trial by jury are to abide, if free men are to counsel, make just decisions, rule wisely—then the electorate must be intelligent and virtuous as well as free. Hence the school, the common school, "New England's fairest boast, the brightest jewel that adorns her brow." Here the children of the rich and poor, high and low, meet upon perfect equality and under the same auspices begin the race of life. Here young ambition climbs his little ladder and boyish genius plumes his half-fledged wings.

The school became the bulwark and support of popular government. There are other powerful contributory forces; but it is significant that the chief agency sanctioned by this Commonwealth for its defense and perpetuity is universal and compulsory education. Popular education and democratic government became mutually interdependent, each deriving from the other elements of strength and stability.

Education and civil liberty, therefore, are one and inseparable. Without the other, neither can exist. In Boston statecraft and schoolcraft have been interchangeable. Our educators have been statesmen and our statesmen have been champions of education. Josiah Quincy, whose statue stands at the entrance of City Hall, was not only Boston's second Mayor and foremost citizen, but he was afterwards President of Harvard College. Edward Everett, whom Lafayette characterized as the "young American Cicero," was not only Governor of Massachusetts, Representative in Congress, Secretary of State in the cabinet of President Fillmore and Minister Plenipotentiary to Great Britain, but in his early years he had been Professor of Greek Literature at Harvard and in his later years he was an illustrious President of that institution.

EARLY GOVERNMENT THEOCRATIC.

The early government of Massachusetts was theocratic or ecclesiastical. The Bible, the Psalter and the Catechism were the prevailing textbooks. But with the advent of nonconformist groups came the disestablishment of church and state and the secularization of education. Not only has the teaching of religion been swept away, but in some instances instruction in the moral virtues has been relegated to a subordinate place. The modern school is as decidedly nonsectarian and nonreligious as the old-time school was sectarian and religious. It is a serious question whether the centrifugal force of these rapidly revolving wheels of progress has not hurled us out of our legitimate orbit.

We are living in a materialistic age. The machine is becoming idealized, super-dominant. If we are not careful, the machine will beat us down, crushing out our noblest human qualities.

One of the distressing effects of a materialistic civilization is the distorted outlook upon life that it provokes. Former ideals are reversed, ancient landmarks removed. Emotions, passions, desires are unleashed and to a proportionate degree spiritual qualities are enchained. What is threatened today is moral liberty, conscience, respect for the soul, the very nobility of man.

Most serious of all, the devotees of the so-called "newer freedom" repudiate the teachings of the past. They regard everything as in a constant state of flux, unstable, undefined. They deny the absolute, they reject religious sanction. Behind their anarchistic doctrines is concealed a profane dogma, namely, disbelief in God. Education in its broadest sense is called upon to substitute for the errant and delusive vagaries, the great constructive ideals of confidence and faith. It is faith that moves the world; it is that holds civilization together.

It was a veritable inspiration of his Honor the Mayor among his many statesmanlike achievements—to revive the spirit of the ancient town meeting. May we in appreciation of this memorable occasion reaffirm and proclaim anew our allegiance and devotion to the great cardinal loyalties that have inspired and sustained humanity in its perpetual struggle for individual and social freedom. And what are some of these loyalties?

Reverence for the home—family—ancestors, race, creed.

The inspiring ideal of noblesse oblige.

Loyalty to the Flag of our country; its inheritances, its institutions, its laws.

Faith to this old historic Commonwealth; to this "Rebel" city of the fathers.

Love for popular education—twin sister of democracy.

A passion for civil and religious liberty; the Declaration of Independence; the Constitution of the United States.

Fidelity to the sentiment, brotherhood of man, unqualified toleration, civil and religious.

And above and beyond everything else:

Recognition of the fatherhood of God—allegiance to an all-powerful and an all-merciful Father, who loves us all with a common love.

Our Fathers' God to Thee,
Author of liberty,
To Thee we sing:
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by Thy might,
Great God, our King.

MAYOR CURLEY ARRANGES FOR PUBLIC PRESENTATION OF REPORT ON A THOROUGHFARE PLAN FOR BOSTON TO BE OFFERED AT CITY CLUB LUNCHEON ON OCTOBER 2.

A CITY PLANNING BOARD CONTRIBUTION TO THE TRICENTENARY YEAR PROGRAM LOOKS FORWARD OVER NEXT TWENTY-FIVE YEARS IN ANTICIPATED DEVELOPMENT.

A luncheon meeting at the Boston City Club has been arranged by his Honor the Mayor on Thursday, October 2, for the purpose of affording opportunity for the public presentation of a "Report on a Thoroughfare Plan for the City of Boston," prepared by the City Planning Board with the advice and assistance of Robert Whitten, President of the American City Planning Institute, as consultant.

The report, which is accompanied by a definite construction and financial program, has for its purpose the development of a complete system of main traffic arteries throughout the city, designed to take care, not only of present, but of probable future needs for the next twenty-five years.

In its preparation the City Planning Board, through its own efforts and in cooperation with other agencies, has had the benefit of an unusually complete traffic analysis, including the determination of the origin and destination of traffic at the present time, its volume and distribution, and a forecast of its future growth. This has furnished what the City Planning Board believes to be probably the most complete factual basis for the design of highway improvements that has ever been secured by any large city.

Chapter 168 of the Acts of the year 1930 provides that the Mayor, upon recommendation of the City Planning Board, the Board of Street Commissioners, and the Board of Park Commissioners, may adopt an official thoroughfare plan "designed to include a system of major traffic streets, express roads and major traffic parkways, as well as present traffic needs in so far as they may be reasonably determined."

It is the hope of the City Planning Board that the present plan which will be made public for the first time on Thursday, October 2, may serve as the basis of the plan to be prepared under the provisions of the aforesaid act, and that it will be subjected to careful examination and constructive criticism by public and private interests to the end that it may be amended, supplemented, perfected and eventually approved as the official thoroughfare plan of the City of Boston.

The luncheon will be attended by representatives of public and private groups, including engineers, architects, city planners, landscape architects, real estate men, business interests, women's organizations, newspapers and individuals who have manifested a definite interest in the development of the city.

MAYOR CURLEY EXCORIATES INSURANCE COMMISSIONER FOR NOT LOWERING RATES.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 23, issued the following statement:

"I cannot say that I am surprised at the failure of the Insurance Commissioner to promulgate rates lower than those originally announced by him. The commissioner had the choice of complying with the request of his Excellency the Governor and the protests of many hundreds of citizens who appeared at the recent public hearing at the State House, when the tentative schedules were announced, or of obeying the command of the insurance interests which upon many occasions have had control of the insurance department of the Commonwealth.

He has preferred to yield to the insurance interests at the expense of the great automobile riding public, and has given the insurance companies everything they wanted, despite their pretense that they were not satisfied. As a sop to the public the commissioner now states that he proposes to establish rates for 1932 based upon the demerit plan, whereby the careful driver will not be penalized because of the conduct of the careless driver and he further states that he has been recently advised by the attorney-general that he may legally do so under existing law.

Each year under the present compulsory insurance law the rates have been increased by the insurance commissioner. Each year the public made protest to the commissioner, yet no effort has been made by him to remedy the situation. He was repeatedly asked to establish a demerit rating plan but always replied he had no legal authority to do so under existing law. Who gave him this legal advice? Why didn't he ask the attorney-general for advice on this matter several years ago instead of waiting until this late hour, especially when it was urged upon him long ago by many who were familiar with the subject-matter that he had full authority under the present law?

Clearly the present commissioner has shown that he is not fitted for the important office of insurance commissioner which so vitally affects a large number of our citizens. The Legislature as soon as it convenes should pass a law legislating the present commissioner out of office and should establish a demerit rating system which will be fair to both the public and the insurance interests. The Legislature had delegated too much of its power to an individual who has allowed his judgment to be warped by the great insurance interests. They have always rewarded public servants who, while in office, have been friendly to them. The former insurance commissioner is now enjoying a lucrative position with the insurance interests. Does the present commissioner defy the Governor and the public because he, too, hopes for a high-salaried position from the insurance interests."

MAYOR CURLEY PLEASED AT ANNOUNCEMENT OF CANADIAN RAILWAYS SERVICE.

Mayor Curley, on September 19, issued the following statement regarding the announcement by the National Canadian Railways of the establishment of service between Boston, West Indies and South America:

The definite announcement by the Canadian International Railways that sailings will be inaugurated between Halifax, N. S., and St. John, N. B., and West Indian Islands, including Bermuda, St. Kitts, Montserrat, Dominica, St. Lucia, Grenada, Trinidad and Demerara, with Boston as the only stop in either direction, is most pleasing news.

Some two months ago in a communication addressed to Sir Henry Thornton of the Canadian National Railways I had the very great pleasure of directing his attention to the advantages of making Boston, rather than New York, the intermediate port of entry, and the assignment of the palatial steamer "Prince Rupert" with accommodations for 300 passengers with sailings from Commonwealth Pier, starting December 20, should be most helpful to the port.

The number of persons from Canada and Provinces living in the New England States is greater than to be found in the remainder of the United States put together, and the inauguration of this service should be both profitable and popular from the beginning.

RECALLS BID FOR L STREET BATH HOUSE.

At a conference held at the office of the Mayor on September 19, at which were present the Chairman of the Park Department, Mr. William P. Long, Mr. John M. Gray, the architect, and City Auditor Rupert Carven, it was decided to reject all bids for the building of an L Street Bath House and readvertise the same.

In the specifications, as recently bid upon, there was an item of limestone, and in view of the fact that a protest had recently been made by the city and all Massachusetts interests against the use of limestone as against local material it was deemed proper to substitute cast stone for limestone, and owing to the fact that the fence represents a pile-driving job it was decided that this portion of the original contract should be later advertised as a separate contract.

Plans and specifications have been amended to conform to the wishes of all organizations and individuals interested in giving preference on public work to materials that are to be found or manufactured in Massachusetts.

MAYOR CURLEY ENTERTAINS NOTED COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL LEADERS FROM JAPAN.

A group of 17 leaders in the industrial and commercial life of Japan were guests of Mayor James M. Curley at a breakfast given at the Copley Plaza hotel on Friday morning, September 12. In the group were presidents, directors, managers and engineers connected with some of the largest industrial enterprises in Japan. The visitors were so favorably impressed with the cordiality of Mayor Curley's greeting that they quickly decided to amend their original plans, remain over in Boston another day and, after making an inspection of a number of the larger industrial plants, visit the points of historic interest.

The guests are touring the United States under the auspices of the Taylor Society, an international organization formed to promote the science and art of industrial management, of which there is a branch in New York. Henry P. Kendall, of the Kendall Company of Boston, is President of the society, and Mr. Kendall, who was one of the guests at the breakfast, was very warm in his praise of Mayor Curley's cooperation in the entertainment of the visitors. Other speakers, besides Mayor Curley, were Courtenay Crocker, Esq., president of the Japan Society of Boston; Thomas A. Mullen, Esq., director of the Commercial, Industrial and Publicity Bureau of the City of Boston; Secretary Melville D. Liming of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Haruo Acki, head of the visiting delegation.

All of the visitors are graduates of American colleges, universities and technical schools, and they were well able to understand the wholesomeness and sincerity of Mayor Curley's address of welcome, which they applauded in the warmest possible manner. Mayor Curley reminded the guests that they had arrived at the birthplace of American industry, and he expressed the hope that they would enjoy their visit to Boston as thoroughly as they might enjoy their inspection of the larger industrial plants. He recalled that only a short time ago the city had the pleasure of entertaining a number of Japanese young women, who had brought with them some 300 cherry trees to be replanted in Boston's parks, and he expressed the further hope that many of these young women might return to Boston in later years, with their children, to enjoy the fruit from those trees, which he declared were thriving in their new soil. The charm and the grace of the Japanese women on the occasion of which he spoke, Mayor Curley said, had left a most favorable impression in the minds of the people of Boston, and he said that he was equally sure that the visit of distinguished representatives of Japan's industrial life, as represented by the gathering he was then addressing, would leave a similar impression.

Mayor Curley emphasized the value of a better understanding between the peoples of the great nations of the world, and this visit, he said, would undoubtedly result in much benefit to the two nations represented at this gathering. After receiving the assent of the delegation to remain over in Boston for another day, in order that the members might have an opportunity to visit the points of historic interest, Mayor Curley delegated Mr. Thomas A. Mullen and Mr. John T. Scully, directors of the Commercial, Industrial and Publicity Bureau, to arrange a historical tour.

Mr. Kendall welcomed the guests on the part of the Taylor Society; Mr. Crocker received them in behalf of the Japan Society of Boston; Mr. Mullen related the importance of Boston to America's tremendous growth in commercial and industrial activity; and Mr. Liming spoke in behalf of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor Curley's introduction of Mr. Haruo Acki, head of the delegation, was an interesting and delightful commentary on international amity, and Mr. Acki expressed the belief that he would be unequal to responding to such an introduction. "My English," he said with a smile, "was made in Japan, and it bears the label, and I may not be able to make myself understood in a manner that expresses our appreciation of Mayor Curley's words of welcome." This brought forth a hearty laugh, for Mr. Acki speaks English in a most acceptable manner. When the laughter subsided, Mayor Curley interpolated one of numerous remarks which proved his enjoyment of the occasion, saying: "You are all right, Mr. Acki, and your English is all right—and don't forget that you speak English a great deal better than any member of this gathering can speak in the Japanese tongue." Mr. Acki joined in the general laughter which followed the Mayor's remark, and he then proceeded to tell the reason for this visit, explaining it as merely a desire on the part of the industrialists of Japan to observe what is being done on this side of the water. He expressed the hope that Americans would visit Japan for the same purpose, and referred to the fact that Japan was glad to receive a representative group of Americans on a similar mission some time ago. All that the world needs to be happier, he stated, is a better understanding between the peoples which inhabit it.

The visiting delegation was made up of the following-named gentlemen, to which has been added their industrial connections in Japan:

Haruo Acki, Engineering Department, Naigai Amimono (Knitting) Kaisha; Riichi Ezaki, President, Ezaki Company, Limited (Confectionery); Yoshizo Furuya, Director, Koshinsha Milk Plant; Ippei Iino, Chief Director, Nippon Toki (Porcelain), Kaisha; Jun Isagawa, Engineer, Nitto Plaster Works; Risaburo Kato, Director, Nippon Toki (Porcelain) Kaisha; Tetsujiro Mizusaki, Works Manager, Chiyoda Shoe Factory; Kozo Nishikawa, Engineer, Toyo Toki (Porcelain) Kaisha; Kadzue Oishi, Works Manager, Chiyoda Shoe Factory; Bungen Suzuki, Managing Department, Meiji Confectionery Company; Keizo Tsujimoto, Director, Fukusuke Tabi (Socks) Company, Limited; Kijiro Takano, Chief Engineer, the Engineering Section, Dairen Railway Workshop, the South Manchuria Railway Company; Tomikichi Takeda, Chief Engineer, Japan Bridge Company, Limited; Rimpei Tominaga, Manager, Koshinsha Milk Plant; Yoichi Ueno, Chief Director, the Japanese Branch of the Taylor Society; Shinzo Yoshida, Planning Department, the Nakayama Taiyodo (Toilet Articles).

MY DEAR MAYOR CURLEY,—I have the honor to convey to you on behalf of the Municipality of Berlin the most cordial congratulations on the Tercentenary which the City of Boston is now celebrating and to send you, in its name and as a token of sympathy and interest, a collection of etchings representing views on ancient and modern sites in the capital of Germany.

The Mayor has approved the order of the Board of Street Commissioners for the taking of land for sewerage works to be constructed as follows:

The right and easement is taken to lay and maintain sewerage works in the following described lands, exclusive of any interest in trees, buildings or other structures standing thereon, reserving to the owners thereof the right to use the lands for any purpose except such as may injure or obstruct said works, and except for placing or maintaining any structure on said lands not authorized in writing by the Mayor of said city; trees, buildings or other structures standing upon or affixed to the land in which an easement is hereby taken are to be removed therefrom within sixty days following a notice of the city's intention to enter upon said taking for the purpose of constructing said sewerage works. Said lands are in that part of Boston known as Boston proper and are bounded as follows:

A parcel of land, owners unknown, being part of Alley No. 801, bounded:

The sewerage works to be constructed are as follows: 412 feet of 12-inch pipe sewer; 261 feet of 15-inch pipe surface drain, and 144 feet of 12-inch pipe surface drain.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

General Order No. 101.

I am in receipt of a communication from the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, calling attention to the provision of law which requires all owners or persons in control of a motor vehicle or trailer in the Commonwealth to submit such vehicle during the period from August 1 to September 30, 1930, inclusive, for an inspection to determine whether or not it is properly equipped and maintained in good working order as required by section 7, chapter 90 of the General Laws, if such vehicle is operated or used upon any way during such period.

In order to prevent embarrassment for owners or operators who have not as yet complied with this provision of law, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles has requested the Police Department to distribute "Warning Notices" which are being sent to the various divisions today.

Officers are directed to give these notices to the operators of cars without stickers coming to their attention. Very effective use of these notices may also be made by placing one, printed side toward the glass, under the windshield, upon each parked car observed without a sticker within the limits of our jurisdiction. It is the intention of the registrar to revoke the registrations of all motor vehicles which have not been submitted for inspection before October 1.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

General Order No. 102.

It has been called to my attention that many of the officers in the department are under the impression that it is not part of their duty to see that building, health and fire laws are obeyed. The impression seems to be that all violations of these laws must be discovered and prosecuted by the various departments, and that the police officer has no obligation to report or attempt to stop any violation of these laws and ordinances.

All officers of the Police Department must understand that it is part of their duty to stop and report immediately violations of building, health and fire laws, or any municipal ordinance occurring on their routes. Police officers are employees of the City of Boston, and it is their duty to aid every other department of the city to function properly by reporting to their division commanders any condition which comes under the supervision of any department of the City of Boston. A police officer's duty is to preserve the lives and property of the public, as well as to prevent and detect crime.

Division commanders, in emergency cases, shall immediately notify Headquarters by telephone, to be followed by report. In all other cases report should be made to Headquarters within twenty-four hours.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ORDERS.General Order No. 84.

GEORGE JOSEPH CORCORAN.

Hoseman Corcoran was appointed to the department on December 23, 1929, and was assigned to Engine Company 13.

The members of Engine Company 13 will be excused from duty in order to attend the funeral, and the Chief of Department will make the customary detail as a funeral escort. The detail will report to District Chief Louis C. I. Stickel at the quarters of Engine Company 14 at 8.15 a. m. Members of the department who wish to join the detail are invited to do so and sufficient time will be allowed to men to report to the District Chief.

By order of Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY A. FOX,

E. T. SLATTERY COMPANY'S HEAD THANKED FOR PARADE COURTESY.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 22, forwarded the following letter to Mr. P. A. O'Connell, of the E. T. Slattery Company:

MY DEAR P. A.—I want to express to you my sincere thanks for the very great courtesy extended not only to myself, but to Boston's guest, the Lord Mayor of Boston, England, upon the occasion of the recent Tercentenary parade. Through your foresight and generosity it was possible for both the Lord Mayor and myself to view from the reviewing stand two very excellent likenesses.

Your thoughtfulness was further demonstrated by sending these two portraits to the Mayor's office after the parade, and which were the center of the decorations in the dining hall at the banquet tendered his worship by the City of Boston, at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

The public spirit which you have shown, not only in the matter of the Tercentenary celebration, but in your general attitude towards the question of industrial depression, as evidenced by the refusal of your concern to either reduce the salaries of employees or to discharge a single one at a time when others were taking advantage of the depression to do the very things that promote depression, is most commendable. I trust its reflex will be represented by increased business for your concern.

With every good and sincere wish, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

MAYOR CURLEY CONTRIBUTES TO LIPTON CUP FUND.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 22, addressed the following communication to Mr. Edmund L. Dolan, City Treasurer:

MY DEAR MR. DOLAN,—The exceptional character of good sportsmanship displayed by Sir Thomas Lipton in his repeated endeavors to win the international yacht cup races has earned for him the sympathy and admiration of the people of two continents.

The idea as advanced by Will Rogers, and put into execution by Hon. James J. Walker, Mayor of New York, is in my opinion worthy of emulation, and I accordingly beg to inclose $1 as my contribution towards the raising of a fund to be sent in the name of the people of Boston, and of Massachusetts, to the fund being raised for the presentation of a loving cup to one who has earned the right to receive same.

Trusting that you will accept of this pleasing labor and that the contribution from the people of Massachusetts may prove a generous one, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

This amount covers the installation of a new two-inch water supply to the Nurses' Home, new concrete floors in Rooms 1, 2, 9, 10 and 14, including the removal of the present concrete, filling under the floors, cutting and slotting masonry, new reinforced concrete floor, waterproofing, and for cutting and facing of stone walls which protrude in areas.

BOSTON AS A TOWN.

From its foundation until 1755, or a period of 125 years, Boston was not only the most outstanding but the most populous town in the American colonies. In 1760, Philadelphia's population was ahead, viz., 18,756, Boston's then being 15,631 and New York's about 14,000. In the last year of town government, viz., 1821, Boston's population was about 45,000 and its public debt $100,000, all incurred for new county buildings.

The history of Boston as a town during a period of nearly two centuries surpasses in civic interest that of Boston as a city because of the untiring zeal and successful efforts of its townsmen to realize more of true democracy than had ever been attained before. Their obligations were held as sacred as their liberties.

ALTITUDES IN BOSTON.

(1) Highest, Custom House tower, 510.71 feet, i. e., top of final above mean low water (same as "city base") or 495 feet from surface of street; (2) Bellevue Hill, West Roxbury, 376.3 feet to top of new reservoir, or about 320 feet of top of hill; (3) Bunker Hill Monument, 307.84 feet, or top of Breed's Hill, Charlestown, at base of monument, 86.44 feet; (4) Slocum Hill, near Allandale street, Jamaica Plain, about 300 feet; (5) High Fort Observatory, Highland Park, Roxbury, 291 feet, on top of hill at base of tower, 158 feet; (6) Revolution Memorial Monument, Telegraph Hill, South Boston, 270 feet, or top of hill at base of monument, 145 feet; (7) State House, top of dome, 261 feet; (8) Hill between Poplar and Dale streets, West Roxbury, near Hyde Park boundary line, about 258 feet; (9) Peters' Hill, Arnold Arboretum, 237 feet; (10) Fairmount Hill, Hyde Park, about 220 feet, Beacon Hill, now 107.89 feet (i. e., at corner of Mt. SETTLEMENT OF BOSTON, 1630.

Effected by Puritan colonists under Governor John Winthrop in the latter part of August, 1630. The name of the original settlement was changed to Boston from Trimountaine by order of the Court of Assistants on September 7, (O. S.), 1630. This date was moved forward by the new style calendar in 1752 to September 17, the recognized date of the founding of Boston. The name, Trimountaine, had been given because of the three peaks of the most prominent hill, afterward called Beacon Hill, much higher than now. By the Indians the place was called Shawmut. The name, Boston, was derived from the English town of Boston in Lincolnshire, the home of some of the leading colonists and promoters of the enterprise.

DIMENSIONS, ETC., OF BOSTON.

Boston's greatest length, 13.8 miles, i. e., from northern end of East Boston to southern end of Hyde Park; greatest width, 7.75 miles, i. e., from Marine Park shore to western end of Brighton; median transverse width, 5.75 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Harvard Bridge to Neponset river at Blue Hill avenue; width of business center, 1.2 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Cambridge Bridge to Fort Point channel at Summer street. Geographical center of city in Roxbury, corner Walnut and Westminster avenues.

NEW ORLEANS BUILDING THREE NEW INCINERATORS.

Three new incinerators to cost a total of $700,000 are under construction at New Orleans and will add appreciably to that city's sanitation system. This will make a total of five plants where garbage can be readily disposed of. The plants, according to Commissioner of Public Property John Klorer, will be equipped in the most scientific manner with special provision for the prevention of any smoke nuisance.

The incinerators are conveniently distributed about the city, one of the new ones being almost ready for use. The one now nearing completion can handle 170 tons of garbage every 16 hours with no odor escaping, and its stacks are 125 feet high.

COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT TAXES BY MUNICIPALITIES.

The collection of delinquent taxes is often neglected by city officials, resulting in a considerable financial loss to the municipality.

The sale of property for taxes usually takes place from one to three years after the taxes have become due and after the publication of a tax sale notice for from three to six weeks. The property is sold at auction to the highest bidder provided that the bid covers the amount of taxes, all unpaid assessments, interest, fees, penalties, and other charges against the property. If the bid is not sufficient to cover these items, the city bids in the property. Property sold for taxes may be redeemed after a period varying from one to three years upon payment of sum sold for, together with interest computed at the rate of 12 per cent per annum. If the property is not redeemed within the prescribed time the purchaser is given either a deed, an estate in fee simple, or an absolute estate in fee, subject only to the lien of unpaid state and county taxes.

In two cities, White Plains and Yonkers, the tax lien is sold. This has worked out very satisfactorily. In Yonkers the problem of the collection of delinquent taxes has been cleared up:

1. By keeping the assessed valuation down to the real present market value, thereby preventing the accumulation of a large amount of uncollectible taxes.
2. By foreclosure, in one action, of large numbers of lots in one ownership.
3. By assignment of tax liens, at full value, to any one applying for same.
4. By resale, at reduced amounts, of tax liens held by the city.
5. By compromise with owners, reducing the amounts due to a sum that will make it worth while for such owners to pay up the city thereby saving foreclosure costs, and immediately placing such property on a taxpaying basis, and at the same time allowing the owners to get out with some equity. Foreclosure should never be resorted to where an owner shows any disposition to compromise.

BOSTON AREA TO WARD LINES.

Total, 30,598 acres (i. e., 47.81 square miles), 2,944 acres being filled land, 1,143 acres water area and 1,436 acres flats. Land area only, 28,019 acres (i. e., 43.78 square miles). Included in the latter are 160 acres of filled flats recently added to the land area of South Boston and 175 acres to that of East Boston.

Original Boston contained about 780 acres of land. Of the twelve leading American cities, eight are larger in land area than Boston, viz., Los Angeles (441 square miles), New York (318), Chicago (199.4), Philadelphia (129), Baltimore (91.9), Detroit (80), Cleveland (56.6) and St. Louis (61.25). The only city in Massachusetts with larger land area is Taunton (50 square miles).

If Boston should expand by annexations as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and others have expanded, its total area, in case of including the thirty-nine cities and towns within the 15-mile radius, would be second to the largest, viz., Los Angeles, the present land area of "Greater Boston" being 409.5 square miles.

CHICAGO POLICE ALLOW SPEED ON SAFETY BASIS.

Traffic police in Chicago have been ordered to make a "sane application" of the law on speeding, determining the relation of an automobile's speed to the hazards it may create, according to "Chicago Commerce," published by the Association of Commerce of that city.

Such an interpretation of the law is new to Chicago, but is based on the experience of Michigan police and of those in other states where speed limits have been legally removed in favor of the enforcement of cautious driving.

"The Illinois statute," states Police Commissioner William F. Russell, "makes it illegal to drive at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and the use of the way, or so as to endanger the life or limb or injure the property of any person."

"The following types of fast driving are particularly dangerous and must be stopped:

"Cutting in and out of traffic at excessive speed.

"Excessive speed while approaching or passing pedestrians in the street.

"Excessive speed while approaching an intersection where the view of the other street is obstructed.

"Driving at high speed on a boulevard or through street in such a manner as to prevent other drivers from entering or crossing the same after they have made the legal stop.

"Driving at excessive speed while turning a corner where pedestrians are crossing.

"Driving at excessive speed at any time where an accident results, causing injury to any person or property."

AUTOMOBILE FATALITIES.

Automobile fatalities for the months of January and February of this year, as compared with last year, decreased considerably in the cities and increased considerably in the towns and country, as indicated by the Nation-wide reports received by the National Safety Council.

These reports show that the cities had six per cent fewer automobile deaths this year than last year; 61 of the 90 cities that reported showed declines, or no changes at all, as compared with a year ago. But the state-wide reports received during the same period showed an increase of 11 per cent in fatal automobile accidents. In the total, there were an estimated 4,240 motor vehicle deaths during January and February of this year, as compared with 4,220 such fatalities during the same two months of last year.

SITUATION OF BOSTON.

Boston is situated in latitude, north, 42 degrees, 21 minutes, 29.596 seconds, longitude, west, 71 degrees, 3 minutes, 51.040 seconds (exact situation of apex of State House dome, according to United States Coast and Geodetic Survey). Boston's latitude is similar to that of Detroit and the southern boundary of Oregon, also Rome (Italy), Sofia (Bulgaria) and Mukden (Manchuria); longitude nearly that of Quebec (Canada), Bogota (Colombia) and Santiago (Chile).

INSURANCE OF CITY AUTOMOBILES.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, August 12, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen,—I beg to forward herewith legal opinion of the Corporation Counsel for the City of Boston, the same constituting a reply to the order adopted by your honorable body under date of May 12, 1930.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Law Department, July 21, 1930.
Hon. James M. Curley,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Sir,—This is in reply to a request of the City Council contained in an order dated May 12, 1930, which order is as follows:

"That the Corporation Counsel be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to report to the Boston City Council as to the advisability and feasibility of placing personal and property damage liability insurance on city owned automobiles and automobile trucks."

Cities cannot raise and appropriate money except for the purposes for which, within the scope of the Legislature's constitutional power, they are expressly or by fair implication authorized by statute to raise and appropriate. This is the doctrine of the early, the late, and many intervening decisions. Stetson v. Kempton, 13 Mass. 272,—Whiting v. Holyoke, Advanced Sheets, Supreme Judicial Court, 1930, page 1505.

The authority to expend money is contained in chapter 40 of the General Laws.

Section 5, paragraph 1, of said chapter 40, provides that a city may appropriate money:

"To pay a proper charge of an insurance company for acting as surety on the official bond of any town officer."

There is no other reference in the statute to the payment for insurance, and as Clause 1 has dealt with the matter of insurance it has thereby limited the power of appropriating for insurance. Greenough v. Wakefield, 127 Mass. 275.

Paragraph 30 of said section 5, provides that a city may appropriate money:

"For the compensation of all town officers whose election or appointment is authorized or required by law, and for all other necessary charges arising in such town."

The words here used "for all other necessary charges against such town" are to be given a very limited construction. In Flood v. Lahey, 183 Mass. 232, the Court said:

"It is to be noted that the duty, right or interest must be corporate as distinguished from the individual duty, right or interest of the inhabitants of the town. No matter how important or general these individual rights or duties are, they do not thereby become corporate within the meaning of the rule."

This case decided that a town had no authority to borrow money for the purpose of paying counsel in order to procure the insertion of conditions in the grant of a location by the selectmen to the street railway company relating to residents and wages to laborers who are to be employed, or the rate of fare to be established.

It was said in Spaulding v. Peabody, 153 Mass. 129, in relation to the phrase "for all other necessary charges in such town," "but it is plain, from an examination of the course of legislation, that this phrase has been considered as of very limited scope, and that the Legislature has generally thought it necessary specifically to confer the authority, if the inhabitants of towns were to have the power to grant money for purposes not recognized as a municipal duty by the early usage of towns." They further state "it is well settled by our decisions that towns derive all their authority to tax their inhabitants from the statutes; if the authority to tax for a particular purpose is not found there, either in express terms or by necessary implication, it does not exist. The only exception to this rule is confined to a few cases of usage relating to the comfort and convenience of the inhabitants of a town, such as town clocks, hay-scales, pumps, reservoirs, etc., and is not to be extended."

I am unable to find any indication in the existing statutes that the Legislature intended to make provision for the exercise of any such authority as is herein suggested.

If it be argued, however, that the automobile is a recent means of locomotion, and has created a new hazard which should be dealt with, the decisions of our courts definitely determine the liability of municipalities for negligence of its employees. In the absence of special statutes imposing liability, a municipality is not liable for tortious acts of its officers and servants in connection with the gratuitous performance of strictly public functions imposed by mandate of the Legislature or undertaken voluntarily by its permission, from which there is derived no special corporate advantage, or pecuniary profit. Bolster v. Lawrence, 225 Mass. at 389. So that as far as the question of feasibility is concerned there is no merit to it.

If it be argued further that there is a liability upon the municipality where the negligence is occasioned by one who is employed in a division of the city which is in its nature commercial, viz., the Water Department, and that, therefore, it might be a saving of the taxpayer's money to place insurance on the automobiles and automobile trucks employed in the work of such department, said liability being borne directly by the taxpayer, and that insurance would, therefore, be advantageous to the inhabitants of the municipality, I quote Anthony v. Adams, 1 Metcalf, at 287, in which the Court said:

"A case may be imagined, in which it would be for the interest of a town to incur expense in executing some work not within their corporate power, in order to avoid a still heavier expense in performing their legal duty. A town might be so situated that it would be cheaper to make and maintain a canal, than to make and maintain a road, with its necessary bridges and embankments. But a town is authorized and may be required to build a road, and the act would be a corporate duty, by the performance of which the town might raise money by taxes, make contracts, employ officers and agents, for whose care, skill and fidelity they would be responsible. But a town cannot be required by law, nor have they any authority, to dig a canal; and any vote, contract, or corporate act done in reference to such a purpose would be nugatory. A town might be so situated near the outlet of a lake or pond, where a road would be liable to be flooded and damaged by freshets and where a heavy expense would be required for the necessary bridges and embankments, but by cutting a canal and making a new outlet at the opposite side of the lake, at some distance, this expense might be saved. This would hardly be sufficient to raise a constructive power in the town, to undertake such distant canal, or to confer an authority on county commissioners to require it. It would lead to a latitude of construction, in regard to corporate powers and duties, which would be in a high degree dangerous. Such a case can seldom occur, and when it does, and is of sufficient importance, it is better to leave it to be provided for by a special act of the Legislature, which is the source and fountain of all public authority. Such an authority may be adapted to the particular case, and limited and modified, as the circumstances of each case may require."

Section 21 of said chapter 40, paragraph 1, provides:

"For directing and managing their prudential affairs, preserving peace and good order, and maintaining their internal police."

What is meant by the "prudential affairs" of a town was considered in the case of Willard v. Newburyport, 12 Pickering, at 231, and it was there said by Chief Justice Shaw, that:

"Perhaps no better approximation to an exact description can be made, than to say that it embraces that large class of miscellaneous subjects affecting the accommodation and convenience of the inhabitants, which have been placed under the municipal jurisdiction of towns, by statute or by usage."

The insurance of automobiles and automobile trucks is in no sense either an accommodation or convenience to the inhabitants of the municipality, nor can it come within the terms of the word "usage."

Therefore, in answering your question categorically, I am of the opinion that it is neither advisable nor feasible to place personal and property damage liability insurance on city owned automobiles and automobile trucks, and further add that it is my opinion that this cannot be done legally.

Very truly yours,
SAMUEL SILVERMAN,
Corporation Counsel.

Coun. KELLY offered the following:

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested to consider the advisability of inserting a clause in all contracts for city work providing that workmen employed thereon shall be legal residents of Boston.

Coun. KELLY—Mr. President, I am introducing this order on account of a few things I found out in the past month or two. A number of contractors from out of town have come into Boston and obtained contracts to do city work. Instead of giving work to Boston men who are loafing—and we all know there are a great number of them loafing at the present time—some of these contractors are so brazen that despite the protests of a councilor they will put a man to work from out of town, in preference to a Bostonian. Only last week, on the carpenter job that is being done on the Boston Common, one of my constituents was employed as a carpenter, a union man, right from my ward, a lifelong resident. After three days' work, although there was fifteen days' work there, he was laid off, and to my amazement I found out that the man who supplanted him was a Watertown resident. I think it is high time that the people of Boston who are paying taxes to the City of Boston, but who are out of work, should be taken care of first. I know it is not legal, I know it is not binding, I know you cannot compel a contractor to go out and hire a Boston man. But I say this, let us do as other cities do, whether it takes the Mayor or the head of a department to do it, and if a contractor persists in hiring out of town men in preference to Boston men who are out of work, let that contractor be shut off from getting any further contracts. That is what is done out of town, and it is high time that Boston did it, and I don't care who does it, whether it is the Mayor that has to do it, or whether it is the heads of the departments, or the Law Department. I move you, sir, that this order be passed under suspension of the rule.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

REPAVING OF ORCHARD STREET.

Coun. MURRAY offered the following:

Ordered, That the Commissioner of Public Works be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to repave with smooth paving Orchard street, Ward 19.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

DISCONTINUANCE OF ZONE SYSTEM, ELEVATED RAILWAY.

Coun. POWER offered the following:

Ordered, That the Public Trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to discontinue the present zone system along Huntington avenue, and to restore the previous system.

Coun. POWER—Mr. President, in introducing this order I did so because we feel out in Roxbury that the Boston Elevated Railway have discriminated against us. A week ago the new zone system was introduced by the Elevated. Everyone thought it was a wonderful thing. They were going to reduce the fare from 6½ cents in the zones to 5 cents. We all know that the Elevated needs more revenue, and to get it they have to educate the people to do more car riding, and they have to get the goodwill of the people also. But today they are not getting the goodwill of the people, because with the new system and the 5-cent fares in the zones on Huntington avenue, instead of a decrease it is an increase from 6½ cents to 10 cents. Now, we all noticed yesterday in the paper how the Mayor is going to call a meeting tomorrow of experts to discuss the advisability of hastening the extension of the subway along Huntington avenue to Brookline Village. Why is he doing this? Because the Huntington avenue line is the most congested line in the whole City of Boston, and he knows as well as everyone else that there are more car riders on this line than on any other line in the city. It is for that reason that it is necessary to have this subway extended out to Brookline Village. What did the Elevated do? Instead of leaving it a 6½ cent zone, as it was originally, they increased the fare to 10 cents. Why? Because as we all know, the line is the heaviest line, and by so increasing the fare the Elevated is going to make more money. That is where they put the real 10 cent fare in. We are not expected to pay the loss of revenue of the Elevated for the last couple of months. Why don't they do it all over the city as well as in our section? The people of Brookline, Chestnut Hill, Forest Hills, Allston and Brighton ride five, six or seven miles for a nickel, while we in Roxbury ride about a mile and a half and have to pay a dime. What is the reason for the change? Nobody knows. We don't know whether the officials did it or the employees. There is a joker there somewhere. Here is the new warrant they issue on the line, just the same as before—"Francis Street, Public Gardens, Huntington Avenue" printed right here on the new warrant. But some bright member of the officials got the bright idea that they could make more money by discontinuing that line, and they put a pencil mark right through the same line that they originally had. That is not fair. It is the only line in the City of Boston where they have increased the fare from 6½ cents to 10 cents, and we demand that they restore the original zone fare. It is not fair at all that people riding for six or seven miles should only pay a nickel, and that we should pay 10 cents for riding a mile and a quarter. Why not bring it back to Francis street? They have put it through to Massachusetts avenue now, which is wrong. Why not have the cars start and stop at Francis street, just the same as before. The warrants are the same, the line is the same, and the only thing that is changed is the fare. So we in Roxbury demand that the Elevated go back to their old zone and discontinue the new one. We do not want it. It is discriminating against us. And, Mr. President, I ask you to suspend the rule and pass this order.

Coun. DONOVAN—Mr. President, I heartily agree with everything Councilor Power has said with reference to Roxbury, but I believe the same condition prevails about the entire city. The transportation facilities of our city are disgraceful. At the present time in East Boston we have an antiquated car service, something that was in use twenty years ago. They have taken away the transfer privilege in East Boston, and if we ride less than a mile we have to pay 10 cents. We are confronted with the same situation in East Boston, and it is high time that an order of this kind was introduced, and I hope this order passes.

Coun. ARNOLD—I want to concur in what one of my contiguous colleagues have just said, as a part of my ward includes the district of which Councilor Power has so well spoken. I received this morning a very formidable petition from the residents in that particular end of my district, which includes a part of Mission Hill and the area on either side of Huntington avenue. We were glad when we got the announcement that the 6½-cent fare was going to be abolished and a 5-cent fare substituted instead, but we were very much surprised when we found that instead of a decrease there was an actual increase to a great number of people in that particular part of Boston which he and I represent.

The order was passed under suspension of the rule.

ACCEPTANCE OF OAK GROVE TERRACE AND AUBURN PLACE.

Coun. GLEASON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Board of Street Commissioners be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to accept and lay out Oak Grove terrace and Auburn place, Ward 9, as a public thoroughfare from Rugles street to Auburn street.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

RESURFACING OF NEWLAND STREET.

Coun. GLEASON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Commissioner of Public Works be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to resurface Newland street, from Concord street to Rutland street, Ward 9.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

REPAVING CUMSTON STREET.

Coun. GLEASON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Commissioner of Public Works be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to repave Cumston street, Ward 9, with smooth paving.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

On motion of Coun. FITZGERALD the Council took up for consideration No. 15 on the calendar, under unfinished business, viz.:

15. Ordered, That the sum of fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars be, and the same hereby is, appropriated, to be expended by the Commissioner of Institutions for Power Plant, Long Island Hospital, alterations and improvements, and that to meet said appropriation the City Treasurer be, and he hereby is, authorized to issue, from time to time, upon request of the Mayor, bonds or certificates of indebtedness of the City of Boston to said amount.

Coun. MURRAY—Mr. President, at one of our meetings it was stated by Mr. Maguire that the engineer for the Finance Commission, Mr. Emerson, said that the plant at Long Island was dangerous, and he advised its discontinuance. I have a letter here from the engineer for the Finance Commission which I would like to have the Clerk read, and I would also like to have his report printed in the record.

The clerk read the letters as follows:

The Finance Commission of the City of Boston,
24 School Street,
Boston, August 20, 1930.

MR. PETER A. MURRAY, City Councilor, City Hall, Boston.

Dear Sir,—Replying to your letter of August 18, I inclose a copy of my report, made after an investigation of the condition of the power plant at Long Island Hospital.

If you will read pages 14 and 15, under the heading "Future Policy" I believe it will answer the question asked by you. The statements therein contained represented my opinions at the time, and I have since seen no reason to change them. I have made no statements since inconsistent with the statement of my report.

I do not feel that the coal pulverizers are a source of danger under competent supervision, neither should there be any future trouble with the boilers under the same conditions.

If you have occasion to read the remainder of the report, particularly pages 11, 12 and 13, you will learn that in my opinion the troubles were probably due to the misuse of boiler compound. In my opinion this was the primary cause of the trouble, although oil in the return water from the radiators may have been a contributory cause.

On page 14 I refer to the plant at Deer Island as one in which coal pulverizers are in successful use in connection with the return tubular boilers. This statement was made after consultation with competent experts acquainted with the plant. Since writing my report there have been many statements indicating that the plant at Deer Island has not proved to be satisfactory. Whatever may be the facts, there is no reason to change my statement that "there are many small pulverized coal plants now in successful operation with return tubular boilers."

There is no question that the installation of pulverizers in connection with the plant at Long Island has introduced an element that increased somewhat, as compared with hand-fired boilers, the danger on account of unskillfulness on the part of the boiler room force.

Very truly yours,
GUY EMERSON,
Consulting Engineer.

To the Finance Commission.
March 24, 1930.

Gentlemen,—There has been submitted to me by the chairman a letter from Mr. John J. Lydon, Acting Commissioner of Institutions of the City of Boston, to which is appended a report in relation to certain accidents to the boilers in the new boiler plant at the Long Island Hospital. This report was made jointly by Edward F. Miller, Professor of Mechanical Engineering, and Major A. S. Smith, Superintendent of Buildings and Plant, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

After studying the procedure at Long Island, it appears to me that the Finance Commission should have more extended information regarding affairs at Long Island than is contained in the report of Messrs. Miller and Smith only. I therefore submit my report in two parts: Part I, relating to the accidents in question and their probable cause; and Part II, dealing with the details of the various contracts made on account of installing the new boiler plant, together with the additions and changes made and the high cost of the completed work.

PART I.

Following is an outline of the operations at Long Island, leading up to the accidents to the boilers in the power plant at Long Island on February 14, 1930, and on subsequent dates.

Some time in the year 1928 the officials in charge of the Long Island Hospital decided to replace the boilers then in the power plant with new boilers. Plans were prepared under the supervision of James H. Ritchie and Associates, architects, and engineers. The original plans contemplated replacing the seven boilers in the old plant with four new return tubular boilers. Two of the new boilers were to be 84 inches in diameter. They were to work at a comparatively high steam pressure of 110 pounds per square inch, and they were to be equipped with pulverized coal burning apparatus. The two remaining boilers were to be 72 inches in diameter. They were to work at a comparatively low pressure of about 15 pounds per square inch and were to be hand fired.

Competitive bids for the work were received and the contract was awarded to J. P. Dwyer Company, the lowest of three bidders, at a price for the completed work of $68,300. The contract was approved by the Mayor on June 15, 1928.

A change order was made on June 25 and approved by the Mayor on July 13, according to which certain parts of the plant as designed were eliminated, including the two 72-inch new boilers and two of the newer 72-inch boilers in the old plant were substituted with suspended settings.

On December 6, 1928, a second change order was sent to the contractor. This order was approved by the Mayor on December 12, 1928. This order canceled the previous order as regards the resetting of the two old 72-inch boilers and eliminated the 72-inch boilers, both old and new, from the contract. A deduction of $14,515 was made from the contract, on account of the elimination of the two 72-inch boilers and the incidental cost of piping connected with them. The amount deducted was made up by the addition of meters, gauges, and other boiler equipment that was not contemplated in the original contract, so that there was no change in the price paid to the contractor.

Work upon this contract was apparently completed in November, 1928, and the city received two 84-inch boilers with coal burning equipment instead of four boilers, as originally contemplated. The city also received certain pieces of accessory equipment not originally contemplated.

On December 12, 1928, the same contractor was awarded without competition a contract for the installation of three 66-inch high pressure boilers with necessary piping, etc. The amount of the contract was $54,000 and the work was to be completed on or before May 6, 1929. On April 30 the Mayor approved an extension for the completion of this contract from May 6 to May 31, 1929. Again, on June 20, 1929, an extension was approved from May 31 to July 1, 1929. This contract was apparently completed within the contract time as extended.

On October 24, 1929, the third contract was awarded to the same contractor without competition for the installation of three steam, turbine driven, coal pulverizing units to be used in connection with the three 66-inch boilers installed according to the previous contract. The amount of this contract was $47,149, and the work was to be completed on December 22, 1929.

On January 3, 1930, the Mayor approved an extension from December 22, 1929, to February 21, 1930. It is apparent from the dates given that it was anticipated that the work of installing the coal-pulverizing apparatus would extend into the cold weather.

The result of the third contract was to remove the three 66-inch boilers from use during the coldest part of the winter and to place the entire duty of furnishing light, heat and power upon the two 84-inch boilers. This duty required that the boilers operate at several times their rated capacity.

On February 13 a leak developed in one of the 84-inch boilers that required its being put out of commission. The State Boiler Inspector's office was notified and on the evening of February 14 the plant was visited by Mr. John B. Kearney, state boiler inspector. According to his report, he found that the girth seam of the boiler was leaking badly and that there was a bag in front of the seam. The evidence showed that oil from the returns of the heating system had been pumped into this boiler through the feed water. The inspector also states that the boiler "was inspected by me internally on January 13 of this year and was found clean and in good condition." Mr. Kearney also informed the writer verbally that at the time he anticipated trouble with the second 84-inch boiler and gave orders that its use be immediately discontinued and the new 66-inch boilers put in use. These orders apparently were not complied with, with the result that two or three days later the second 84-inch boiler was so damaged as to require extensive repairs.

About February 3, 1930, the three 66-inch boilers were placed in service, so that repairs might be made on the damaged 84-inch boilers.

On February 18 leaks developed in two of the 66-inch boilers, with the result that the 84-inch boilers, that had in the interim been repaired, were again put in service, together with the remaining 66-inch boiler that was still in good condition.

In addition to the report submitted by the state boiler inspector, an examination was made of the 84-inch boilers by Prof. Edward F. Miller and Maj. A. S. Smith. The report made jointly by these two experts confirms in substance the findings of the state boiler inspector, that the trouble with the boilers was due to the interior of the boilers becoming coated with a layer of oil from the condensate returning from the heating system that was reused as feed water.

Messrs. Miller and Smith are apparently of the opinion that this oil had been gathering on the interior of the radiators and other parts of the heating system for a long time and that it suddenly became dislodged and was carried into the feed-water tank. Mr. Kearney seems to be of the opinion, as the result of his very complete investigation, that the oil in the feed-water tank was a result of a long time accumulation, that the tank was not kept perfectly clean, that is, it was not blown off frequently, and on account of the rapid evaporation of water by the boilers, the water in the tank became so lowered that the oil floating on the surface was fed directly into the feed-water pump and pumped into the boilers. This conclusion is consistent with the information gained by me during an interview with the engineers at the island. I was informed that there was no doubt of the gathering of oil in the boilers and in the feed-water tank, as the presence of oil was shown for some time in the water gauge glasses on both the boilers and the feed-water tank.

In order to obtain evidence as to the cause of the accidents and also find out whether conditions as assumed by the experts are still continuing analyses have been made on behalf of the Finance Commission by chemists. These analyses include tests of cylinder oil being used, analyses of the scale said to have been taken from the boilers, a sample of the feed-water and samples of the two liquid boiler compounds used.

Cylinder Oil.

As regards the cylinder oil, it was found to be a conventional type of compound oil, compounded of petroleum distillate with a small amount, 5 to 7 per cent of animal fats, such oil as is ordinarily specified for engines running at a comparatively low steam pressure. The gravity of the oil is somewhat heavier than called for in the specifications of the United States Government for a compounded steam cylinder oil for noncondensing engines. The departure, however, from these specifications does not seem to be sufficient to condemn the oil.

Boiler Compounds and Scale.

During the year 1929 there were purchased for the treatment of boiler water at Long Island very large amounts of various materials. Considering the fact that the three small boilers were out of commission for the greater part of the year, this material must have been used for the greater part in the two 84-inch boilers. Information furnished by the clerk of the Institutions Department shows that there were purchased: 500 pounds of soda ash; 12 charges of caustic potash. At current prices it appears that there must have been bought about 1,000 pounds of this latter material. There were also purchased two kinds of liquid boiler compounds. These compounds will hereinafter be designated as Compounds A and B, instead of by their trade names.

Of Compound A, 550 pounds were purchased and apparently all used during the year. It was injected into the boilers with the feed water, to the amount of one gallon per week per boiler. The analyses shows:

Water.....	57.4 per cent.
Sodium silicate.....	51.1 per cent.
Total.....	98.5 per cent.

Compound B was purchased during the latter part of the year 1929. Its use was commenced in the boilers about the beginning of 1930. It was fed into the boiler with the boiler water to the extent of one gallon per day. The maker's prescription calls for two quarts per day for two days and one pint per day thereafter until the boiler is cleaned. Compound B was a so-called colloidal compound. Analysis shows:

Water and organic matter.....	72.9 per cent.
Sodium silicate.....	25.3 per cent.
Total.....	98.2 per cent.

I am informed by others than the chemist that a part of the organic matter was a variety of seaweed.

In connection with colloidal compounds in general, the following is an extract from a recently published book by an authority on feed-water purifications:

"Another class of products is known as colloidal compound. These preparations consist of inert organic substances which tend to inhibit the formation of dense, adherent scale, depositing sludge, which may be blown from the boiler as desired. The functioning of these compounds is based upon established scientific facts, but often the desired phenomenon fails to function in accordance with the claims."

The use of tannin and dextrine and other organic substances, including certain forms of seaweed and marine algae is not a new discovery. Carefully controlled, some good may result from this treatment. If not controlled, serious damage to the boiler from corrosion, burned tubes, or crown sheets may result."

The sample of deposit from the 84-inch boilers consisted of a hard, thin scale, varying in thickness from .008 inch to .016 inch mixed with soft sludge of the consistency of thick mud, in connection with which no information regarding the thickness of the layer in the boiler could be obtained. Analysis of the mixture shows:

Mineral matter.....	64 per cent.
Oil and organic matter.....	36 per cent.

The mineral matter consists largely of iron oxide with probably a considerable percentage of silica.

A second analysis was made of the soft sludge from which the hard scale had been separated; so far as was feasible. This analysis showed:

Oil and soluble organic matter.....	51.4 per cent.
Insoluble organic matter.....	11.6 per cent.
Mineral matter after ignition (iron oxide and silica).....	37.0 per cent.

This analysis seems to show conclusively that the soft deposit was the result of the colloidal boiler compound that had been used.

The deposit taken from the 66-inch boilers was very different in appearance from the deposit from the 84-inch boilers. No hard, thin scale was present. The entire sample was in the form of a fine, dry powder, apparently very largely organic matter. It contained little, if any, oil. An analysis showed the following quantities by weight.

Organic matter.....	28.8 per cent.
Iron oxide, Fe ²⁺	49.79 per cent.
Silica, SiO ₂	11.89 per cent.
Undetermined.....	9.52 per cent.

Total..... 100.00 per cent.

The presence of a considerable amount of iron oxide, as shown by this analysis, coupled with a comparative absence of oil, makes uncertainty as regards the source of the iron oxide. It may have been from the return water from the radiators as has been assumed for the deposit in the 84-inch boilers. On account of the excessive amount of boiler compound used, the oil may have been completely emulsified and blown off with the boiler water. Another contingency is that these boilers had been out of commission for several months previous to being started up about the 1st of February. During that time iron rust may have formed by natural processes on the interior of the boilers in sufficient amount to account for the iron oxide found by the analysis.

This analysis indicates that the excessive use of boiler compound contributed more greatly to the formation of the deposits in the 66-inch boilers than in the 84-inch boilers. This is shown by the large amount of organic matter found and also by the presence of the silica and the comparative absence of oil.

In connection with these analyses it should be appreciated that the percentages given are by weight, the organic matter being much lighter than the inorganic, mineral matter, so that if it were possible to show an analysis by volume, the amount of organic matter would appear very much greater than the figures given indicate.

Feed Water.

On March 5, a sample of water from the boiler feed tank was furnished to the firm of Weston and Sampson for analysis, at the request of the writer. The boiler feed tank contains the condensed water of the returns from the radiators of the heating plant and is re-used as boiler water. The water was analyzed to determine if the water contained an undue amount of oil. The amount of oil found was negligible and Weston and Sampson report:

"In our opinion the water contains no scale forming materials and should be a good water for use in steam boilers."

The report of Weston and Sampson is herewith appended.

This analysis does not furnish any conclusive evidence as regards the boiler water at the time the accidents happened. It does, however, show that under present conditions there is no considerable amount of oil passing from the heating system into the feed water.

The analysis of the boiler feed water indicates that the conditions that may have caused the formation of scale have for the present disappeared and that, considering the fact that there is no longer necessity of running any of the boilers beyond their rated capacity, there seems to be no reason why there should be a recurrence of the trouble, even though the return water is used for feed water in the boilers.

The Finance Commission has frequently had occasion to criticize the excessive purchase and use of boiler compounds without any intelligent idea as to the purpose which they were to accomplish. Ordinarily with Boston water no compound is needed. If for any reason such material is to be employed, a small amount of sal-soda or soda ash is sufficient. In the present case the boilers were clean and the only condition requiring the boiler compound was a possible return of oil from the heating system. In such a case either sal-soda or soda ash would have been the best remedy. It was apparent that the presence of oil was not realized until the accident, therefore the only logical excuse for using the boiler compound in these boilers was the desire on the part of somebody to purchase and use a large amount of the particular boiler compound that was used.

I find upon inquiry that this material is now being used in many of the power plants of the city. In addition to Long Island it is being used at the Deer Island House of Correction, Sewer Service Pumping Station and seven school buildings. In the City Hospital plant at the South End another type of boiler compound is being used. In the plant of the Boston Sanatorium and of the City Hall Annex the engineers report that no boiler compound is necessary. The men in charge of these plants should be commended for their reticence and good sense.

Causes of the Accidents.

The accidents seem to have been due to a combination of causes. The primary cause was, without doubt, the formation of a scale or coating on the interior of the boilers that acted as an insulating material and prevented the free transmission of heat from the furnaces through the boiler plate to the contained water.

The deposit from the 84-inch boilers was composed of oil and iron rust, probably from the radiators and return pipes of the heating system, together with sludge formed by the boiler compounds used. The oil and iron rust were probably present in unusually large quantities at the time immediately preceding the accidents. During the process of removing and relocating the pipes of the heating system, changing the radiators, etc., the mechanical operations in doing the work probably dislodged a large amount of scale from the interior of the heating system.

The absence of filters for the return water allowed the scale forming material to enter freely into the feed water tank and be pumped into the boilers with the feed water.

The evidence obtained has been such as to warrant the opinion that due care was not exercised to keep the feed water tank and the boilers free from scale forming materials, especially oil and iron rust.

The deposit from the 66-inch boilers was probably for the greater part due to the misuse of boiler compound. The trouble with all boilers was accelerated by the excessive heat necessary to force the boilers far beyond their normal capacity in furnishing the entire amount of heat, light and power necessary from a smaller number of boilers than should have been used.

The action of the officials in charge in putting three boilers of the plant out of commission during the coldest part of the winter was both reckless and unnecessary, as the boilers were in condition for service and should have been kept in use until the summer season when their use for heating would have been no longer necessary. Had this course been followed it is probable that none of the accidents herein considered would have occurred.

As regards one of the 84-inch boilers, the accident to it would undoubtedly have been prevented had the recommendations and orders of the state boiler inspector been complied with immediately.

Future Policy.

As regards future policy in connection with the plant at Long Island, there appears to be no necessity for an immediate renewal of any part of the plant.

"We feel that this type of boiler (return tubular) should never have been installed. What you should have used was some form of water tube boiler."

It seems to me that these experts probably meant that return tubular boilers should not have been installed with pulverized coal burning.

There seems to be no reason why the present plant at Long Island should not operate satisfactorily under normal conditions, with pulverized coal as a fuel. There are many small pulverized coal plants now in successful operation with return tubular boilers, for example, the one at Deer Island. Now that the work at Long Island has been finished and many of the causes of the accidents have disappeared, it is unlikely that the troubles will recur under normal conditions of operation under competent supervision. The plant should be given a long time test under such conditions and if it should be shown that the plant is unsatisfactory or unsafe, then the necessary changes can be made.

It is well known, as regards the operation of small plants with coal-burning apparatus, that the economies gained as compared with hand firing are not in nearly so great a ratio as with larger plants. In connection with the Long Island plant, considering the operating conditions, the fact that the present installation has not accomplished any reduction in labor cost, the large amount of steam used for operating the coal pulverizers, and similar matters, it may be found that an expert investigation would show that, if the plant is to be remodeled, in the interest of economy and efficiency the coal pulverizing and burning apparatus should be dispensed with and return tubular boilers retained, instead of retaining the coal pulverizing apparatus and installing water tube boilers.

PART II.

The following paragraphs are intended to call your attention to the financial effect on the finances of the City of Boston of the vacillating and dilatory methods employed by the officials of the city in securing the construction of the new power plant and other mechanical work at Long Island.

Previous to the work on the power plant, already discussed, it appears that the firm of J. P. Dwyer & Co. executed other contracts at Long Island under the supervision of James H. Ritchie and Associates.

In 1927 J. P. Dwyer & Co. installed the heating system in the Nurses' Home as subcontractor under the general contractor for the entire structure. This work involved the installation of radiators which were placed on the ceilings. Immediately upon the completion of this work a new contract, in the sum of $3,750, was awarded without competition to the Dwyer Company for removing the radiators from the ceilings and placing them on the walls. Following is a copy of the letter of Commissioner Kinney to the Mayor in the matter:

January 18, 1929.

Hon. Malcolm E. Nichols,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Mr. Mayor,—Permission is respectfully requested to award a contract, without advertising, to J. P. Dwyer Company in the sum of $3,750 for removing the wall type radiators from the ceilings of all rooms in the basement of the Nurses' Home, Long Island,—with the exception of the lecture room, kitchen and dining room,—and placing these radiators on the walls, furnishing all cleats, bolts, brackets and making all necessary disconnections and connections required to do the work. This price also includes the cleaning of all mud pockets in the heating system, and the patching of the plaster damaged and painting to make a presentable appearance after the work is done.

The above contractor has just completed the work of installing all the heating fixtures and appliances in the above building and is now upon the ground with his men and equipment. He is therefore in a position to do the work cheaper than any one not so situated, and therefore no advantage would accrue to the city from advertising this contract.

This work should be done immediately because a great strain is being placed on certain pumps which are part of the vacuum system at the present time, and if a break occurs the entire vacuum system might be severely damaged.

Respectfully yours,

WILLIAM S. KINNEY,
Commissioner.

Approved January 18, 1928.

M. E. NICHOLS,
Mayor of Boston.

No explanation is given as to why the changes were necessary or why the proper location for the radiators was not fixed when the building contract was made. The reasons given for the award of the contract for changing the radiators were not convincing, especially the last paragraph of the commissioner's letter, which relates to the danger of damage to the vacuum system. How any serious trouble could take place with this system is not clear.

The contract for changing the radiators was to be completed on March 20. Apparently at the time these contracts were made, there had been no publicly announced intention of changing the boiler plant, neither did there appear, not has there yet appeared, any adequate reason for making the changes.

I have secured from the office of the State Department of Public Safety, Division of Boiler Inspection, the reports of the latest inspections made on the old boiler plant. Nothing in these reports indicates any necessity for immediate change in the boiler plant, or in fact a change at any time. This conclusion by me has been confirmed by a verbal conference with a representative of the boiler inspector's office.

According to the reports, two of the 72-inch boilers were inspected on August 27, 1927. These boilers were certified as being at the time ten years old. They were licensed for 125 pounds pressure, the same as when they were new. The new plant is being operated at 110 pounds pressure. The other 72-inch boiler was inspected July 6, 1928. It was certified as being nineteen years old. This boiler was entirely retubed in 1926. This boiler was also licensed for 125 pounds pressure. Of the four 66-inch boilers then in service, two were inspected on July 6, 1928. They were certified as being twenty-nine years old and they were licensed for 110 pounds pressure. The remaining two 66-inch boilers were inspected on October 10, 1928. They were certified as being twenty-seven years old and were licensed for 100 and 110 pounds pressure respectively. One of these boilers was also entirely retubed during October, 1926.

Two of the 72-inch boilers were inspected previous to the making of the contract for the new plant and the others were inspected shortly after the first contract was made.

The only inference that can properly be drawn from these reports is that it might be desirable to renew one of the 66-inch boilers, the pressure of which had been reduced below the pressure for which the new plan has been designed.

Notwithstanding the good condition of the old plant as shown, the entire plant was scrapped and the new contracts previously discussed were made.

There is nothing in the design of the plant as finally built that is new, or that has been developed since the first contract was made. An adequate study by competent experts should have produced a design from which only minor departures should be made during the installation, yet in the present case there appears:

The contract of June 15, 1924, involving an expenditure of $68,300.

The change order of July 13, 1924, which increased the price by $5,700.

This order provided for deductions from the contract as follows:

For omission of meters and coal scales deduct.....	$4,115
For omission of two new 72-inch boilers called for in Item No. 1, deduct.....	4,700
Total deductions.....	$8,815

The additions are as follows:

For resetting two 72-inch boilers with modern hung boiler settings, add.....	$7,000
For changes in piping on account of changing two 72-inch boilers and one 66-inch boiler over to low pressure, add.....	7,515
Total additions.....	$14,515

You will note that the addition for the work of resetting two of the old 72-inch boilers is $1,300 more than the deduction for the omission of two new boilers, including both the cost of the boilers and the settings. You will also note as regards the item of $7,515 for changing piping that so far as shown, no deduction has been made for the cost of piping contemplated in connection with the two new 72-inch boilers called for in the contract.

The change order of December 12, 1928, which eliminated the 72-inch boilers from the contract, but without a reduction in the cost of the plant.

In connection with this second change order, you will note that it provides for meters, gauges, CO₂ recorders, etc., both for the 84-inch boilers and the 66-inch boilers. It is nowhere shown whether the gauges, etc., to be installed under this extra order were the same as were eliminated under the first extra order. As regards the CO₂ recorders, these are instruments of very delicate construction, of doubtful advisability in connection with small plants, and at times of doubtful accuracy of operation. Their efficient use requires the possession of a considerable amount of scientific knowledge on the part of the engineers in control. It is very doubtful if their installation at Long Island was advisable.

The second contract of October 27, 1927, for the installation of three 66-inch boilers, involving an expenditure of $47,149.

The third contract of December 12, 1928, for the installation of pulverized coal equipment at a cost of $54,000.

No study has yet been made of the details of the cost of the extra work. It is probable, however, that under the conditions the price was substantially higher than might have been obtained had competition been secured.

The original cost of the work, as shown by the first contract, was to be $68,300. The total cost, not including repairs recently made, was $175,149. Of this amount $101,149 was for new contracts let without competition.

The letter of the acting commissioner, sent to the Finance Commission, indicates an intent to determine the liability for present conditions at Long Island. If by present conditions is meant the physical condition of the present plant, then it seems to me clear that this condition is due to the neglect and inefficiency of the operating force at Long Island. If, on the other hand, it is intended to determine the reasons for the excessive cost of the plant, it appears that a further detailed study of the reasons for the many changes would be worth while. Such study would involve the summoning and questioning of all parties connected with the design, construction and operation of the new plant.

Respectfully submitted,
GUY C. EMERSON,
Consulting Engineer.

Coun. MURRAY—Mr. President, I might also add that the state inspectors under the chief, Mr. Plunkett, I am informed, had to lay off this year the chief engineer for a period of sixty days because he was not competent to run the plant at Long Island. Now I think the trouble is with the working force down there and I do not see why we should tax the citizens of Boston $50,000 more. The engineer and the inspectors at the State House say the plant is perfectly all right to run with a competent force. Mr. Maguire came before us and said it was the fault of the boilers, but I believe it is the fault of the boiler-room force, and if it is the fault of the force, it is better that we should pass it up to him to remedy that condition, and if that condition is remedied I do not see why the plant at Long Island will not be all right, and we will save that amount of money which we are asked to appropriate.

Coun. GREEN—I would like to ask the councilor who has just taken his seat if Mr. Maguire at any time asked for and received an opinion on this matter from Mr. Emerson.

Coun. MURRAY—I might answer that I believe he did receive this report, or his predecessor received it, from Mr. Emerson.

Coun. FITZGERALD—All I know about these boilers is what was said at the meeting by Mr. Maguire, and also some talk that I heard around that during the winter on one Sunday there were some fifty bolts that were shot out of these boilers. Whatever the cause was I don't know, but they lay it to the improper installation of these boilers, or they say the boilers are not fit. But somehow or other Mr. Emerson states in his report that the boilers would be all right under competent supervision. If the chief engineer has been removed or suspended for sixty days, we ought to know it, and if he is incompetent he ought to be removed. We all know that under the present civil service regulations, with the right of a man to appeal to the courts, and under the veterans' preference, it is little they can do to handle employees if they are incompetent. That is a fact that has got to be brought home to everybody. But I believe there is something radically wrong with these boilers. I do not see any reason why the Commissioner of Institutions should want to bring this proposition to the attention of the Council or the Mayor himself unless there was something radically wrong. Of course Mr. Emerson may be a competent engineer. I don't know that he is competent to pass on boilers. He was Commissioner of Public Works, or at least Superintendent of Streets, under two former administrations, and had to do with street work and street work only. I have my doubts whether a man can be an authority on every possible question of the day. However, there are men working in that plant who claim it is dangerous, and claim the boilers were not properly installed. Of course the City Council has an investigating committee going to the island, and we rely upon that committee for some kind of a report. They must have known something about it, and I would like to hear from some members of this Council who have been on the committee that had charge of the investigation of the institutions and looking after the welfare of those institutions and giving a correct and reliable report to this body. I would like to hear something from the chairman of that committee who has been over to Long Island to enlighten us on this matter.

Coun. HEIN—Mr. President, up until 10 o'clock this morning the boilers were not condemned by the state boiler inspectors. Mr. Plunkett, the chief inspector there, told me so himself. The last time the boilers were inspected, they were inspected by Boiler Inspector Carney, and I think if we want to get new boilers down there, and condemn the boilers we have, we should get Mr. Carney's report to the State House and find out why they need new boilers.

Coun. BUSH—Mr. President, there seems to be some misapprehension here as to just what this appropriation is for. Everybody is talking about the replacement of the boilers. My understanding is that the coal pulverizers were the cause of all the trouble, and it was intended to replace the coal pulverizers, and not the boilers. The question whether the boilers are safe or not has nothing to do with this case. In spite of the fact that Councilor Murray has received this letter from Mr. Emerson with reference to his stand on the question of the efficiency of the pulverizers, each of us has received a letter from his Honor, the Mayor, in which the Mayor takes a stand supporting the Commissioner of Institutions. The City of Boston happens to have the good fortune to have one of the most capable executives at the helm that it ever had in its history, and if the Mayor is satisfied that a replacement of these coal pulverizers is necessary he must be satisfied because of sufficient information which he was able to obtain. I want to call the attention of the members again to the protest of the commissioner when he appeared before the Executive Committee, that he would not accept the responsibility for the retention of those pulverizers, and he then stated that he had authority from several other people besides the Finance Commission engineer, and he named several technical experts from whom he had received opinions with reference to the safety of the coal pulverizers. Now, Mr. Maguire stated to me personally sometime after the discussion here, that in a personal conversation with Mr. Emerson with reference to these coal pulverizers Mr. Emerson was a little more positive about the safety of these pulverizers. Apparently Mr. Emerson did not care to be quoted in writing to that extent. The Commissioner of Institutions and the Mayor of the City of Boston have the burden and the ultimate responsibility in case anything develops at the island as a result of the use of these coal pulverizers, and if in the middle of the winter, on some very cold and frigid day, the plant fails to work, and those inmates at the island are left to the mercy of the elements, the responsibility will rest upon the Mayor and the Institutions Commissioner and, if the Council fails to pass the order, upon each and every member of the Council. I feel, therefore, under the circumstances, that further delay in the passage of this order would be very dangerous.

Coun. ARNOLD—Mr. President, I am very glad that the councilor from Ward 12 has brought to the attention of the Council what is really under discussion. If it were a proposition that required the changing of the type of boiler, my position, I believe, would be very different from what it is. But it is a proposition which has to do with the automatic pulverizing feeders. In common with the rest of the members of the Council I received a very courteous and exceedingly well-written communication from his Honor the Mayor, asking me to cooperate with him on two measures, one of which affects the health of the people, and the other the rights of the people. With the one I am in thorough accord, and I do not believe he can say that I have not cooperated with him during his term on every measure that has been constructive in character. I do not feel, however, that I can extend this cooperation to a proposition or a procedure which seems to me destructive. By destructive I mean this, that we are asked to vote here for an appropriation of $50,000, to junk $72,000 worth of useful and efficient and economical apparatus. We were told at our last meeting that two competent engineers had condemned the pulverizers. I submit that there has been just furnished to the Council sufficient evidence from one of them that such was not the case. We were again at that time referred to one E. F. Miller, an engineer of the Institute of Technology, and in a letter to the Commissioner of Institutions, the Acting Commissioner, he says this:

"The pulverized coal equipment seemed to be giving excellent results as far as combustion was concerned. The appearance of the flame would indicate that the burners were in every way satisfactory." Then he goes on to say something about the type of boilers. But we are not concerned with the type of boilers. As I stated at the outset, if it was the type of boilers that was to be considered, my position would be entirely different. It is the pulverizing units that are giving trouble, and yet these two engineers that were quoted at our last meeting both say they are satisfactory and are working efficiently in every way. They are working too efficiently, it would seem, or else they would not have had the hazard they have, and he goes on to tell us how to avoid that hazard. We did not know at our last meeting what this was all about, this bagging; at least I did not. I admitted it. But I have since obtained some light on the subject of bagging boilers, and bagging will occur in any boiler if it is not properly handled. This is machinery. Does anyone of you know of any machinery that is foolproof? Why is this intensive campaign going on throughout the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in regard to motor vehicles, if machines are foolproof? No, sir, Mr. President, these machines are no exception to other types of machinery. And what is needed, in my opinion, is not the junking of this property, or this equipment, which they all say works well, but which they do not care to use because they are afraid that these particular boilers that they have will sag, and perhaps there might occur an explosion—what is needed is an efficient boiler-room force to run this equipment. The engineer goes on to say that these boilers should be cleaned, and should be laid off in rotation once a week. Is that anything unreasonable in regard to service? Don't they expect to service these boilers at all? Have you any equipment in your home that does not require service? Take the automobile. Do you ever have it serviced? I will say you do, if you ride. These boilers also must be serviced, and the Commissioner was told in much detail just how they should be serviced, and that if they were serviced and watched this would be an efficient equipment for the heating of that island. Now what is the layout of the plant there? We were told at our last meeting that lives were in danger. As near as I can find out, these bedridden children are not within 100 yards of this power plant. Now, let me go back a little bit into the history of this expenditure that we authorized during the last couple of years. We authorized the expenditure of considerably over $1,000,000 down there, and in the reconstruction and enlarging of that plant there was added a heating equipment, and I believe that if Mr. Maguire would go back into his records he would find that requisitions were made for this upright type of boiler instead of the horizontal type, which admittedly would be more dangerous than the other. That meant at that time a much increased appropriation. It would call for the abandoning of the old plant and the building of another, because of the room that type of boiler would take, and the requisition was denied, and the same type of boiler that has been there for the past thirty years or more was installed. It is going to be an expensive proposition to change the boilers, but I do not believe it is an expensive proposition to have the present boilers efficiently handled, and I submit that we are not called upon to appropriate $50,000 to junk $72,000 worth of equipment. It ought to be worth something if it is going to be junked. I do not see any occasion, Mr. President, for the appropriation.

Coun. RUBY—Mr. President, as chairman of the Committee on Inspection of Prisons, I will say in answer to my colleague from Ward 3 that the only authority we have as a committee with reference to Long Island is with reference to those prisoners from Deer Island who work at Long Island, or who may be ill and confined to the Long Island Hospitals, but we have, as a committee, no other authority over Long Island, and when we make our visits to Deer Island we make the usual inspection there on our way down the harbor, and for no other purpose.

Coun. NORTON—Mr. President, this question is one that is very perplexing, to say the least. Two weeks ago I called up Professor Miller of Technology and asked him if he would be kind enough to give me a little time and explain this proposition to me. I went out there one afternoon and spent the entire afternoon with him in the mechanical division of the Institute of Technology. As far as I can find out, it is all a question of what type of boiler on the island is the safest. My colleague from Dorchester says it is all a question of pulverizers, and not of boilers. I cannot quite agree with him on that. The state boiler inspector has said that the pulverizers and boilers and the entire boiler-room equipment is O.K., so far as they are concerned. So says the chief engineer of the Boston Finance Commission, Guy Emerson. He states that the equipment down there is O.K. That makes a very vexing problem. So I went over to Technology and interviewed the man who is perhaps the outstanding expert in this section of the country, if not in the country, on steam boilers,—Edwin Miller. He took me into his laboratory, and he said, "Here is the proposition. Here is a boiler, and we fill it with water and we put these pulverizers under it and heat it. If something goes wrong here, as it went wrong at Long Island, and you obtained a penetration, you would get an explosion in those boilers, or in the individual boiler, equal to an explosion of 300 pounds of t. n. t."

"Now, I recommend that instead of having that type of boiler, where the water is all segregated in one section, and the forced flame is under here where the water is liable to obtain some oil in it as it circulates and vaporizes throughout the system, and leave that oil impregnated upon that 2½-inch oil seat, and this forced fire seeks to get through to the water and forms a blister, and may lead to an explosion—instead of having that water and that heat and that dynamite, you might say for purposes of analysis, all in that one segment, I want to place it in tubes, so that if something goes wrong, not an explosion equal to 300 pounds of t. n. t. will occur, but only that individual tube will give way."

He had his whole class there. He said:

"I can run the tubular boiler here at Technology O.K., and I can run the type of boiler you have at Long Island O.K., but each individual boiler and each individual institution is a case in itself. I could run those boilers with these boys of mine undoubtedly without any trouble, but down on Long Island it is a different proposition. Men are careless. You are bound to have difficulty. You may say you can keep oil out of that return system, but the moment a mechanic goes and fixes a radiator, or fixes a valve and gets a little grease in there, or a little oil, that may be sucked back into the system and cause a deposit upon the side of the boiler itself."

"Now, at Long Island you have inmates who are unable to take care of themselves. If something happens you have a tremendous problem. At Deer Island it is a little different. You have plenty of help, plenty of men, plenty of people to take an interest in the boilers. And under those conditions down there, rather than have anything happen, I would recommend that the tubular boiler be installed, and when the tube goes it will do no damage, but when the entire boiler goes it means trouble, and perhaps death."

My colleague from the Back Bay states that not within 100 yards are there children or inmates. That may be so. It may be that the boilers down there could blow up, and no one be injured. I hope that will never occur, and I am glad to know they are so far away, but nevertheless a statement from the head of a department of the Institute of Technology that an explosion would be equal to that of 300 pounds of t. n. t. is certainly entitled to some consideration. What are you going to do about the report of the engineer of the Finance Commission? I don't know. In a case such as this we can go to the most competent expert and ask. There is no question today, mechanical, electrical, or physical, but what the experts do not disagree. Before Lindbergh made his great flight the experts wanted to go into court and get a writ of mandamus to prevent him from making a suicidal attempt. In the courts of New Jersey, when Edison brought forth his electric light, the same proposition was advanced. So we can argue here for weeks or months, but I feel that when a man from Technology who is the greatest expert in this section of the country—called so by Conklin, the head of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, called so by Hamlin the head of the Stevens Institute of Technology of New Jersey—I feel that his opinion is certainly entitled to some consideration, and when he states that in his opinion the tubular type of boiler at Long Island would be better and safer than the present equipment, I find it very hard to vote against it. In the event of something happening down there next winter, or the winter after, I should feel very much grieved to think that I had prevented the installation of the type of boiler that was recommended by the head of a department at the greatest institution of its kind in the world, Prof. Edwin Miller of Technology.

Coun. KELLY—Mr. President, a few weeks ago, for reasons I thought justifiable, I made a stand on this question. Since that time I have thought enough of my stand to make two visits to this plant at Long Island with a fellow whom I consider well capable of handling any kind of engineering, and asked his opinion on the conditions that existed there. Now, here is what I find there. I don't know whether every member of the Council knows the condition that exists there. First of all, I want to say that I am for any order for any amount of money, no matter how great, that comes into this Council for the protection of those poor unfortunates at Long Island, and I have been that way ever since I took office. But when an uncalled for order comes in for $50,000, I am here as a free-thinking representative of the people of Dorchester, the taxpayers of Dorchester, protecting their rights. Now, let me go on for just a moment to show you how this plant is operated. They want to do away with the coal pulverizers. The coal pulverizers are a great unit. They are working on Deer Island to perfection, contrary to reports, and yet the Commissioner of Institutions comes in here and makes the offhand statement that they are not working right on Deer Island. I say he is wrong; they are working right on Deer Island. If they were not, there would perhaps be an order in here for Deer Island, too. They want to take out the coal pulverizers that feed the coal automatically to the boilers and give a heat of 2,600 degrees, and put in hand-fed apparatus that will give a heat of but 1,300 degrees. I say 2,600 degrees is more efficient. It has turned out that way at different factories where the coal pulverizers have been installed. But they must have careful operators. And what have we got a commissioner down there for? It is up to him to see that he has capable operators to protect the lives of those unfortunate men, women and children that are confined there. Do not let him come up here and put us in a tough position with the people of Boston. Let me go further and show you how ridiculous this order is. They talk about explosions. You can have an explosion in any kind of a boiler, whether it is in your own home, down in your cellar, or in any factory, if it is neglected, and yet they are trying to put this order through on the pretence that there may be an explosion. Of course there may be an explosion if a boiler is not guarded right. But what have we got to warn the men that are supposed to be on their job? If this water gets too hot, whistles that can be heard all over the Island are installed there to bring back the help that may have wandered off the job. That is what we have there. I think it would be a shame and an outrage if we junked $72,000 worth of machinery that has been working efficiently for six months, and put in $50,000 worth of new equipment that is uncalled for. They talk about leaving this Island in a destitute condition, as far as heat goes, but let me remind you that there are four spare boilers down there that are not operating. Any time during the winter, if anything happened to one of the boilers, there are always two spare boilers. I want each and every one of you gentlemen to bear these things in mind, and then bear in mind the report of the engineer of the Finance Commission. Although I know there may be enough "yes" men to put this order over, I think the order should not go over. I think the order is a steal. I think the order is unjustified, and for that reason, and to protect the taxpayers that sent me here, I shall vote against it.

Coun. MURRAY—Mr. President, I might say that at the last meeting I introduced an order for $50,000 to see if we could get some information, and I asked the chairman of the committee to hold a meeting and let us bring these different engineering experts here and let us find out the facts for ourselves. We are all enough interested, and I think if we had a meeting of the Committee on Finance the whole body would be there to find out the story. Why not have the meeting? If we had held a meeting we would know something today. As it is, we don't know any more today than we did before. I make a motion that the matter be laid on the table until we get some information from some experts.

The question was taken and the motion was rejected.

Coun. BUSH—I want to elaborate just a little further on these coal pulverizers, despite what the councillor from Hyde Park said with reference to the boilers. I made the statement that the question here was a question with reference to the pulverizers. I did not elaborate on that statement, and I would like to do that now. It seems that these coal pulverizers are not adaptable to the particular boilers which are installed at Long Island. To replace the boilers in order to make the coal pulverizers adaptable to the boilers would be like the tail wagging the dog. It seems that these coal pulverizers produce an incandescent heat, just as Councillor Kelly stated. He states that the heat is 2,600 degrees. I don't know whether it is or not, but it does create an intense heat, and the trouble with the heat is not merely that it creates an intense heat, but that heat is condensed or converged on a single point. Those pulverizers would operate all right if the heat was diffused over a large area of surface of those boilers, but it is not, and the effect of that concentration of heat on a particular point in those boilers is similar to the effect of an oxyhydrogen blowpipe which will create a heat around 500 degrees Fahrenheit on the 6-inch armor-plate of a battleship, which would cut through the armor-plate like a knife through hot butter. Now, that is the effect of the concentration of heat on one particular spot, and that is the trouble with these pulverizers. They might just as well put an oxyhydrogen blowpipe in there if they wanted a great deal of heat. But what would happen? It would cut right through those boilers as if they were tissue paper, and the concentration of heat on that one spot melts or weakens the structure of the boiler at that particular spot, and there does not seem to be any way in which that heat can be diffused properly. Therefore the only proper thing to do is to take those coal pulverizers out and put in the kind of a system that will comply with the requirements of that type of boiler. Now, the fact that those pulverizers were put in there by the previous administration, by which the problem of obtaining heat with those particular boilers was probably ill-considered, or apparently so from present indications, and the mere fact that we have got to junk that $72,000 worth of equipment, should not stand in the way of the passage of this order, if it means the safety and the convenience and the comfort of the inhabitants on Long Island who are helpless, and to whom even the breakdown of the plant for a few days, should it happen in the midst of winter, would be a grievous calamity.

Coun. CURTIS—There is one further bit of information which it seems to me it is necessary to have before we vote on this order. Ordinarily I do not suppose this Council goes with any great detail into the matter of how money is going to be spent and why a certain amount of money is necessary, but in this case I think we ought to feel the responsibility of junking this expensive equipment and spending this amount of money to replace it. Now, I for one, after having made some investigation, am entirely prepared to support the commissioner in his feeling that there ought to be some changes in that boiler plant, but I would like to know what the various changes are to be, and why it is going to require $50,000 to do the work. I understand that if it is merely a question of going back to hand-firing, that plant can be put in good order for hand-firing for much less money than that. We have never had that information. If they are going to install new boilers there and put in a truck for carrying coal, or something, I think we ought to know it, and also what the various items making up this $50,000 are, before we can determine whether we should vote for them. Mr. President, there does not seem to be anybody here who can furnish that information, and therefore I am going to move that this matter be referred to the Executive Committee in order that we may obtain that information which I for one feel is necessary in order to vote intelligently on this question.

Coun. MURRAY—Mr. President, I would like to make an amendment to that motion, that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee, and that we bring these different engineers in and find out the story, and then bring in the Commissioner from Long Island.

President LYNCH—The Chair will rule that the amendment is out of order. Councillor Curtis moves a reference to the Executive Committee.

The order was referred to the Executive Committee.

REPAVING LINDEN STREET.

Coun. KELLY offered the following:

Ordered, That the Commissioner of Public Works be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to repave with smooth paving lower Linden street, from Dorchester avenue to Freeport street, Ward 15.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

REPAVING OF WALNUT AVENUE.

Coun. BUSH offered the following:

Ordered, That the Commissioner of Public Works be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to repave with smooth paving Walnut avenue, Ward 12.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

RECESS.

The Council voted, at 3.47 p. m., to take a recess, subject to the call of the Chair. The members reassembled in the Council Chamber and were called to order by President LYNCH at 5 p. m.

REPORTS OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Coun. MAHONEY, for the Executive Committee, submit reports as follows:

1. Report on message of the Mayor and order (referred today) for transfers within departmental appropriations—that said order ought to pass. Report accepted; said orders passed, yeas 22.

2. Report on petition of James Egan to be retired, recommending the passage of the following order:

Ordered, That the Retirement Board for Laborers be hereby authorized and requested to retire, under the provisions of chapter 765 of the Acts of 1914, as amended by chapter 63 of the Special Acts of 1915, James Egan, employed in the labor service of the Public Works Department.

Report accepted; order passed.

3. Report on order (referred March 31, 1930) for payment of an annuity to the widow of Frank T. Lyons—that order ought to pass.

Report accepted; said order passed.

4. Report on message of Mayor and order (referred August 18, 1930) for a loan of $50,000 for power plant alterations and improvements at Long Island Hospital—that order ought to pass.

Coun. MAHONEY—Mr. President, I might say there are two letters there that were received by Mr. Maguire, of the Institutions Department, from the Division Engineer, and on motion of Councillor Bush I would like to have them read into the record.

President LYNCH—The clerk will read the letters.

The clerk read the letters as follows:

Massachusetts Institute of Technology,
Department of Mechanical Engineering,
Cambridge, Mass., U. S. A.

February 20, 1930.

Mr. John J. Lydon, Commissioner of Institutions,
Room 809, City Hall Annex, Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Lydon,—In regard to the boilers at the Long Island Hospital the undersigned beg to report as follows:

This plant has three (3) 66-inch horizontal return tubular boilers, and two (2) 84-inch boilers fired with powdered charcoal, the total horse power of the plant being approximately 900. The three (3) 66-inch boilers are set approximately 6 feet 9 inches from the floor and the center of the burner supplying powdered coal is approximately 2 feet 9 inches below the bottom of the boiler. On the 84-inch boilers the distance from the bottom of the boiler to the floor is approximately 10 feet and from the center of the burner to the bottom of the boiler approximately 5 feet 6 inches. We find that these boilers are carrying from 100 to 110 pounds pressure, and the safety valves are said to be set at 120.

The heating system in the building makes use of what exhaust steam is available from your refrigerating machine and from your lighting engines, and the demand in excess of this is supplied directly from the boilers. This method of operation we understand has gone on for some thirty years and there is a probability that a large part of the heating system may have a film of oil on the inside surface. This oil is likely to come back at any time, and there is no filter that is 100 per cent efficient—either one filtering oil out of exhaust steam or one filtering oil out of condensate, in fact, condensate will carry oil in emulsion which will go through any filter.

We found that two of the boilers—the 84-inch—had been bagged and that the bags had been successfully pushed back into place, the girth seam rivetted—the boiler repair men having done an excellent piece of work. As soon as any returns containing oil are put back into the type of boilers which you are using there, especially boilers fired with powdered coal or oil, there is always the possibility of oil collecting on the plates, the plates becoming overheated and bags resulting. Should these bags which form break through and release the water in the boiler, a disastrous explosion would result. The reason for this bag occurring is that the place under the spot where the oil had accumulated becomes heated to a dull, cherry red—possibly even hotter than this. The strength of the plate is reduced practically one half when heated to a dull cherry red. As the plate begins to stretch, frequently the water gets under the scale which is dislodged and cools the plate in time to prevent explosion. You were fortunate enough in the case of your two (2) 84-inch boilers to have this condition of things occur. We feel that this type of boiler should never have been installed. What you should have used was some form of water tube boiler. With a water tube boiler, if oil collects, you may burn out a tube which is a small item with no danger of anything resulting.

We found yesterday that the three remaining boilers were carrying an overload running at 225 per cent rating and yesterday was a mild day with the temperature around 60. The pulverized coal equipment seemed to be giving excellent results as far as combustion was concerned. The appearance of the flame would indicate that the burners were in every way satisfactory. With powdered coal, as with oil, it is possible to burn coal at a much more rapid rate than was ever possible with hand-firing, and a boiler can be crowded with this type of fueling easily to 500 per cent without a fireman perhaps realizing what a load he has put on the boiler. With this type of boiler such crowding is absolutely dangerous and we believe that it is not safe for oil or powdered coal to be used under boilers of the type which you have there, especially as you are returning oil in the condensate which goes back into the boiler as feed water.

It seems that on Sunday when this trouble occurred the day was extremely cold and these two 84-inch boilers were carrying practically all the load. As we were given to understand, they were the only boilers on the line at the time the accident occurred. Inasmuch as it is impossible to make a change in your boilers at this time of year we have suggested to Mr. John J. Ryan, the Superintendent, the following:

"February 19, 1930.

Mr. John J. Ryan, Superintendent, Long Island Hospital, Boston Harbor, Mass.

Dear Sir,—It is our suggestion that as soon as you get the two (2) 84-inch boilers in condition you put them on the line and run the five (5) boilers as moderately as possible. That you use as little oil as you possibly can in your steam-driven equipment which is exhausting into the heating system, and that the boilers be laid off in rotation once a week and washed out.

Before the two (2) 84-inch boilers are put on the line they should be given a dose of soda ash and caustic, manhole left open, and boiled for twenty-four hours. After you have boiled for twenty-four hours, drain out and then wash thoroughly with a hose.

In the spring when your load is light you can put kerosene in the boilers and run that steam through the heating system and throw all the returns away until the oil that has been stored up for the last thirty years is washed out.

Very truly yours,
E. F. MILLER,
A. S. SMITH."

We would recommend that you replace the two (2) 84-inch boilers as soon as your steam load is light enough to enable you to do so, with a water tube boiler properly set for burning powdered coal and that after this boiler has taken the load, you then replace the three (3) 66-inch boilers with such type of water tube boilers as you can get in this restricted vertical space. It may be necessary in the restricted space which you have where the three (3) 66-inch boilers are now set for excavation to be made in order to give sufficient space for a combustion chamber. There may also be a possibility of getting space by removing the present ceiling at the top of the boiler. This detail we have not gone into.

We feel that the boilers in their present condition should be watched carefully through the remainder of the season so that there will be no recurrence of the Sunday accident.

We understand that this report will be submitted to his Honor the Mayor, and we felt that a letter which Professor Miller wrote to Mr. J. P. Manning under date of July 10 might be of interest, inasmuch as Professor Miller investigated, at the request of Mr. Manning, conditions at the City Hospital in regard to power, and also was consulted and visited the tuberculosis hospital at Mattapan where the architect was contemplating putting in practically the same type of equipment as was installed at Long Island. A copy of this letter is appended hereto.

Yours very truly,
E. F. MILLER,
ALBERT S. SMITH.

Mr. James E. Maguire, Commissioner, Institutions Department, 811 City Hall Annex, Boston.

Dear Sir,—I send you herewith for your information a memorandum given me by Mr. R. J. Thanisch, an assistant engineer in this division which may possibly be of some interest to you.

Yours very truly,
JOHN E. CARTY,

March 26, 1930.

Mr. John E. Carty, Division Engineer.

Dear Sir,—On a recent visit to Long Island, at the request of and accompanied by Commissioner Lydon, the writer observed the pulverized coal burners installed in the boiler room of the power plant.

The use of pulverized coal as a fuel has passed the experimental stage and in its field remarkable results are obtained. But the conditions under which this fuel is satisfactorily burned are practically impossible at this station. In the first place the heat generated by these burners cannot be regulated through a range of temperature as a grate-fired boiler owing to the volume of air required for combustion and the necessary pressure; any attempt to run what would be called a light fire would expose the fire room personnel to the dangers of a flare back. Second, the temperatures generated by the burners are so intense that no steel of the boiler should be in such a position the flame may impinge on it; when the steel of the boiler is exposed to this excessive temperature, steam is generated so rapidly that the steam keeps the water from direct contact with the steel and acts as insulation, permitting the steel to be raised to such a temperature that it will break down. Third, the temperatures in the furnaces of pulverized coal burners are so great that huge combustion chambers are absolutely necessary; it is practically impossible to construct the plant at Long Island with sufficiently large combustion chambers. Fourth, the only boiler which should be served by pulverized coal burners is the high pressure, water tube type; the boilers at Long Island are horizontal return tubular, the best fitted for the service they are to render. In the cylindrical or shell type boiler, to which group the horizontal return tubular belongs, the circulation of the water in the boiler is of necessity sluggish, since the heated water rises through the colder, simply by the differences in specific gravity. In the water tube type boiler all the current in each group of pipes is in one direction only, thereby greatly accelerating the velocity of circulation. It is apparent that excessive temperatures in shell boilers must be eliminated.

Considering the above data, it is evident that it is humanly impossible to operate the Long Island plant without jeopardizing life and property, and that the use of pulverized coal at this plant should be prohibited at once.

Respectfully submitted,
R. J. THANISCH,
Assistant Engineer.

Coun. CURTIS—Mr. President, I am sorry to take the time of the Council, but I would just like to make a very brief statement as to why I am going to oppose this order at this time. I personally believe that changes ought to be made in the power plant, and I am prepared to vote the necessary money to do it, but I believe in this case we ought to have information as to what is going to be done, and approximately how much it is going to cost to do it. In view of the controversy here I should like also to see some outside engineer pass on the plant. We tried to get that information, and were not able to do so, and that is the only reason I am going to oppose this order at this time on the record, but I shall be the first to try to hushle this matter through when we get the information we ought to have.

Coun. MURRAY—At this time I am going to vote against this order on the statement made by the commissioner himself. He said that the plans for this amount of money were drawn up by a man named Murphy who was an engineer, and because he was incompetent the state inspectors of the State Department of Boiler Inspection, suspended him for one month or two months, I am not sure which, but I know he was suspended, and if that man is now making out the plans for the new loan order which we are going to pass I cannot stultify myself in voting for it.

Coun. NORTON—Mr. President, the assistant engineer at Long Island also gave us a letter which was quoted in the Executive Committee session, in favor of this recommendation of the Mayor. I am heartily in favor of the order, from a technical, mechanical standpoint, after going into the matter in great detail. I am not here siding with the Mayor because he is the Mayor. I will oppose him the moment I think he is wrong. I do believe that in this instance the Mayor is right in his request for tubular boilers. As to the amount of money appropriated, we are appropriating $50,000, but perhaps $25,000 will do. The commissioner himself in executive session gave us information to that effect. I am going to ask the Mayor that in the making of these plans and in the new installation—I am going to make a personal request of him, as a result of this controversy in the Council, that he leave the plans and the matter in the hands of Professor Miller of Technology.

Coun. KELLY—I thought there was going to be no conversation on this order, but as long as there is I think I will get my oar in. I notice, first of all, that this is supposed to be a confidential letter from the Mayor, and I believe in treating things as confidential until somebody makes them public, but as long as the letter has been made public I want to call my colleague's attention that all the Mayor says about the inspection of these boilers down at Long Island is this, that since the last meeting we had, the matter has been further investigated by the Boiler Inspection Department at the State House. But I understand it has been a favorable inspection, so therefore I say why spend $50,000 of the taxpayers' money to junk $72,000 worth of machinery down here. I understand the real reason that that is to be done, and that the commissioner wants it, is because the men are under the influence of liquor attending those boilers there, and I call upon him to straighten this matter out, and not bring it into the City Council, by going down there and putting decent, respectable men that are dependable down there. If we need to pay them more money, let him put a request in here that these men be paid more money, but let us have men down there that are dependable. The boilers are all right, the unit is all right. Let us not go ahead and junk this $72,000 worth of machinery that has been in operation a few months just to protect a few men that I understand are drunk down there, and that are being tolerated.

The report of the committee was accepted. The order was read once and passed, yeas 16, nays—Coun. Arnold, Curtis, Gleason, Hein, Kelly, Murray.

Assigned for fourteen days for final action.

CONFIRMATION OF EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS.

President LYNCH called up for consideration of the Council No. 5 on the calendar, under unfinished business, viz:

5. Action on appointments submitted by the Mayor August 18, 1930, of James E. Lloyd, to be a Weigher of Coal and Harry Carpenito, to be a Weigher of Goods.

The question came on confirmation, and the Chair appointed Coun. Cox and Fitzgerald to receive, sort and count the ballots. Whole number of ballots 12, yeas 12, and the appointments were severally confirmed.

Coun. WILSON—Pardon me, Mr. President, but I should have asked and will now ask, that there be included in the vote the names of Spiros Kaliris in No. 7 and Henry Talberth in No. 12, after which, if there is no objection, I will present a few orders.

President LYNCH—Coun. Wilson moves that the names as read be taken from the calendar. The Chair will appoint Coun. Fish and Wilson to receive, sort and count the ballots.

Whole number of ballots 12, yeas 12, and the appointments were severally confirmed.

CLOSING OF SUFFOLK COUNTY COURTHOUSE FOR TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION.

Coun. WILSON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Justices of the Supreme Court, through his Honor the Mayor, be, and said Justices hereby are, respectfully requested to close the Suffolk County Courthouse on the occasion of the Tercentenary celebration and parade on the afternoon of Wednesday, September 17, 1930.

Coun. WILSON—With reference to that particular order I have been requested by numerous constituents employed in the courthouse to introduce such an order in view of the fact that that is really Boston's day in the Tercentenary celebration, and without some such order by the Justices of the Supreme Court, even though there is a big holiday in Boston on that day, and even though all the city departments will receive a half-holiday, the courthouse will be open until the usual hour unless some action is taken.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

LAYING OUT OF BERNARD STREET.

Coun. WILSON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Board of Street Commissioners be requested to accept and lay out Bernard street, Ward 17, Dorchester, from Norfolk street to Southern avenue.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

PROPOSED ACCEPTANCE OF CLEMENTINE PARK.

Coun. WILSON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Board of Street Commissioners accept and lay out Clementine park, sometimes known as Clement park, Dorchester, from Centre street to Dayton street.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

RESTRICTION OF USE OF ATLANTIC AVENUE BY STEAM RAILROAD TRAINS.

Coun. WILSON offered the following:

Ordered, That the Street Commission be respectfully requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to advise the City Council whether the present use of Atlantic avenue for steam railroad trains is by license granted by the City of Boston and whether there is any restriction with reference to hours of use; and Further ordered, That the Street Commission, through his Honor the Mayor, be, and said Street Commission hereby is, respectfully requested to restrict the use of Atlantic avenue by steam trains to such hours as shall not unreasonably interfere with traffic along Atlantic avenue and such intersecting streets as Richmond street, Clinton street and South Market street.

Coun. WILSON—With reference to that order, I introduce that order at this time, having in mind that the City of Boston has spent recently between $100,000 and $200,000 for a very beautiful and partly effective, growing more effective, lighting system for traffic, and traffic is allowed to go with some rapidity on Tremont street and Washington street, but due to the fact that this railroad is allowed to shuttle its trains up and down Atlantic avenue every morning, all the traffic that this expensive lighting system brings into the heart of the city, immediately on turning right, comes through Dock square, with its great and expensive widening, down through such streets as Richmond and streets in the market district, and go on down Atlantic avenue, and there is stopped anywhere from half an hour to an hour every single morning in the week, and it seems to me that if this railroad is to be allowed to negative the entire effect of this lighting system, they at least ought to be restricted in the use of their cars to night hours, or hours not between 8 and 10 in the morning.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

PROPOSED FOOT PASSAGEWAY OR BRIDGE ACROSS TRACKS AT BUTLER STREET.

Coun. WILSON offered the following:

Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor instruct the proper department or departments to at once provide for and construct a suitable foot passage-way or bridge across the tracks at Butler street on the new Dorchester Rapid Transit for making the proposed Boston Elevated Railway loading platform at that point easily and safely accessible.

LOADING PLATFORM FOR PASSENGERS AT BUTLER STREET.

Coun. WILSON offered the following.

Ordered, That the Transit Commission be, and said commission hereby is, respectfully requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to proceed at once with plans and with construction of an appropriate loading platform for passengers at Butler street on the new Dorchester Rapid Transit line.

Coun. WILSON—Mr. President, those two orders concern a matter in which I have for over two years been making a fight for proper and convenient transportation facilities on the new rapid transit line in the so-called Lower Mills section of Dorchester. While this great public improvement was still under construction, as long ago as September 5, 1928, the following order was, at my request, passed by the City Council:

"Ordered, That the Transit Commission be, and said commission hereby is, through his Honor the Mayor, respectfully requested to advise the City Council forthwith the approximate cost of constructing along the line of the new Dorchester Rapid Transit a footbridge and way station at or near the site of the present freight house at Butler street, thereby offering convenient rapid transit facilities for residents in the entire Richmond street, Adams street, Huntoon and Medway streets sections in view of the fact that the proposed Cedar Grove Station is over a mile distant."

The answer of the Transit Department was as follows, in the City Council minutes of November 13, 1928:

"City of Boston,

Transit Department, October 31, 1928.

Hon. Malcolm E. Nichols,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Sir,—We return herewith order of the City Council, dated September 5, 1928, requesting the approximate cost of constructing a footbridge and station over the Dorchester Rapid Transit near Butler street.

It is estimated that it will cost $23,000 for a 5-foot passageway, together with the necessary island platform.

It is assumed that the people in this vicinity will utilize the Milton Station, which is about a quarter of a mile from Butler street.

Very truly yours,

CITY OF BOSTON TRANSIT DEPARTMENT,
by THOMAS F. SULLIVAN,
Chairman."

In view of the large section and the larger number of people affected, and the fact that over one half of the passengers at the Milton Station come from the Grove or Butler street side of the Neponset river, we continued to urge the construction of a way station at Butler street, or even a footbridge over the Neponset river. When the railroad bridge was actually under construction across the river I received assurances from both the Boston Elevated Railway Company and the Transit Commission that this way would be built, to allow later for such a bridge. In September, 1929, I again appeared before the Trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company and urged some relief. In October I learned that the opposition of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was really preventing the construction of the contemplated footbridge. I wrote in October, 1929, to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and also to the Boston Elevated Railway and finally was able to effect a conference early this year, at which time Mr. Dana of the Elevated and representatives of the Trustees of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad were all present, together with the officers of the Lower Mills Improvement Association, and at that time the Elevated promised to make plans either for a foot passageway across the Neponset river or a station platform at Butler street. Following that, on June 4, 1930, I took a referendum of the registered voters in the entire district affected with reference to their preference for a way station or a foot passageway across the Neponset river, and reported the result of that to the Elevated Railway Company, and last week it was my privilege to have a conference with Mr. Dana of the Elevated, at which the president of the Lower Mills Improvement Association was present. The study made by the Elevated engineers, their No. 30-82, has now been completed. A loading platform at this point, it appears, will cost the Elevated about $12,000; an overhead footbridge across the tracks, about 6 feet wide for a proper approach, will cost about $16,000, but will mean a reasonably convenient car stop for scores, and perhaps hundreds of families, both in the Grove section, and on the Adams and Richmond street sides, no longer necessitating a long and circuitous walk all the way up Adams street, through Pierce square, and down to the Milton Station. I have every assurance that a glance at any street map of the section affected will convince his Honor the Mayor that the request I now make for relief is a reasonable and proper one. I believe that an examination of the blueprint plans drawn by the Boston Elevated engineers will convince his Honor the Mayor that the city should cooperate to the fullest extent, especially in view of a total cost of less than $28,000 for both footbridge and loading platform, which have been urged and sought for by the people of this district since as long ago as September, 1928.

The orders were severally passed under suspension of the rule.

EMPLOYMENT OF MEN RECEIVING PUBLIC WELFARE RELIEF AS CLAM DIGGERS

Coun. GREEN offered the following:

Ordered, That the Overseers of the Public Welfare be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to report to the City Council what arrangements it has made with a clam dealer with offices in the Kimball Building to place men receiving relief at work digging clams, and what wages are paid these men.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

AIRPORTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The number of airports in the country continues to grow steadily, and the listing compiled by the Department of Commerce showed 1,520 airports in operation on October 2 of this year. Of these, 442 were municipal airports, and 468 were privately owned and operated. The rest included army fields, naval air stations, Department of Commerce intermediate fields, marked auxiliary fields and miscellaneous others. As will be noted, the municipal airports comprise 29 per cent of the total number now in use in the country. The fact that 442 cities of various sizes have indicated their interest by investing substantial funds in the purchase of property and construction of these airports illustrates the stability of aviation today. As indicative of the volume of traffic already in evidence at municipal airports, it might be noted that in a recent representative week the Des Moines airport showed 88 airplanes arriving and 86 leaving. Oakland, California, showed 55 arriving, 52 leaving; while the Tulsa, Oklahoma, airport showed 272 arriving and 265 leaving. These figures are constantly increasing, and they show that the city airport is already being used.

PORT OF BOSTON.

Boston Harbor comprises an area of about 47 square miles (exclusive of the islands), including all the expanse of tidewater within a straight line from Point Allerton to Point Shirley and extending therefrom to the mainland. It is the best of natural harbors, near open sea, sheltered and spacious for anchorage; main ship channel 35 feet in depth at mean low water, increasing to 40 feet from President Roads to open sea; new dredging operations in charge of United States engineers are under way for increasing depth of said main channel to 40 feet; waterfront (i. e., lineal pier space) 40 miles, 6 miles fronting on 30 feet depth at low water.

Commonwealth Pier No. 5, South Boston, 1,200 feet long, 400 feet wide, accommodating five 600-foot ships at one time, 40 feet depth at mean low water on both sides, with three 2-story fireproof buildings of steel and concrete construction, containing 900,000 square feet of floor space, total cost of this enterprise to State, $4,500,000. Commonwealth Pier No. 6, South Boston (Fish Pier), buildings on same erected by lessee, Boston Fish Market Corporation, cost to State, $1,487,361. Commonwealth Pier, No. 1, East Boston, 900 feet long, costing State $764,600 for site and $426,674 for construction. New dry dock at South Boston (probably the largest in world), completed in 1919, 1,200 feet long and 120 wide, costing $3,169,651 and taken by United States Government at total cost.

Islands in Boston Harbor over 3 acres in area, 17, with total area of 965 acres; Long Island the largest, or 215.5 acres. Owned by United States, 392 acres; by City of Boston, 334 acres. Number of wharves, 143, of which eight are owned by the city.

There are 38 foreign steamship lines with regular sailings to and from Boston, ten coastwise lines and three intercoastal. In 1915 a revision of the harbor lines was made and the project undertaken whereby 600 acres of flats between Governor's Island and Jeffries Pt. will be filled in and used for extensive commercial developments under State control. About 175 acres of flats have recently been filled in and added to the land area of East Boston and 160 acres to that of South Boston.

In April, 1918, the Government decided to establish its Army Supply Base on a portion of the Commonwealth lands in South Boston. About 57.6 acres were purchased of the State, the price being $1,317,510, soon followed by the construction of two pier sheds, each 920 feet long, a wharf shed and other buildings, including one of the largest storehouses in the world, built of reinforced concrete, eight stories high, 1,638 feet long, 126 feet wide and with floor space of over 1,650,000 square feet. The total outlay for the plant was $26,000,000.

Total expenditure by State for improvement of Boston Harbor $22,575,827 from 1859 to November 30, 1927, inclusive; in the same period, there was expended additionally $951,992 on small channels; total Federal expenditure from 1790 to June 30, 1927, $13,258,846.

FLAG DAYS.

By order of the City Council it is the duty of the City Messenger to have the national colors displayed upon the public flagstuffs on the following days:

Franklin's Birthday, January 17; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Evacuation Day, March 17; Patriot's Day, April 19; Grant's Birthday, April 27; Memorial Day, May 30; Anniversary of Adoption of National Colors, June 14; Bunker Hill Day, June 17; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, September (first Monday); Anniversary of Founding of Boston, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Armistice Day, November 11.

THE COST OF DIPHTHERIA.

Diphtheria costs New York City over $5,000,000 annually, according to Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, whose statement, given in a news release from the department, is based on the calculations of the value of the lives lost, the cost of hospital care, and the expense of caring for patients in their homes.

Last year the loss occasioned by diphtheria in New York City was as follows:

Value of 642 human lives lost.....	$4,575,000
Cost of hospital care for 2,976 cases in the Contagious Disease Hospitals.....	391,000
Cost of caring for 7,800 cases in private homes.....	273,000
	$5,139,000

As against an annual economic loss of over $5,000,000 a year it is stated that an expenditure of less than 10 per cent of this sum will suffice to wipe out diphtheria and thus save the community $4,500,000 annually.

Figures by the New York City Department of Health show that thus far this year over 25,000 children have been immunized against diphtheria, nearly 12,000 having been protected by private physicians. The growing interest on the part of parents is well shown in the steady increase in the number of children immunized, which increased from 555 in the first week of the present campaign to 4,702 during the first week in April, or almost ninefold.

MUNICIPALITY TAKES OVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AIRPORT.

Oklahoma City has voted $425,000 in bonds for the enlargement and improvement of its municipal airport. The Aviation Committee of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce has operated the airport for the past four years and was largely instrumental in putting over the bond-issue campaign. The port will in the future be operated by the city as a strictly municipal project.

When completed, the new field will comprise 360 acres and will meet all of the qualifications for an A 1A airport as set forth by the United States Department of Commerce.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS REDUCE BALTIMORE TRAFFIC TOLL.

An analysis of traffic accidents at street intersections in Baltimore indicates that the automatic traffic signal is proving very effective in reducing the number of such accidents.

There were 419 traffic accidents at all intersections covered in the report issued by the Baltimore Safety Council for the first six months of 1927, before the signals were installed. In direct contrast, only 259 such accidents were recorded for the first six months of this year, with the signals in operation.

The casualties were: one person killed and 129 injured before the installation of the signals, as compared with two killed but only 92 injured after. A reduction in the number of accidents was reported at thirty-two intersections, following the installation of the signals, while seventeen other intersections have shown little or no change as yet, and ten actually have experienced an increase since the use of the signals.

THROUGH TRAFFIC STREETS.

Many a city government, confronted almost unawares by the ever-increasing traffic problem, has seized upon the "through street" idea as the least expensive sop to those who clamor for something to relieve the distress. This situation is reflected in many city traffic ordinances which give absolute right-of-way to vehicles on any of the "arterial highways" included in a long list, and which fail entirely to provide for stop requirements, signs, enforcement facilities, or public education. Unfortunately, traffic regulation is not so simple. It cannot be successfully accomplished by merely designating certain through streets.

Still, through streets are useful. Their successful application depends only on an understanding of what can and what cannot be expected of them, and on a realization of where they fit into the traffic control picture. Consider a street as it develops with the increasing traffic from a minor highway to a heavily traveled main thoroughfare. Traffic control will logically develop in successive steps something like these:

1. No control at all.
2. Slow or stop signs at isolated intersections.
3. Through streets with stop signs at every intersection.
4. Occasional automatic signals introduced where there is heavy cross traffic.
5. Complete flexible progressive signal control.
6. Grade separation at important intersecting streets.
7. Elevated or depressed roadway without intersecting streets.

CALLS ON MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRACY TO RESTORE FUNDAMENTALS OF LIBERTY AND EQUAL OPPORTUNITY AND SOLVE QUESTION OF JUSTICE FOR THE TOILER IN AMERICA. MAYOR CURLEY STIRS DEMOCRACY OF STATE TO WILD ENTHUSIASM DURING TREMONT TEMPLE ADDRESS.

Mayor Curley, speaking at Tremont Temple at the convention of the Democratic State Committee, said in part as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have just passed through a little skirmish in which, fortunately, none of the candidates for office — either State office or National office — were in any way materially singed. Singeing was received, fortunately, by other than candidates for office, so that we enter this campaign under materially different circumstances than Democratic campaigns have been entered into previously in the history of the Democratic party in Massachusetts.

I sometimes wonder if we have a realization of what a prodigious task was accomplished two years ago, and if we contrast conditions two years ago with conditions as they present themselves today there is no way in which to justify anything other than full and complete optimism as to the success of the Democracy in the coming campaign.

Two years ago, or to be more exact in 1928, represented some six full years of unprecedented prosperity in the United States of America. The wages of the worker in most cases had been doubled, the outlook on life through the increased wage was made more courageous than ever in the history, not alone of America, but of any country in the world from the beginning of time. In 1928 America reached the apex in the matter of wealth created, produced or derived from the earth. The actual value of all materials in dollars and cents derived from the earth either in the form of mineral wealth, or of oils, or of fabricated industry, or raised in agriculture, reached the huge sum of ninety billions of dollars. The total value of our exports approximated about four and three quarter billions of dollars and our imports four and one half billions of dollars, so that for the first time in the history of America, the people enjoyed a larger measure of the produced wealth of the land than ever previously known in the history of America. We could have lived unto ourselves without exporting a single dollar's worth of goods, or without importing a single dollar's worth of goods.

In that campaign it was unnecessary to raise the cry of the "full dinner pail"; it was in evidence everywhere and in a larger measure than ever known in the history of America. At that time the Democratic party without a single outstanding economic issue, with two issues called moral but of questionable character, with little organization and with no organized money behind it, polled the extraordinary amount of 15,000,000 for that great son of New York, Alfred E. Smith.

Reduce Insurance Charges.

In the last two years — notably in the present year — the picture has changed materially. We may contend that insurance rates are an issue, and they are a live issue in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Apply the same principle in the ferreting out of the guilty ones in the matter of collection of insurance damages that the City of Boston has applied in the matter of suitors against the City for fake claims and you could reduce overnight insurance charges in Massachusetts by at least twenty-five per cent, and possibly more. But the Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts, so long as he continues amenable to his masters — the insurance interests — and obeys their behests, regardless of justice for the people, will always find a well-salaried job in the offing when his term as Insurance Commissioner expires.

We may contend prohibition is a real live issue, and it is, if we are to accept the statement of a recent visitor from England, His Worship, Reuben Salter.

But all these issues pale into insignificance alongside the primal issue — the preservation of the fundamentals written into the Declaration of Independence by the son of Democracy, Thomas Jefferson — liberty and equality of opportunity. We must restore these fundamentals or we will reckon with the forces that are typified in the march of the world by chaos and the destruction of that organized society created by the sacrifice of women and men in nearly two thousand centuries.

The Republican party in their consideration of this aspect and this issue in American life have disclosed not only incapacity but inaptitude and absolute cowardice in solving a question of economic justice for the toiler in America. So the contest this year differs materially from the contest of two years ago. If two years ago with every individual in Massachusetts willing to work was provided an opportunity, if every individual in Massachusetts at work was receiving more pay than ever previously received for similar work in the history of the Commonwealth, if in the face of that prosperity it was possible to carry the Commonwealth for Alfred E. Smith, I submit to you that with 300,000 persons out of employment, with a New England winter at hand with all its severity and all its hardship, with the prospect of tears and sorrow and suffering in the home, there is no reason why we cannot consider the battle in November as the skirmish preceding the real battle two years from now, in the election of a Democratic President.

Now, then, under these circumstances, there is no way to justify keeping any war horse in the stable. I have had my differences in the past with about every man in politics in Boston. I will probably have them in the future. If I don't I will be unhappy. The only hard part of it is that when you are holding the office of Mayor there is a certain element of dignity that goes with the office that prevents you from going back to the stone age and carrying out the dictates of your heart and mind and your strong right arm.

AMERICA STILL LAND OF HOPE AND OPPORTUNITY—OPTIMISTIC MESSAGE BROADCAST BY MAYOR CURLEY AT OPENING OF RADIO SHOW.

The Mayor, speaking at the Radio Exhibition at the Boston Gardens, delivered the following address:

Mr. Fairbanks, Ladies and Gentlemen.—I am exceedingly grateful to the manager of the Boston Gardens, Mr. Sheldon H. Fairbanks, for his very great courtesy in extending to me an invitation to come here and permitting me an opportunity to visit the various exhibits and note the remarkable strides which have been made in one of the most interesting inventions, and one of the most valued contributions to the pleasure and comfort of every individual in the entire world—the radio.

I want to say that I wish it were possible for every single individual that is obsessed with the spirit of pessimism at the present time to come here and witness the courage and the confidence that is here displayed by the various concerns interested in the development of radio as exemplified by their exhibits.

The most unfortunate thing that can come to any individual, and certainly the most lamentable that could come to a nation, is what has been termed the psychology of fear. After all, there is really no way in which to justify the psychology of fear, notwithstanding that possibly, there may be three millions of men out of work in America at the present time. We must not overlook the all-important fact, however, that while twenty-five years ago less than one half a million women were employed in industry, today approximately fifteen million are employed in industry in the United States of America.

We must not be unmindful of the additional fact that the acreage of America is just as great today as it was in the most prosperous period in the history of the United States of America, either 1927 or 1928. 1928 was unquestionably the banner year in the life of America, wages were higher and more persons found employment than in any era in the history of America. The actual value of goods produced, fabricated in industry, or derived from the earth in the form of oil, mineral wealth or coal approximated the tremendous figure of ninety billions of dollars.

WEALTH OF COUNTRY STILL HERE.

Not one single acre has been taken away from the United States. The wealth of the nation, as represented in oil and mineral wealth is almost as great today as it was in 1928. There is more actual wealth in the nation today than in any previous time in the history of the nation. There is more money in the Federal treasury today than at any time in the history of America. The savings bank deposits are greater today per capita than at any previous time in the history of America, and more money is to be found in the trust companies and the national banks than at any other time in the history of the United States of America. We have had no epidemics; we have had no plague; there has been just a depression in the agricultural regions of America. But it is no innovation in any sense. We have had agricultural depressions and agricultural troubles for a period of nearly eighty-five years.

There is a possibility that as a consequence of the irritation created by the agricultural depression that in justifying our attempt to provide relief for the farming element and agricultural element we may succeed in finding a panacea for all of the ills that afflict the people of our common country. One in every four persons in America are engaged in agriculture, and one in every three out of a total population of 122,000,000 are dependent directly or indirectly upon the success of agriculture. No element of the American population is better organized or represents greater wealth or greater power politically than the agricultural element in America. Every candidate for the presidency of the United States needs the aid of the agricultural element in order to achieve success, and with a national election only two years away there is not only a probability, there is a certainty, that the ills of the agriculturists will be allayed before the next national election.

Now, then, I submit to you, if we have not lost a single acre of land in the last two years in the life of America, and if the wealth of America is greater today than at any time in the history of America, if more money is available for legitimate business enterprises at a lower rate of interest than ever previously known in the history of America, then there is no way to justify the spirit of pessimism that obtains in the United States of America.

AMERICA'S MAN POWER UNHARMED BY WAR.

If every individual in America who has a radio that is two years old, and who is in a position financially to do so, would buy a 1930 or a 1931 type of radio, instead of laying off 7,500 radio employees as the Radio Corporation of America has done within the last two weeks, more than one hundred thousand of the unemployed in America would be absorbed by that single industry. We must be helpful. We are a great nation. Allowing that every one of the three million persons in the nation that are unemployed represents three persons who must be supported and are dependent upon the work of the three millions for their support, it only means nine million out of the 122,000,000 population that are actually suffering as a consequence of the industrial depression. Contrast this condition with any of the countries in Europe, where not only there is greater industrial depression than in America but where the wage scale is only one third as great as in the United States of America.

Someone asked President Doumergue of France the other day how he accounted for the prosperity of France, and he said "Don't overlook the fact that we lost one and one-half million of the best of our young men in the period of the world war, and five hundred thousand in addition were so incapacitated from wounds as to never be able to work again."

Two millions of the best blood of France sacrificed in the war out of a total population of less than one half as great as the total population of the United States of America. We did not lose two million men in the world war. The total losses we sustained were slightly in excess of 70,000. We have everything here that a nation and a people could hope for. We have land; we have virgin territory; we have great wealth; we owe no nation in the world a single dollar; we have hope and confidence in the future as expressed by this splendid exhibition here. Just one thing we need. We need just a little touch of that old pioneer spirit that made possible the establishment three hundred years ago of the Massachusetts Bay Colony; that made possible the success of an eight-year struggle for the establishment of liberty, for the achievement of the hopes of the good women and men for nearly twenty centuries who carried the old pioneer spirit of daring, of confidence and of faith.

BUYING PROCESS WOULD START WHEELS OF INDUSTRY.

If every individual in America who is now employed would start in tomorrow and buy $20 worth of goods, do you realize what it would mean? If one hundred million Americans would do that it would mean the expenditure of two billions of dollars in one week—two billions of dollar spread over the length and breadth of the United States of America, would turn a condition of pessimism to a condition of supreme optimism.

Every retail establishment would find its shelves empty. Every wholesaler would find it impossible to supply the demands of the retailers. The factories would start up, and work and wages would take the place of saddened hearts and saddened faces. This is America! America is the land of opportunity and of optimism. If you have a dollar in your pocket spend it here tonight, or spend it some other place. Trust in Almighty God that the best country in the world, made possible the road to hope and progress, and a prosperous future, not only for you but for every man, woman and child in the best land in the whole world, our country—America!

MAYOR CURLEY AGAIN CALLS FOR STORES CLOSING FOR LEGION PARADE.

Mayor Curley, on September 30, issued the following statement:

The response of the public to the request recently made that all business houses and private individuals, wherever possible, display the National Colors for the Legion Week Observance has been most gratifying.

Many individuals and business houses, unfortunately, have disregarded the request and I take this opportunity to again urge favorable action. The American Legion Posts are performing a most notable work in the matter of decorating not only the quarters which they occupy but the principal thoroughfares through which the parade is routed.

It is unfair to require these men, who in the hour of the Nation's trial, sacrificed position, income, and the comforts and joys of home, to die, if need be, for the preservation of the heritage which we as Americans enjoy, namely, liberty and equality, to assume the entire burden. The path of duty is clear, and recognizing that the failure upon the part of the public generally is due to oversight and carelessness rather than to studied neglect I again appeal to everyone to decorate both home and place of business even though the decoration consist of but a small American flag. By performing this patriotic service it will be possible to give expression to our appreciation for the work the Legion has done, is now doing and, I pray God, will continue doing, for the good of America.

ADDRESS OF MAYOR CURLEY.

So, my friends, it is a very great pleasure to be here at home, with a Democratic gathering, with a realization of how sweet to the nostrils is the smell of victory and with a realization of how weak is the cause of the Republican party.

They contend that it is time to give consideration to those social and economic methods of meeting a great economic crisis that is destroying the virility and sapping the superiority complex of the British race—the establishment of the “dole system”—in America. No man who loves America and hopes for the opportunity granted by the Constitution, and the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence, and the future of his children wants to see America a servile nation. No man wants to see the independence that comes from pioneer stock destroyed; no one wants to see initiative in American life crushed by making mendicants of the American people. It is a great nation with tremendous possibilities for the expenditure of public funds and I would rather spend ten billions of dollars providing work for people than give one solitary dollar in charity.

How have the Republicans met the situation? The President of the United States, well-intentioned, well-meaning, a simple man, called a conference of the business leaders to map out a program, then announced to the waiting world that five hundred and fifty-two millions of dollars were to be expended on public works, and further said “We are going to spend two billions of dollars on the Mississippi River reclamation project.” Then about six months later they discovered that under the Constitution they could not expend on a building program more than fifty millions of dollars in any one year. The $552,000,000 faded in the distance; and on examination of the Mississippi River project—a project that would reduce the cost of transportation by more than 70 per cent—it is discovered that after an entire year less than $375,000,000 has been expended on what was termed a two billion dollar project.

How about the men who answered the call and made the promise? Installation of automatic devices; every time the telephone company puts in a system whereby the user of the telephone becomes a telephone operator, two out of every three girls employed in the exchange lose their positions. We are living in a machine age. The steam shovel and the endless belt have taken away opportunity for a livelihood from 1,000,000 persons in the last ten years, and automatic machinery millions more, and no intelligent, comprehensive, cohesive action taken to provide an opportunity for the people of America who have lost not their employment but their jobs. The condition does not differ very materially from the condition confronting the great war hero, the President of the United States, during his administration—Woodrow Wilson. When the Federal Reserve Act was proposed there was not a single banker of standing in America, not one, that was favorable to the adoption of the Federal Reserve Act. There is no one in America today who would have it removed from the statute books of the United States. It made for elasticity and elasticity made possible the financing and the winning of the greatest war in the history of the world. It made for security and protection of the toiler in every banking institution in America. Wilson did not hesitate to go ahead with it; he did not hesitate with the Interstate Commerce Commission Act. His administration goes down in history as a golden page in the life of America. Win the skirmish in November, and you pave the way for victory two years from now. You have candidates able, capable, competent, exceptionally brilliant and who compare more than favorably with their Republican opponents. To my mind there is only one thing necessary.

The Democratic party is not overburdened with workers; the Democratic party has never been overburdened with cash, even when they controlled every public office in the nation, but money is needed now. In fact, I think they had less when they controlled national offices than when they were out of office. But money is needed for registration; money is needed to get out the vote on election day. You may have the very best issues and your candidates may be the most capable men in any community, but unless they are financed on Election day and the votes are on the registered list their case is absolutely hopeless.

As Mayor of the Democratic City of Boston—elected as a non-partisan upon several occasions; and still a Democrat, I am anxious to see as United States Senator the peer of William S. Butler—our good friend—Marcus Aurelius Coolidge and equally anxious to see the son of Westfield—Joe Ely—elected Governor. I want to take this opportunity to tender him as an initial contribution to the building up of the registered list, to insure success on election day, a check for one thousand dollars.

MAYOR CURLEY THANKED FOR RECEPTION TO JAPANESE.

Mayor Curley, on September 29, received the following communication from Mr. Henry P. Kendall, President of the Taylor Society, 80 Federal street, Boston:

DEAR MAYOR CURLEY,—Please accept my most sincere appreciation of your courteous and warm-hearted treatment of the fourteen Japanese who visited Boston under the auspices of the Taylor Society, of which I am president.

Your breakfast was a delightful affair. Our Japanese friends said many times during their visit that they would never forget your kindness and hospitality. I, of course, only understood those of their remarks which were in English. I have no doubt but what they said in Japanese was much more hearty.

Due to your kindness and the splendid cooperation of Mr. Scully and the Industrial Bureau, the Japanese made a tour of historic Boston Sunday afternoon. I was not able to join the tour, but Mr. Moore of my office, who did, tells me the Japanese were thoroughly pleased.

Mr. Euno, the leader of the party, said that all of the Japanese agreed that in other American cities they visited before coming to Boston, they felt something was missing. When they arrived in Boston they discovered what that missing element was—namely, a background of historical tradition such as they know and love in their own country.

Mr. Moore tells me that the Port of Boston made a particularly fine impression upon the Japanese. They saw at the Army Base a ship which had just arrived from Tokyo where many of them live. They saw the “Laconia” putting out for England. They saw a ship from South America, and, all in all, gained a most favorable impression of Boston's port.

Again, I thank you most cordially for all you have done.

Cordially,

HENRY P. KENDALL.

WOULD EMPLOY MEN AS GOLF CADDIES.

His Honor the Mayor on September 30, addressed the following communication to Mr. Alvah W. Rydstrom, President of the Massachusetts Golf Association:

DEAR SIR,—A suggestion has been received from a Boston business man which I am taking the liberty of forwarding you, and which may be somewhat helpful in providing opportunities for work for men seeking employment without success, the suggestion being that now the boys have gone back to school that have been employed at the various golf courses as caddies, that men be selected for this work and that the price for caddying be increased from $1 to $1.50 for eighteen holes.

In this way some slight opportunities for additional work may be made available to men, many of whom are now without prospect for work and who are able to do work of this character but could not do work of a more laborious nature.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

FOREIGN TEAMS IN BIG CITY SHOW.

Mayor Curley, on September 30, received the following communication from Mr. John R. Macomber of Harris, Forbes & Co., Boston:

DEAR MR. MAYOR,—Thank you so much for your letter of the 25th. I saw a cable on my return yesterday announcing the acceptance by the Swedish team for participation in the coming Boston show, which is, of course, highly gratifying. This gives us four foreign teams to participate at the Garden in October, and will be a tremendous drawing card and of great interest, I know, to our citizens.

We are all keenly appreciative of the efforts of your Honor, and extend to you our sincere thanks.

Very truly yours,

JOHN R. MACOMBER.

CITY STARTS PAYING OFF OF NOTES.

On Wednesday, October 1, the City Treasurer starts paying the notes of the city for money borrowed during the current year.

The total amount borrowed in anticipation of taxes for the year 1930 was $22,000,000, as against $21,000,000 borrowed in 1929. In view of the fact that the city treasury started the year with $2,200,000 less in cash than 1929, and the usual increase in expenditures might account for $2,000,000 additional requirement for the year, it was expected that temporary borrowings would amount to about $25,000,000.

A great saving in interest charges therefore has been affected due in part to the low interest rates procured upon the loans. The total cost for interest in 1930 was $185,492.74 as against $336,909.37 in 1929, or a saving for the city of $151,516.63.

The city will pay $1,000,000 on October 1; $3,000,000 on October 2; $10,000,000 on October 3; $3,000,000, on October 6; and $5,000,000 on October 7, and will have a balance of about $10,000,000 for the remainder of the year.

CIRCULAR LETTER NO. 23.

MAYOR'S OFFICE,

BOSTON, September 25, 1930.

To the Heads of Departments, Including County Officials.

GENTLEMEN,—Section 23, Chapter 3 of the Revised Ordinances provides that "every officer in charge of a department shall annually, on or before the first day of November, send to the Mayor an estimate in detail of the appropriations required for such department for the next financial year." The budget sheets to be used in the submission of departmental estimates for the year 1931 have been prepared and may now be obtained at the office of the Budget Commissioner, 47 City Hall. These sheets should be secured at once and preparation of budget estimates for the new year started immediately.

Your attention is expressly directed to the instructions which appear on the reverse side of each of the estimate forms. Especial attention is directed to the instruction which requires the submission of explanatory letters in conjunction with the estimate forms. These letters furnish the detail required under the ordinances and no departmental budget will be considered complete unless this instruction is observed and followed. The Budget Commissioner has been directed to return all estimates not accompanied by the proper detail.

Of the many factors entering into the determination of the tax rate, the Budget is the sole factor over which the Mayor exercises a full measure of control. A reduction in the tax rate for 1931 is desirable and is possible, provided, through an improvement in industrial conditions, the amount necessary for the maintenance of charities, corrections and hospitalization is reduced. Department heads are aware that if a reduction is to be made, the proper place to start is with the budget estimates for the year 1931, and you are accordingly directed in the preparation of estimates to submit the irreducible minimum.

In these days of the "vanishing job," city employees occupy an enviable position. The security of employment which surrounds every city employee is an asset which cannot be overlooked. In view of the serious unemployment condition prevailing throughout the country, I do not deem it expedient to favor any general salary increase policy for the new year. The following rules indicate the maximum increases I shall be willing to consider on the recommendation of department heads:

For those groups of employees whose salaries are regulated under definitely established and recognized sliding scales, consider the highest rate of pay in the different groups as the maximum and allow in meritorious cases a $100 step rate increase to members of the groups receiving less than the maximum.

For clerical employees consider $2,300 as the maximum and allow in meritorious cases an increase not in excess of $100 to clerical employees receiving less than the maximum.

If any doubt exists as to the interpretation of these rules, consultation with the Budget Commissioner in advance of the preparation of the estimates is desirable. Department heads will be held individually responsible for strict compliance with this policy.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

PRAISES MAYOR CURLEY'S RADIO LEGION INVITATION SPEECH.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 12, received the following communication from Scott Ferris, of Oklahoma, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee:

MY DEAR MAYOR CURLEY.

I heard you make a very wonderful speech over the radio the other night regarding the legion convention in Boston. It was the most wonderful of all the speeches made—I listened to them all, from all over the country. I was proud of you—happy to hear your wonderful speech and happy to hear the music in your wonderful voice. It again brought to my mind the old days when we were marching through Boston carrying Champ Clark to victory and I remember through all the years that you have always been generous and wonderful to everybody that ever came in contact with you.

I just learned in Tulsa from one of your Washington friends of the death of Mrs. Curley, and I made bold to write a short note amidst the turmoil of the convention and asked this young friend of yours to mail it to you. If he did you will have received my sympathy in that letter, if not please let me extend it to you here. I remember what a wonderful and beautiful woman Mrs. Curley was, remember her charms and graces, and know how devoted you were to her and I know how terrible the loss must have been. May I express the hope that your sterling qualities will give you strength to bear up under a loss so great.

Again I make bold to congratulate you on your very wonderful speech—again I make bold to cling to our friendship that has run over the years. May I express the hope that sometime during the approaching campaign, or if not this year two years hence, you may come out to us and have all our good people hear how wonderful you are. Asking to be remembered to such friends as I have in Boston, and commanding me for any service I can render in any way, I am, with very great respect,

Sincerely yours,

SCOTT FERRIS.

Upon entering, he found a man who was about to depart with the contents of the safe which had been broken open. The criminal was arrested at gun point and held in heavy bail for the Grand Jury.

In recognition of Patrolman O'Brien's vigilance in discovering this crime and his courage in effecting the arrest, it is hereby ordered that he be commended in General Orders and be allowed one day additional vacation.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

General Order No. 104.

Patrolman Timerbacka upon discovering these men who had already broken into one store and were in the act of breaking into another, marched them to the nearest police signal box at gun point and succeeded in pulling a wagon call.

The commissioner regards this as meritorious police work.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

APPROVE MAYOR CURLEY'S PLAN FOR SENDING WHEAT TO STARVING CHINA.

Mayor Curley, on September 25, received the following communication from Mr. W. R. Allen, of 45 Milk street, Boston:

"I have watched your course with a great deal of interest and observed the statesmanlike and humanitarian way you approach big problems.

Some time ago, you made a suggestion that the Federal Government buy a large amount of wheat and ship it to China. Perhaps on account of Governmental red tape or laws that would take a long time to change, your suggestion was not adopted.

Millions of people in China are in a deplorable condition. Millions, perhaps will starve in the next year. China is a great big friendly nation that must be kept out of the Communistic clutches of Russia. Many of our people in this country are not in any too good condition. The Biblical injunction is, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." I think we will help the situation all around by assisting one of the chief industries in our country in its hour of distress, and that is the farmer. His prosperity reflects into every village and hamlet.

I would suggest that clubs be formed for the purchase of wheat on the principle inaugurated during the war of buying a bale of cotton. Let our people subscribe, say in units of ten bushels, or even one bushel, and then ship this wheat to China. If you could work out something along this line, I will send you a check for fifty bushels, say not to exceed $1 per bushel.

Mr. Mayor, this is just a suggestion.

Mayor Curley replied to the above communication as follows:

"I am very grateful to you for your valued suggestion of this date and have been most pleased to forward the same to the National Director of The American Red Cross, Mr. John Barton Payne.

The most recent report received as to famine conditions in China was to the effect that in one province, the province of Chiang, that in the past six months three million persons have either been forced to migrate or have died of famine. With a civil war in progress and the growing crops trampled by the armies in their passage, it is not unreasonable to anticipate that with a population approximating four hundred and fifty million persons, not less than twenty-five millions will die of starvation during the coming winter. The suggestion made by you would unquestionably overcome the objections that have been raised by Chairman Legge of the Farm Survey Board.

The friendly relations that have existed between the people of China and the people of the United States for more than one hundred years would be materially strengthened provided the idea as contained in your letter were put into effect. In a country like China, where opportunity for education outside of the cities is extremely limited, traditions are all powerful and the tradition that America, when three millions of Chinese had died of starvation in a six months period were saved of a loss in excess of twenty-five millions through the foresight of the American people would unquestionably mean the friendliest possible relations that could exist between two peoples.

It is generally accepted that export markets for American productions in Europe, with the exception of raw materials, is out of the question for a long period of years, and it is generally admitted that the best possible market for America in the future is in the Orient and principally China. The opportunity to render a service not only to China but to America, almost in perpetuity and under a condition providing a measure of relief for the farmers of America, which measure of relief would unquestionably result in general prosperity for all America is of such tremendous importance that it is extremely difficult to determine how it will be possible for the Red Cross to refuse this opportunity for service.

Respectfully yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor."

Mayor Curley wrote to Mr. John Barton Payne, National Director of the American Red Cross, Washington, D. C., as follows:

DEAR MR. PAYNE,—I beg to inclose herewith letter with suggestions received this day and copy of my reply thereto.

I am quite certain that a majority of the people of America who are in a position to contribute share the views as expressed by Mr. Allen and would eagerly contribute in the event that the American Red Cross are agreeable to assuming this labor.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ORDERS.

General Order No. 89.

I. AMERICAN LEGION PARADE, OCTOBER 7, 1930.

The following regulations are hereby promulgated for the information and guidance of the department during the American Legion Parade on Tuesday, October 7, 1930, and will be in effect at 9 a. m. on that date and continue until the special signal is struck on department tappers after the conclusion of the parade.

The parade will start at 10 a. m. and the route of march will be as follows: Beacon street, from Massachusetts avenue, School street, Washington street to Dock square, Congress street through Post Office square to Milk street, Federal street, High street, Summer street, Winter street, Tremont street, Boylston street through Park square to Columbus avenue, Massachusetts avenue.

The following traffic lanes are established for the passage of fire apparatus through the parade, at which points a member will be detailed to facilitate the movement of apparatus, except at lanes 9 and 10, where there will not be any ropes:

1. Beacon and Dartmouth streets.
2. Beacon and Charles streets.
3. Tremont and School streets.
4. Washington and Court streets. (See Note.)
5. Franklin and Federal streets.
6. Washington and Summer streets.
7. Columbus avenue and Arlington street.
8. Dartmouth street at Columbus avenue.
9. Huntington and Massachusetts avenues.
10. Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues.

NOTE.—The traffic lane at Washington and Court streets is established for response to Boxes 1271, 1272 and 1282.

Prescribed routes will be temporarily suspended during this period in the parade area, and detour routes will be followed, parallel as near as possible to regular routes, the idea being not to break through the parade unless absolutely necessary and then only via the traffic lanes hereinbefore mentioned.

Engines 4 and 6, Ladders 1 and 24 in responding to boxes on the market and water side of Dock square will go through Hanover street, Elm street and Merchants row.

Where it is necessary for apparatus to proceed against traffic in order to reach the fire without unreasonable delay, company commanders are instructed to do so. It must be understood, however, that when this method of procedure is followed extreme care should be exercised in order to prevent accidents and loss of life or injury to person.

The changes in assignments which were in effect during the Tercentenary Parade on September 17, 1930, as outlined in General Order No. 80, c. s., as amended by Special Order to Division 1, dated September 12, 1930, will also be effective during this parade with the following additions:

Engine 33 and Ladder 15 will respond only to their regular first alarm boxes in the area bounded by the following streets: Massachusetts avenue, Charles River, Arlington street, Columbus avenue to Massachusetts avenue. They shall not respond to multiple alarms nor cover thereon, unless specifically ordered to do so by the Fire Alarm Office, and no company shall cover at the quarters of these companies during the hours of the parade, unless they are notified to do so by the Fire Alarm Office.

Automatic and A. D. T. alarms will not be struck on tappers but will be telephoned, and the Fire Alarm Office will take extra precautions to select the proper apparatus for still, automatic and A. D. T. alarms.

At the conclusion of the parade, upon receipt of orders from the Chief of Department, the Fire Alarm Office will send out a special signal of eleven (11) blows, struck once on tappers, following which the department will resume its regular operations.

By order of Fire Commissioner
EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY A. FOX,
Chief of Department.

CONFERENCE OF EDUCATORS CALLED TO STUDY UNEMPLOYMENT.

The Mayor, on September 26, addressed the following communication to the persons whose names are attached:

DEAR SIR,—The most important problem confronting America and, in fact, the world, at the present time is that of unemployment.

Various theories and programs have been advanced with a view to providing a solution but to the present time nothing really tangible has been developed.

The American Federation of Labor will convene in Boston in October and undoubtedly this question will be a subject for consideration and discussion. The unfortunate feature of the case, both at the present and in the past, has been that to organized labor alone has been delegated the task of providing a panacea.

The developments in the field of labor saving devices and the promotion of efficiency programs in industry, coupled with the invasion of industry by upwards of ten million women in America, makes the problem sufficiently acute to warrant the serious thought of leaders in every walk of life rather than the delegation of the all-important work of providing a solution to organized labor alone.

Substantially every great problem affecting the welfare of humanity during the last century and a half has been settled through the agency and leadership of Massachusetts citizens.

With a view to concentrating the attention of the leaders in economics of Massachusetts on the development of a program through which opportunities for a livelihood may be assured able and willing workers, a preliminary meeting has been arranged for a small group, as a nucleus for a larger group, to be held at the Parker House, Boston, at 12.30 p. m., upon Thursday, October 2, 1930.

Trusting that we may be favored by your presence, together with the head of the economics department of your institution, and enlightened by your viewpoint in this work, so important in its bearing upon the happiness in American homes, and patriotism in the land, I beg to remain,

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

MY DEAR MR. MAYOR,—The idea of a conference such as is suggested in your letter of September 26 for consideration of a problem which, as you say, is of extraordinary importance, receives my unqualified indorsement, and I shall be very happy to meet you and your other guests next Thursday at the Parker House at 12.30. I shall bring with me Professor Harvey A. Wooster of our Department of Economics, who has had some rather unusual opportunities to study labor problems in different parts of the country.

EXPLOSIVES EXPERT WALTER L. WEDGER PRAISES BOSTON'S TERCENTENARY FIREWORKS DISPLAY.

Mayor Curley, on September 29, received the following communication from Walter L. Wedger, 18 Bellevue road, Belmont, expert, explosives and inflammables:

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston.

DEAR MR. MAYOR,—Acting under your instructions of September 9, I attended the fireworks display on Boston Common, September 15, and also that on Charles River Basin, September 20.

The display on the Common consisted of about twenty-five set pieces interspersed with aerial bombs in great variety. The rooster fight, "Amos and Andy," and the naval engagement were particularly pleasing to the crowd, estimated at about 50,000 people. I noticed no "duds" among the aerial bombs and no accidents were called to my attention. The mortars for firing the bombs were buried in the ground in accordance with the law and there was adequate police protection.

The display on the Basin Saturday evening consisted almost entirely of aerial bombs of heavy calibre. It started with a general illumination of the three barges with red fire, appearing to those on shore like a beautiful illuminated island in the center of the Basin, from the center of which there was a continuous display of the aerial effects. Particularly noticeable were the parachute effects in mid-air. These consisted of changeable colored chains in festoons of three to a shell suspended by three parachutes and other shells displaying the American flag illuminated by fire pots of dazzling brilliancy. Parachute effects in heavy calibre shells are one of the most expensive and painstaking articles in pyrotechny.

They must be made just right or they will come down "on the run," and of the large number fired that night I noticed but one that failed to keep suspended in mid-air.

I consider this display of aerial work the finest I have ever witnessed during my long experience in fireworks.

It was estimated that the display was witnessed by about 100,000 people.

Charles River Basin, in my opinion, is the most ideal place for a fireworks display. No roped inclosure or police protection is needed and there is no danger of accidents from "duds" or sparks falling among the spectators. The vast space on both sides of the river as well as on Harvard and West Boston Bridges furnish ample room for the crowd without discomfort to anyone.

When we take into consideration that this display furnished forty-five minutes entertainment for the people at a per capita rate of 3½ cents each, I doubt if it can be equalled in any other form of recreation.

Respectfully yours,

WALTER L. WEDGER,
Expert, Explosives and Inflammables.

ENGLISH AND CANADIAN CITIZENS WRITE MAYOR CURLEY IN PRAISE OF TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION.

Mayor Curley has been the recipient of a number of letters from persons in Canada and England praising Boston and the success of the Tercentenary celebration, particularly the broadcast from the Court of Honor, when America and England exchanged greetings. Some of the communications read:

From the Hon. Oswald S. Crocket, Justice of the Supreme Court, of New Brunswick, Canada:

FREDERICTON, N. B., CANADA,
September 27, 1930.

MY DEAR MR. MAYOR,—I have been so completely engrossed in an exceptional pressure of court work since my return from Boston that I have really had no opportunity for attending even to the most urgent correspondence. Otherwise, I certainly should have written your Honour before this to thank you for the very high privilege and honour you accorded me by inviting me to attend the Tercentenary Celebration of your great and beautiful city, and for the wonderful hospitality and kindness which I, in common with the other Canadian guests, received at your hands throughout our entire visit.

That you should have been able in such a crowded week with the pressure of such overwhelming demands upon you, to bestow upon us all so many personal attentions in addition to those we received through your worthy, affable and highly talented social representatives, Mr. Wilcox and Mr. Johnson, amazed us all beyond measure.

I assure you that I shall ever retain the memory of the five days I spent in Boston last week as one of the pleasantest and greatest experiences of my life.

With the warmest feeling of respect, I am,

Yours most gratefully and sincerely,
OSWALD S. CROCKET.

From Lieut.-Col. H. E. Lavigueur, M. P., Mayor of Quebec:

Upon our return to Quebec, I desire to express again to you, in the name of Mrs. Lavigueur and in my own name, our sincere appreciation of the courtesy extended to us during our visit to Boston on the occasion of the third centenary celebration.

We have been very much impressed with the splendor and magnitude of the demonstrations we have attended and beg to express our congratulations for the splendid success of the celebrations. We will always remember the unique spectacles that it has been our privilege to see and the distinguished people we have met and who have all been so kind to us. With my very best regards, believe me,

LT.-COL. H. E. LAVIGUEUR, M. P.,
Mayor of Quebec.

From England:

Your speech came through wonderfully well on the air to London. It was a great delight to us and a very interesting speech. I only wish more of your friends across the water would follow your splendid example, and let us have a few talks. We are ever so anxious to get American opinions in London, and anything from U. S. A. is always of interest to us here in the old country. With very best wishes,

SIDNEY J. SMITH.

114 BROOKLANDS CRESCENT,
FULWOOD, SHEFFELD, ENGLAND,
September 18, 1930.

THE LORD MAYOR OF THE CITY OF BOSTON, MASS.

DEAR SIR,—I had the pleasure of listening to your very fine speech last night, when you broadcast a message from the pageant grounds. It came through very clearly and it was a delight to hear an accent of the English language, peculiarly yet pleasantly different from our own. Your speech was followed by a short message from Mr. Reuben Salter of our Boston, which came through well.

In talking after the broadcast, my wife, amazed at the thought of two million people at a pageant and taking hours to review, thought it would be nice to have the newspaper which would show pictures of part of this, yourself, Mr. Salter and other personages.

I cannot find who or what is the chief newspaper of Boston, although I guess Mr. Hearst has something to do with it, so that I write to you asking if you will be good enough to request your chief newspaper to send me such copy as will include what I have mentioned, or whether it is possible to obtain a copy in England. If they will also let me know in what form I am to pay, I shall be glad, as I do not see that English stamps and P. O. will be much use to them.

I hope you will pardon me trespassing upon your time, and my intrusion upon your good will.

With many thanks,

Yours truly,

J. E. BOOTH.

It was my privilege to be one of the listeners to your address which was broadcast by radio last evening (September 17th), between 7.30 and 8 p. m. (British summer time), on the occasion of the celebration of the Tercentenary of the foundation of your famous city and it was particularly pleasing to hear that you were associated with and supported by the Mayor of the ancient English burrough from which your great city derived its name.

You will be gratified to learn that the reception of the speeches was most clear and not a word or an inflexion was lost; a truly marvelous performance.

That your celebration should have been honored in so unique a manner as the birth of a daughter to the Governor of your state was acclaimed by all my family, and having no pretensions of rank or position but being just an ordinary English family, we desire to offer you, your city and the Governor of your state our warmest congratulations and good wishes.

Sincerely yours,

GILBERT JAMES HUNT.

From Maine:

I cannot help stealing a moment from your busy life, to thank you most sincerely for your kindness to Mrs. Murchie and myself, on our memorable trip to your Boston Tercentenary, and Boston Week.

The hospitality of the people of Boston, Mass., from Mayor Curley all down the line, will be our chief theme as we tell the story here. While the whole affair, from the electric parade on Monday night, right through, up to and including the Thursday banquet, was probably the biggest thing in the lives of some of us small town people, I do think, perhaps, what will stand out as best of all, will be the contacts we had, in particular with many of you leaders in Greater Boston, and the kindly, friendly spirit in which we were received and taken care of by those wonderful men who you assigned to look after us.

With many, many thanks, and the hope that we shall meet you again, the further hope for your continued success, please believe me,

Sincerely yours,

NED H. MURCHIE.

The report of the Public Works Commissioner with reference to the amount of money expended for street construction to date, September 25, 1930, has been received. The record of accomplishment to date is most commendable, being more than one hundred per cent in excess of any previous year, to this date, in the history of Boston.

That the public are appreciative of the exceptional character of construction work being performed under the direction of the Public Works Department is attested by the receipt of hundreds of letters during the past two months. The indications are that, with the organization that has been developed in the Public Works Department since May of this year, when the money was made available, the department will experience no great difficulty in expending next year seven and one half millions of dollars upon street, sewerage works, and granolithic sidewalks, and other construction, provided such authorization is granted by the Legislature.

The itemized list to date is as follows:

Reconstruct on of old streets . . .	$2,001,789
Highways, making of (new streets)	578,694
Granolithic sidewalks (liens) . . .	107,459
Sewerage works	1,200,000
Congress Street Bridge	659,000
Summer street widening	400,000
Miscellaneous	100,000
	$5,046,942

SUPPLY OF TICKETS FOR LEGION PARADE ALMOST EXHAUSTED.

His Honor the Mayor, on September 24, issued the following statement:

The demand for tickets for seats for various grandstands to view the parade of the American Legion gives promise of speedily exhausting the supply. The allotment to the office of the Mayor is 2,100 tickets, and arrangements have been made for the distribution of these tickets to distinguished guests, notable visitors, and organizations identified with the Tercentenary observance throughout the year, leaving a total allotment available to his Honor the Mayor of but 152 tickets, all of which have been already distributed. Persons desiring tickets on the stands have the option of securing them at the Legion Headquarters, 15 Columbus avenue, where tickets will be on sale to the general public.

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HICKIE OF IRISH FREE STATE TELLS OF IRELAND'S PROGRESS IN PAST FEW YEARS AND PRESENT NEEDS — LUNCHEON GUEST OF MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY.

At the luncheon tendered in his honor by Mayor Curley on October 1 at the Parker House, Major-General Sir William Hickie, K. C. B., spoke in part as follows:

I do thank you, Mr. Mayor, for your kindness, and for the honor you have done me by inviting me to this lunch and permitting me to meet so many distinguished gentlemen of Boston City.

When I paid my respects to you two days ago in your official capacity you gave me so kind a reception that the formal aspect of our meeting faded away almost before it began, and when you took my hand I felt that I had met a sympathetic Irish fellow country man. I am diffident in addressing this distinguished assembly for I know that I am in the company of many famous orators among whom you yourself, Mr. Mayor, hold a world-wide reputation.

I am here in Boston as the guest of the American Legion to their convention, and, representing as I do those Irishmen who fought in the Great War, my visit is really one of a soldier to soldiers. I am to have the privilege of addressing the Legion next week and I propose to take that opportunity of speaking of the Irish soldier and of the part, too little understood, which Ireland took in the Great War. Today, if you will bear with me for a few moments, I will tell you a little about Ireland and of the light in which her future is viewed by one who, though himself of ancient Irish stock and Irish to the backbone, has been brought up in an environment which was often inimical to the interests and aspirations of his country.

You are all aware of the vicissitudes of our history during the past centuries, vicissitudes which culminated eight years ago in the Anglo-Irish Treaty which gave self-government to Ireland. I have always held that a soldier should have no politics, but that as long as he remains in the service should carry out the orders of his leaders and of his government as by law appointed. I had always been what was known as a Home Ruler, and when in 1915 I was appointed to the command of the 16th (Irish) Division a division which had been raised by Mr. John Redmond and his gallant soldier brother, Major Willie Redmond, my opinions and convictions were strengthened and confirmed.

Today finds me a senator of the Irish Free State, an upholder of the treaty, a supporter of the government, and an adherent and, I am proud to say, a friend of our President, Mr. Cosgrave. In this country with nearly two centuries of independence behind you, you are accustomed to call yourselves a new country. You have your opposing political parties, between which I must confess that I am at a loss to discover any difference. We are a very young country, indeed, not yet out of our teens, and we have political parties of divergent views which are strongly opposed to each other. We shall have our disagreements and our fights, but as long as the fighting is clean and open and generous, I don't think we shall be any the worse for them. To my mind nothing is more beneficial to a country than a strong parliamentary opposition.

Looking back upon the events of the past eight years and their results I see nothing but good and I am optimistically hopeful for the future. I see progress in almost every department of the state. There is an increasing kindly feeling, a consideration for the opinions of others and, above all, a growth of moral strength and of the spirit of civic responsibility which one must live in Ireland to appreciate fully. In business, in agriculture, in town planning and in housing there is a vast improvement, and there is an observance of law and order which we have never had before. In this connection I may mention that whereas not many years ago drunkenness was rife throughout the country, though I go about constantly among the people both in town and in the country, during the past eight years I have not seen a single drunken person.

As in every country of Europe we are suffering from trade depression and consequent unemployment; what we most require are capital, training and encouragement.

I wish it were in my power to persuade some of your great captains of industry of Irish descent to come over or to send over patriotic and economic foresight, and to consider the possibility of supplying European markets through the medium of Irish labor, resources of the Shannon Power Scheme (not by any means the least of the achievements of Mr. Cosgrave's Government) — I honestly believe that there would be money in it and that patriotism and a twenty per cent dividend might easily go hand in hand.

The kindness and warmth of my reception in Boston, both by the American Legion and by others, has given me very great pleasure, a pleasure which has been doubly and trebly enhanced when I realize that so many who have done me this honor belong, as do you Mr. Mayor, to the same ancient race and the same ancient faith as I do myself.

The following persons were guests of Mayor Curley at the luncheon tendered in honor of Major-General Sir William Hickie, K. C. B., of Tipperary, Ireland:

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

The order of July 30, 1930, as now amended, was thereupon passed.

CONSTRUCTION OF GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

Dr. Lyons: We have read a great deal of late in the papers and have heard on all sides, discussion of the unemployment situation. Now there has been much said but little done up to date to relieve it. The unemployment situation throughout the country is very bad. We know it to be extremely bad in Boston, and it is not improving. Talking about it and theorizing on the subject, is not going to help matters. It isn't going to put bread into the mouths of those who I am sure will need it this winter, if something drastic isn't done to help the situation. We have at the present time great agitation for everybody to buy at once, and I think that is admirable; but on the other hand I think that it is in the power of this Committee in a small way to provide employment for perhaps a few hundred men. We have tied up, waiting to be spent for the construction of the Girls' High School, a million dollars.

I am going to move that that money which has been tagged for the Girls' High School, has been there for one year, be put to immediate use in furthering the construction of the Girls' High School and thus provide a great deal of work for citizens of Boston who need it badly. Putting off the construction is not helping the situation as far as our financial condition is concerned. The project has been declared for by the Committee, so I am going to move that we of the Committee ask the Department of School Buildings to start as soon as it is reasonably possible with the construction of the Girls' High School.

Chairman: I think Dr. Lyons has taken a perfectly proper method of bringing this to the attention of the Department of School Buildings. My only question is whether we have not agreed to spend this money for elementary schools this year, which in itself wouldn't at all affect Dr. Lyons' purpose. I think if Dr. Lyons will accept an amendment to his motion the same purpose will be accomplished; the amendment to read,—or alternatively, to start work on elementary school buildings, for which the School Committee may appropriate this same $1,000,000.

Dr. Lyons: May I ask, Mr. Chairman, isn't the money that has been appropriated for the Girls' High School lying there without any immediate use for it?

Chairman. Yes, Dr. Lyons is correct.

Dr. Lyons. Isn't it also true that that project could be started now without interfering in any way, shape, or manner with the elementary school situation?

Chairman. I don't understand it so. I understand that our program for elementary and intermediate schools would entail a rescission to the extent of that one million dollars.

Dr. Lyons. I have talked with the Superintendent of Construction, and I think I can quote him here. He says if they had that money they would be able to start by the first of November on the new Girls' High School.

Chairman. I do not think there is any objection to using this money for the purpose underlying Doctor Lyons' motion. I suggested an amendment so that we would not limit ourselves as to the particular purpose for which this one million dollars would be expended immediately.

Dr. Lyons. All right. The amendment would seem unnecessary. Let me ask that the request go to the Department of School Buildings and let them return to us reasons why they feel they should not do this. Then we will understand the situation a little better.

Mr. Gray. Before forwarding any request from this Committee to the Department of School Buildings, I should like an opportunity to refresh my recollection on the whole matter of the Girls' High School and the building program.

Chairman. I think I can do that fairly accurately. The building program which we finally accepted before adjourning for the summer did not include the Girls' High School, we having substituted for that various elementary and intermediate schools. The program would exhaust all the money available, including this million dollars.

Mr. Gray. Then, if we follow Dr. Lyons' suggestion, it probably would mean complete reorganization of the building program?

Dr. Lyons. I think we need information on that. I feel certain the Superintendent of Construction told me that the project could be started, that work could be started on the Girls' High School without interfering in any way whatsoever with our program. As I grasp the idea, he will have saved enough money to pay—

Chairman. If this is a new element, which the Superintendent calls to my attention—I have been talking about money which the Legislature made available for us. You, and I think Dr. Burke, are talking of money saved by Mr. Rourke, which would enable him to start work.

Mrs. Pigeon. Would it be proper to refer this order to the Board of Apportionment?

Chairman. It would be in accordance with usual procedure.

Dr. Lyons. All I am interested in is that I had a talk with the Superintendent of Construction. I understood him to say that this money had not been used and is available.

Chairman. Are you talking about the million dollars which was appropriated a year ago, or the money which Mr. Rourke has saved?

Dr. Lyons. No, the million dollars which we appropriated and which still lies tagged. Mr. Rourke tells me it would not interfere with our other projects. Before going farther, I think we should get definite information. I therefore withdraw my order until such time as we have the facts.

Chairman. Dr. Lyons' motion is withdrawn.

NAMING OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

Mr. Reilly. Mr. Chairman: in connection with the naming of school buildings, it has been my experience in visiting that it is hard to determine the identification of the various school buildings, and I have been wondering if we could not take measures to insure, at very little expense, some identification of these buildings. I have in mind a school that has no name on the outside of the building. It is named for bookkeeping purposes on our records, but a person passing that school has difficulty in finding out just what school it is. Could we not recommend to Mr. Rourke that he see that every school building in the city of Boston bear its proper name in a conspicuous place on the outside of the building and that inside the building, in some prominent place, some sort of a brief biography of the person for whom the building, was named, is placed, so that children, teachers, and visitors to the school may be acquainted with the civic importance of the individual who was so honored by the naming of the school.

Mrs. Pigeon. I am in hearty accord with the recommendation of Mr. Reilly. I think I have many times called the attention of the Committee to the fact that our schools were not, some of them plainly marked; and in connection with the biography I request that we consider the suggestion and that a copy be printed in the Teachers' News Letter. I understand that the News Letter is working along these lines. I am in hearty accord with Mr. Reilly's suggestions.

On Mr. Reilly's motion, it was ORDERED, That the Superintendent of Construction is hereby requested to arrange to have every school building in the city bear the name of the school in a conspicuous place on the outside of the building, and that within the building, in some prominent place, a brief biography of the person for whom the building was named be so placed that pupils, teachers and visitors to the school may be acquainted with the civic importance of the individual for whom the school was named.

Passed unanimously.

EXAMINATIONS OF PUPILS IN HIGH SCHOOLS.

The Chairman offered the following orders for reference to the Board of Superintendents:

ORDERED, That there be referred to the Board of Superintendents for study and early report, the whole question of examinations of pupils in day high schools, the said study to include the present bases of marking, with such recommendations as the Board of Superintendents may have to offer.

ORDERED, That there be referred to the Board of Superintendents for consideration and report, the advisability of establishing courses of study for each subject of the high school curricula, and whether in the opinion of that board, the present situation calls for the appointment of a high school supervisor, or whether the desired results may be obtained by activity on the part of head masters and heads of departments of the high schools.

The orders passed.

Dr. Lyons. Mr. Chairman, and Fellow Members, Mrs. Pigeon: I have been quoted in the press recently on this matter which has been agitated at length in the Boston daily papers—and sooner than there should be any misunderstanding, I will say now what I had to say on that occasion. I am quoted, I believe, in one of the papers, and have had several ask me if there was a question of presenting an order that the Committee censure you, Mr. Chairman. That thought was never in my mind—to present an order to censure you; so in order to clear the issue, I will state verbatim what I had to say to the representatives of the press; and it was this: I said I thought that the Chairman of the Boston School Committee, that criticism should be heaped upon the shoulders—

Chairman. May I ask Mr. Gray to take the Chair? (Mr. Gray in the Chair.)

Dr. Lyons. I said that I thought criticism should be heaped upon the shoulders of the Chairman of the Boston School Committee for having tried to pass judgment on a matter which he himself stated was a matter of very vital interest to the people of Boston—for having tried to pass judgment through the columns of the daily press on this matter of vital importance to the people of Boston, and that I thought it should have been presented through the regular channels to the School Committee in session, as all matters of great importance, and matters of lesser importance also, have been presented down through the past; and always since I have been a committeeman. I thought the Chairman of the School Committee, if certain remarks attributed to him in the editorial column of a Boston Evening newspaper were true, namely,—that when he was asked why he did not follow that procedure and present the matter in the regular order to the Committee, this great matter of importance which concerns the people in the schools, his answer was it would have been useless; that he decided to make a public appeal through the press as he felt that if the matter had been so presented by him, namely, in the regular routine, it would have been pushed to one side and forgotten.

Mr. Hurley. Will you tell me the name of that paper?

Dr. Lyons. The Boston Evening Traveler.

Mr. Hurley. May I see it?

Dr. Lyons. Yes, sir. (Showing paper to Mr. Hurley.)

Mr. Hurley. (Examining paper). That is correct. I told that to Mr. Toye of the Traveler.

Dr. Lyons. I had no intention of making any comment. I have been asked several questions, and my answer to every representative of the press was that I felt that I would lay myself liable to the criticism which I thought the Chairman deserved for trying this case in the columns of the papers when it belonged before the Committee; and it was only when I saw this remark there that I made a statement, following it up by saying that if that statement were true, as attributed to the Chairman, I thought he was deserving of censure by the Board which he represented, the School Committee, for trying the case in the columns of the press; and I also stated that I thought if that were true he was not, certainly, reciprocating the feelings of faith and confidence which his colleagues had shown and placed in him when they elected him their Chairman.

In conclusion, I want to say that I do now repeat those words here with this feeling, that about the most important matter we have had before us that I remember during my day was the occasion of the advisers. The Chairman was not Chairman at that time when a public meeting was asked for. It was granted. It was a very important matter. I am not going to talk on the merits of that now. That is past history. I feel that the Chairman was remiss in his duty, if this matter was of such importance, for not having called a meeting at once in the interests of the public we are elected to serve, a special public meeting in which, if there was any question about inspirational marking and so forth, evidence could be presented to that effect. We would then sit in judgment on the case.

I have no intention, and I know my colleagues on this Committee would not agree with me were I to present an order for censure of our Chairman; but I simply have said that I had a feeling that he was deserving of censure for having so neglected his duty in not having called a public meeting, but particularly for having said in substance that he placed little faith in us of the Committee. I have much more to state, which may come out in debate, but I rest now.

Mr. Hurley. Mr. Chairman, I cannot see the distinction between censuring the Chairman and heaping criticism in public upon his shoulders. It is simply playing on words, and to have the matter in proper parliamentary form—I cannot make a motion that I be censured—may I as a question of personal privilege, request Dr. Lyons to make such a motion, so that other members of this Committee can vote Yes or No on the question and not leave it in this unsatisfactory way—that one member of the Committee has said that I should have criticism heaped upon my shoulders. If I deserve censure, give it to me; but don't say with one breath that I deserve censure, and say with another that you are not going to move a vote of censure. I think I am entitled to trial and verdict. I think there should be a straight out and out vote by the members of the Committee.

Dr. Lyons. I will be glad to answer that. I have, as I said in the first place, made no statement that I was to ask for a vote of censure of the Chairman.

Mr. Hurley. I ask Dr. Lyons in view of his statement that I deserve censure, to make such a motion.

Dr. Lyons. I say now, perhaps my reason for not presenting it frankly and openly was the fact that I had doubts whether my colleagues felt the same in the situation as I did. In order to satisfy Mr. Hurley, who feels that he is being treated unjustly—

Mr. Hurley. No, I don't.

Dr. Lyons. —and very, very greatly against my wishes, and with the feeling that my colleagues on the Committee will not respond to the request which I made only to please the Chairman, I will now move that the Chairman of the Boston School Committee, Joseph J. Hurley, be censured by his colleagues for the high-handed manner in which he has dragged through the press the school system and matters of great importance to the people of Boston, the taxpayers, the teaching force—I now ask that a vote of censure be passed for Mr. Hurley's trying and judging this case in public, in the press, without giving his colleagues on the Committee a chance to hear the evidence, regardless of who was injured or what happened to the school system which I love. I have ambitions for the future, but I would willingly sacrifice every ambition I have for the future if it had to be gained at the cost of causing injury to the school system which I represent and which I love.

Mr. Hurley. I do not care to speak to that motion before the house. May I reserve the privilege of saying a few words after you have taken a vote?

Mr. Gray. I think that is within your rights. You have heard Dr. Lyons' motion, that the Chairman, Mr. Hurley, be censured. Do I hear the motion seconded?

(No response). The Chair does not hear the motion seconded, Dr. Lyons. The motion is therefore not before us. Any further business?

Mr. Hurley. May I say just a few words, Mr. Chairman? I do not blame any member of this Committee for disagreeing with me as to the method in which I attacked what I thought and still think is a real problem. During the summer, which I spent in the city, a number of parents came to me whose girls had failed in the Teachers' College examination and asked me to vote to admit them. I felt that 60 per cent was a reasonable and fair passing mark, so

I told the parents that I would not reduce the passing mark, whereupon, in many instances, the parents produced report cards of the girls in the high schools showing that these girls had attained an average of A and B—A being 90 to 100, and B, 75 to 89.

The matter would have rested there had not some of them importuned me to great extent, attacking the fairness of the examination, attacking the School Committee for not admitting the girls, so that finally I took one gentleman over to the Board of Examiners and told him I would devote two hours of my time to going over this particular girl's papers. Half way through the examination of this girl's papers her friend threw up his hands and said: "You can not do anything." This girl had received high marks in the high school. That started me on a search for the results of the showing made by the High Schools. As is known now, five schools did very well, among them the Girls' Latin, but the results in five high schools were disappointing. The farther I went into the problem the more it seemed to me something should be done. Upon the Superintendent's return from vacation, I discussed the matter with him. The Superintendent did not agree with me that we had a problem. As the various Assistant Superintendents returned from their vacations, I talked the matter over with them.

A reporter from a certain newspaper in Boston, having learned of my work, because the papers had called me about these complaints from parents, besought me to make a statement. Last Tuesday afternoon I came over to the School Committee on Committee business, and after that business was concluded, I sat down with Assistant Superintendents Snow, Campbell, Gould and Brodhead and talked over with them what I had found. They unanimously agreed with me that something was wrong. I returned to my office at 6:30. The reporter was there. I gave him the story. Perhaps I should have kept it quiet, but I feel that I did right in giving it out. That is all I care to say, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Gray: I would like to make one remark. I am now completing my fifth year on the School Committee, and during that time there has never been any action taken toward censuring a Chairman for anything that he has done. I did not agree with the way in which Mr. Hurley went about this matter, and I told him so at once. I deplore taking up these matters and arguing them in the press before there is an opportunity to discuss them in the Committee. On the other hand, any good that can be done to the school system, whether in the press or elsewhere, is the most important service which the members of the School Committee can render to the people of Boston, and let me assure you ladies and gentlemen here tonight, that irrespective of how any of us may feel as to what the members do in the press and outside—and I can assure you that in the five years I am now completing there have been a great many cases where members have talked to the press on matters which have perhaps been brought originally before the Committee, but on sidelights which have not been referred to the Committee,—I am for any good that can be done for the schools of Boston, through the press or otherwise.

Dr. Lyons. I'd like to ask Mr. Gray one question. You think, Mr. Gray, this matter has been something of very great importance to the people of Boston?

Mr. Gray. I believe, Dr. Lyons, it may lead to matters of importance.

Dr. Lyons. I will ask if you feel that, if it might be beneficial to the school system in the future, it would be fitting and proper for me, as an elected representative of the people of Boston, to carry to the press whatever may come through this Committee, and not take them up with the Committee.

Mr. Gray. I do not think you can by any stretch of imagination, construe the remarks I have just made to mean that.

Dr. Lyons. All right. Mr. Chairman, one more word. I deplore the fact that this issue was forced by the Chairman—the presentation in public here, brought about by himself. It is the first time there has been a motion made for public censure. As you saw, I did it reluctantly, and as you saw, I did it knowing what would happen, how the other members would feel, and as I probably would have felt had it been presented by another member—that no such censure be given. That is all.

Mr. Hurley resumed the chair.

BOSTON INCORPORATED AS A CITY, 1822.

The act of incorporation was passed by the Legislature on February 23, 1822. On March 4 following, the voters of Boston accepted said act, chapter 110, 1821-22, as its first city charter by a majority of 916 in a total vote of 4,678. The vote was 2,797 yeas, 1,881 nays. Previous attempts to incorporate as a city had been made in 1650, 1659, 1667, 1708, 1744, 1762, 1784, 1791, 1804 and 1815. The charter was revised in 1854, 1885 and 1909. Amendments to the 1909 charter were enacted in 1910, 1912, 1914, 1918, 1919, 1921, 1922 and lastly in 1924 (see "Municipal Register" for 1928, pages 19-43).

SETTLEMENT OF BOSTON, 1630.

Effected by Puritan colonists under Governor John Winthrop in the latter part of August, 1630. The name of the original settlement was changed to Boston from Trimountaine by order of the Court of Assistants on September 7, (O. S.), 1630. This date was moved forward by the new style calendar in 1752 to September 17, the recognized date of the founding of Boston. The name, Trimountaine, had been given because of the three peaks of the most prominent hill, afterward called Beacon Hill, much higher then than now. By the Indians the place was called Shawmut. The name, Boston, was derived from the English town of Boston in Lincolnshire, the home of some of the leading colonists and promoters of the enterprise.

DIMENSIONS, ETC., OF BOSTON.

Boston's greatest length, 13.8 miles, i. e., from northern end of East Boston to southern end of Hyde Park; greatest width, 7.75 miles, i. e., from Marine Park shore to western end of Brighton; median transverse width, 5.75 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Harvard Bridge to Neponset river at Blue Hill avenue; width of business center, 1.2 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Cambridge Bridge to Fort Point channel at Summer street. Geographical center of city in Roxbury, corner Walnut and Westminster avenues.

NEW ORLEANS BUILDING THREE NEW INCINERATORS.

Three new incinerators to cost a total of $700,000 are under construction at New Orleans and will add appreciably to that city's sanitation system. This will make a total of five plants where garbage can be readily disposed of. The plants, according to Commissioner of Public Property John Klorer, will be equipped in the most scientific manner with special provision for the prevention of any smoke nuisance.

The incinerators are conveniently distributed about the city, one of the new ones being almost ready for use. The one now nearing completion can handle 170 tons of garbage every 16 hours with no odor escaping, and its stacks are 125 feet high.

COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT TAXES BY MUNICIPALITIES.

The collection of delinquent taxes is often neglected by city officials, resulting in a considerable financial loss to the municipality.

The sale of property for taxes usually takes place from one to three years after the taxes have become due and after the publication of a tax sale notice for from three to six weeks. The property is sold at auction to the highest bidder provided that the bid covers the amount of taxes, all unpaid assessments, interest, fees, penalties, and other charges against the property. If the bid is not sufficient to cover these items, the city bids in the property. Property sold for taxes may be redeemed after a period varying from one to three years upon payment of sum sold for, together with interest computed at the rate of 12 per cent per annum. If the property is not redeemed within the prescribed time the purchaser is given either a deed, an estate in fee simple, or an absolute estate in fee, subject only to the lien of unpaid state and county taxes.

In two cities, White Plains and Yonkers, the tax lien is sold. This has worked out very satisfactorily. In Yonkers the problem of the collection of delinquent taxes has been cleared up:

1. By keeping the assessed valuation down to the real present market value, thereby preventing the accumulation of a large amount of uncollectible taxes.
2. By foreclosure, in one action, of large numbers of lots in one ownership.
3. By assignment of tax liens, at full value, to any one applying for same.
4. By resale, at reduced amounts, of tax liens held by the city.
5. By compromise with owners, reducing the amounts due to a sum that will make it worth while for such owners to pay up the city thereby saving foreclosure costs, and immediately placing such property on a taxpaying basis, and at the same time allowing the owners to get out with some equity. Foreclosure should never be resorted to where an owner shows any disposition to compromise.

BOSTON AREA TO WARD LINES.

Total, 30,598 acres (i. e., 47.81 square miles), 2,944 acres being filled land, 1,143 acres water area and 1,436 acres flats. Land area only, 28,019 acres (i. e., 43.78 square miles). Included in the latter are 160 acres of filled flats recently added to the land area of South Boston and 175 acres to that of East Boston.

Original Boston contained about 780 acres of land. Of the twelve leading American cities, eight are larger in land area than Boston, viz., Los Angeles (441 square miles), New York (318), Chicago (199.4), Philadelphia (129), Baltimore (91.9), Detroit (80), Cleveland (56.6) and St. Louis (61.25). The only city in Massachusetts with larger land area is Taunton (50 square miles).

If Boston should expand by annexations as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and others have expanded, its total area, in case of including the thirty-nine cities and towns within the 15-mile radius, would be second to the largest, viz., Los Angeles, the present land area of "Greater Boston" being 409.5 square miles.

CHICAGO POLICE ALLOW SPEED ON SAFETY BASIS.

Traffic police in Chicago have been ordered to make a "sane application" of the law on speeding, determining the relation of an automobile's speed to the hazards it may create, according to "Chicago Commerce," published by the Association of Commerce of that city.

Such an interpretation of the law is new to Chicago, but is based on the experience of Michigan police and of those in other states where speed limits have been legally removed in favor of the enforcement of cautious driving.

"The Illinois statute," states Police Commissioner William F. Russell, "makes it illegal to drive at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and the use of the way, or so as to endanger the life or limb or injure the property of any person."

The following types of fast driving are particularly dangerous and must be stopped:

"Cutting in and out of traffic at excessive speed.

"Excessive speed while approaching or passing pedestrians in the street.

"Excessive speed while approaching an intersection where the view of the other street is obstructed.

"Driving at high speed on a boulevard or through street in such a manner as to prevent other drivers from entering or crossing the same after they have made the legal stop.

"Driving at excessive speed while turning a corner where pedestrians are crossing.

"Driving at excessive speed at any time where an accident results, causing injury to any person or property."

AUTOMOBILE FATALITIES.

Automobile fatalities for the months of January and February of this year, as compared with last year, decreased considerably in the cities and increased considerably in the towns and country, as indicated by the Nation-wide reports received by the National Safety Council.

These reports show that the cities had six per cent fewer automobile deaths this year than last year; 61 of the 90 cities that reported showed declines, or no changes at all, as compared with a year ago. But the state-wide reports received during the same period showed an increase of 11 per cent in fatal automobile accidents. In the total, there were an estimated 4,240 motor vehicle deaths during January and February of this year, as compared with 4,220 such fatalities during the same two months of last year.

SITUATION OF BOSTON.

Boston is situated in latitude, north, 42 degrees, 21 minutes, 29.596 seconds, longitude, west, 71 degrees, 3 minutes, 51.040 seconds (exact situation of apex of State House dome, according to United States Coast and Geodetic Survey). Boston's latitude is similar to that of Detroit and the southern boundary of Oregon, also Rome (Italy), Sofia (Bulgaria) and Mukden (Manchuria); longitude nearly that of Quebec (Canada), Bogota (Colombia) and Santiago (Chile).

AIRPORTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The number of airports in the country continues to grow steadily, and the listing compiled by the Department of Commerce showed 1,520 airports in operation on October 2 of this year. Of these, 442 were municipal airports, and 468 were privately owned and operated. The rest included army fields, naval air stations, Department of Commerce intermediate fields, marked auxiliary fields and miscellaneous others. As will be noted, the municipal airports comprise 29 per cent of the total number now in use in the country. The fact that 442 cities of various sizes have indicated their interest by investing substantial funds in the purchase of property and construction of these airports illustrates the stability of aviation today. As indicative of the volume of traffic already in evidence at municipal airports, it might be noted that in a recent representative week the Des Moines airport showed 88 airplanes arriving and 86 leaving. Oakland, California, showed 55 arriving, 52 leaving; while the Tulsa, Oklahoma, airport showed 272 arriving and 265 leaving. These figures are constantly increasing, and they show that the city airport is already being used.

PORT OF BOSTON.

Boston Harbor comprises an area of about 47 square miles (exclusive of the islands), including all the expanse of tidewater within a straight line from Point Allerton to Point Shirley and extending therefrom to the mainland. It is the best of natural harbors, near open sea, sheltered and spacious for anchorage; main ship channel 35 feet in depth at mean low water, increasing to 40 feet from President Roads to open sea; new dredging operations in charge of United States engineers are under way for increasing depth of said main channel to 40 feet; waterfront (i. e., lineal pier space) 40 miles, 6 miles fronting on 30 feet depth at low water.

Commonwealth Pier No. 5, South Boston, 1,200 feet long, 400 feet wide, accommodating five 600-foot ships at one time, 40 feet depth at mean low water on both sides, with three 2-story fireproof buildings of steel and concrete construction, containing 900,000 square feet of floor space, total cost of this enterprise to State, $4,500,000. Commonwealth Pier No. 6, South Boston (Fish Pier), buildings on same erected by lessee, Boston Fish Market Corporation, cost to State, $1,487,361. Commonwealth Pier, No. 1, East Boston, 900 feet long, costing State $764,600 for site and $426,674 for construction. New dry dock at South Boston (probably the largest in world), completed in 1919, 1,200 feet long and 120 wide, costing $3,169,651 and taken by United States Government at total cost.

Islands in Boston Harbor over 3 acres in area, 17, with total area of 965 acres; Long Island the largest, or 215.5 acres. Owned by United States, 392 acres; by City of Boston, 334 acres. Number of wharves, 143, of which eight are owned by the city.

There are 38 foreign steamship lines with regular sailings to and from Boston, ten coastwise lines and three intercoastal. In 1915 a revision of the harbor lines was made and the project undertaken whereby 600 acres of flats between Governor's Island and Jeffries Pt. will be filled in and used for extensive commercial developments under State control. About 175 acres of flats have recently been filled in and added to the land area of East Boston and 160 acres to that of South Boston.

In April, 1918, the Government decided to establish its Army Supply Base on a portion of the Commonwealth lands in South Boston. About 57.6 acres were purchased of the State, the price being $1,317,510, soon followed by the construction of two pier sheds, each 920 feet long, a wharf shed and other buildings, including one of the largest storehouses in the world, built of reinforced concrete, eight stories high, 1,638 feet long, 126 feet wide and with floor space of over 1,650,000 square feet. The total outlay for the plant was $26,000,000.

Total expenditure by State for improvement of Boston Harbor $22,575,827 from 1859 to November 30, 1927, inclusive; in the same period, there was expended additionally $951,992 on small channels; total Federal expenditure from 1790 to June 30, 1927, $13,258,846.

FLAG DAYS.

By order of the City Council it is the duty of the City Messenger to have the national colors displayed upon the public flagstaffs on the following days:

Franklin's Birthday, January 17; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Evacuation Day, March 17; Patriot's Day, April 19; Grant's Birthday, April 27; Memorial Day, May 30; Anniversary of Adoption of National Colors, June 14; Bunker Hill Day, June 17; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, September (first Monday); Anniversary of Founding of Boston, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Armistice Day, November 11.

THE COST OF DIPHTHERIA.

Diphtheria costs New York City over $5,000,000 annually, according to Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, whose statement, given in a news release from the department, is based on the calculations of the value of the lives lost, the cost of hospital care, and the expense of caring for patients in their homes.

Last year the loss occasioned by diphtheria in New York City was as follows:

Value of 642 human lives lost.....	$4,575,000
Cost of hospital care for 2,976 cases in the Contagious Disease Hospitals.....	391,000
Cost of caring for 7,800 cases in private homes.....	273,000
	$5,139,000

As against an annual economic loss of over $5,000,000 a year it is stated that an expenditure of less than 10 per cent of this sum will suffice to wipe out diphtheria and thus save the community $4,500,000 annually.

Figures by the New York City Department of Health show that thus far this year over 25,000 children have been immunized against diphtheria, nearly 12,000 having been protected by private physicians. The growing interest on the part of parents is well shown in the steady increase in the number of children immunized, which increased from 555 in the first week of the present campaign to 4,702 during the first week in April, or almost ninefold.

MUNICIPALITY TAKES OVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AIRPORT.

Oklahoma City has voted $425,000 in bonds for the enlargement and improvement of its municipal airport. The Aviation Committee of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce has operated the airport for the past four years and was largely instrumental in putting over the bond-issue campaign. The port will in the future be operated by the city as a strictly municipal project.

When completed, the new field will comprise 360 acres and will meet all of the qualifications for an A 1A airport as set forth by the United States Department of Commerce.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS REDUCE BALTIMORE TRAFFIC TOLL.

An analysis of traffic accidents at street intersections in Baltimore indicates that the automatic traffic signal is proving very effective in reducing the number of such accidents.

There were 419 traffic accidents at all intersections covered in the report issued by the Baltimore Safety Council for the first six months of 1927, before the signals were installed. In direct contrast, only 259 such accidents were recorded for the first six months of this year, with the signals in operation.

The casualties were: one person killed and 129 injured before the installation of the signals, as compared with two killed but only 92 injured after. A reduction in the number of accidents was reported at thirty-two intersections, following the installation of the signals, while seventeen other intersections have shown little or no change as yet, and ten actually have experienced an increase since the use of the signals.

THROUGH TRAFFIC STREETS.

Many a city government, confronted almost unawares by the ever-increasing traffic problem, has seized upon the "through street" idea as the least expensive sop to those who clamor for something to relieve the distress. This situation is reflected in many city traffic ordinances which give absolute right-of-way to vehicles on any of the "arterial highways" included in a long list, and which fail entirely to provide for stop requirements, signs, enforcement facilities, or public education. Unfortunately, traffic regulation is not so simple. It cannot be successfully accomplished by merely designating certain through streets.

Still, through streets are useful. Their successful application depends only on an understanding of what can and what cannot be expected of them, and on a realization of where they fit into the traffic control picture. Consider a street as it develops with the increasing traffic from a minor highway to a heavily traveled main thoroughfare. Traffic control will logically develop in successive steps something like these:

1. No control at all.
2. Slow or stop signs at isolated intersections.
3. Through streets with stop signs at every intersection.
4. Occasional automatic signals introduced where there is heavy cross traffic.
5. Complete flexible progressive signal control.
6. Grade separation at important intersecting streets.
7. Elevated or depressed roadway without intersecting streets.

AMERICAN LEGION HOSTS WELCOMED TO BOSTON FOR ANNUAL CONVENTION — MAYOR CURLEY, ON BEHALF OF CITIZENS, EXTENDS OPEN ARMS OF HOSPITALITY TO HEROES OF WORLD WAR IN THRILLING ADDRESS BEFORE CHEERING THOUSANDS AT OPENING SESSION OF 1930 CONVENTION — ALL BOSTON JOINS IN MAKING STAY OF VISITORS MOST MEMORABLE IN HISTORY OF SUCH ASSEMBLIES.

Mayor Curley, at the opening of the American Legion Convention at the Boston Arena Monday, October 6, spoke as follows:

Commander in Chief of the American Legion, Distinguished and Honored Guests, Legionnaires, Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is the sincere wish of the entire people of Boston that some form of fitting tribute be conveyed to your exceptionally able and eminently capable leader, who has presided over the destinies of the American Legion during the past year, and we thought of nothing that could prove more valuable for a presiding officer than a Constitutional Big Stick. This particular Constitutional Big Stick is not only a symbol of authority but is also a valuable historic work made from an elm tree that grew on the spot where the first shot was fired in the movement for American Liberty — at Lexington. So we call it a Constitutional Big Stick and we are giving it today to a worthy upholder of the Constitution of the United States, — Commander in Chief O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion.

In the period of the World War the American volunteers, or American citizen soldiers, won the love of the whole world, and it is fitting that the heart of New England should convey to the American Legion, or its head, an appreciation of its love and affection for the American Legion, so, in addition to presenting this key of the city we are presenting the key to our hearts to Mr. Bodenhamer, the head of the Legion.

We were just a little bit doubtful until this morning as to whether we could supply you the thing most requisite to your enjoyable stay in Boston, but Almighty God came to our rescue and we are going to have a sunny day today and a sunny day for the parade tomorrow.

It is an exceeding privilege as Mayor of this historic City of Boston to extend, in behalf of the citizenship, a most hearty welcome to the membership of the American Legion, and to express the sincere wish that your sojourn with us will be replete with happiness.

Today the citizens vie with one another in giving expression by the display of that Flag whose glory your sacrifice enhanced, and whose honor you preserved during the greatest war in the world's history — the Stars and Stripes.

Thirteen years have passed since that day, freighted with uncertainty, doubt and fear, that the heart of America responded to the call for the preservation of free government as presented to a waiting world by the hero war President of the United States — the late lamented Woodrow Wilson.

Every day, every hour — aye, every minute after the first detachment of the citizen soldiery of the Republic had started upon the perilous journey over an ocean strewn with danger and death, until the news reached home of the safe arrival of American transports, the hearts of loving mothers were torn with anxiety and a stillness like that of the grave pervaded what was once the scene of cheer and joy — and love — and happiness.

A waiting world gazed in awe at the spectacle unfolded of a peace-loving nation transformed as by the wand of a magician overnight into a great machine dedicated to the task of providing not only men but food and munitions — and money — and all of the agencies essential to the successful conduct of the mighty drama staged upon the blood-soaked fields of France and Flanders.

America's Contribution to War.

America contributed not only of her men, but of her women, who in the fields and factories at home toiled long hours cheerfully; and on the field of battle and in hospitals performed deeds of heroism that until the end of time will endure as a glorious tribute to the self-sacrificing spirit of America's womanhood.

The glory of the American marine and the citizen soldiery will endure as long as the Republic exists.

The achievements of that romantic branch of national defense, the navy, proved a revelation not only to the military masters of the Central Empire, but to the whole world. The transportation of four millions of the flower of America's manhood across three thousand miles of torpedo-strewn ocean — without the loss of a single transport — is the crowning glory of our navy whose Secretary is with us here today, a descendant of a wonderful American family that gave two Presidents to the United States and may give another, and no small portion of honor is due to the masterly leadership of the transportation chief in charge, the modest, retiring but truly great Admiral William S. Benson.

The miracle of Congress adopting, and the nation accepting, the selective military draft system, savoring as it did of the most repulsive word in the English language — "Conscription" — and more than ten million Americans enrolling for service without protest, riot or bloodshed, furnished an example of love of country without parallel in the world's history.

The bonds of friendship wrought in the hour of America's adversity, through the aid furnished by France to our own General Washington and his handful of devoted followers at Valley Forge, was revived upon the soil of France by the epic declaration of the leader of the American Expeditionary Forces, General Pershing, when at the tomb of Lafayette he thrilled the world by the simple phrase, "Lafayette, we are here." (Continued on page 1640.)

"O Boston, fair City enthroned like a radiant queen,
From thy hills looking down on the ship-teeming plain of the ocean,
May thy future be bright, thy skies beam with light all serene,
Ensured by thy sons' and thy daughters' unselfish devotion!"
From Boston Centennial Poem by
NATHAN HASKELL DOLE.

MAYOR CURLEY PAYS ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO THE LEGION'S HERO DEAD — ADDRESSES MEMORIAL SERVICE AT FANEUIL HALL ON SUNDAY NIGHT.

Mayor Curley, speaking at the memorial service of the American Legion at Faneuil Hall on the evening of October 5, said in part as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Your Excellency, Honored Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

I want at the outset to convey to the Commander in Chief of the American Legion, Mr. O. L. Bodenhamer, my heartfelt congratulations upon this wonderful movement to honor those who have died, not only in the World War, but in every war in the history of the United States of America. I want to congratulate the chairman on assembling within the walls of this sacred old edifice, known to lovers of liberty the whole world over as the "Cradle of Liberty," representatives not alone of every state in the Union but representatives of every nation allied with America in the preservation of the priceless heritage of liberty, which we enjoy in America.

Would to God that those great characters of the past whose portraits adorn Faneuil Hall might become animate and be privileged to step forth from those frames of gold and take places upon this platform beside the representatives of that once mighty host of nearly three millions of men, who in response to the call of the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, for four long, weary years served and sacrificed that the Government made possible by Washington and the handful might not be destroyed.

Would that they might have opportunity to sit here on this platform beside some Gold Star Mother who gave her son for whose presence in this world she herself went down in the valley of the shadow of death. Truly they might say that the right—and the worth—and the privilege of the enjoyment of liberty and equality has been made in our day and generation by those of the American Legion.

TRIBUTE TO G. A. R.

You, sir, are to be congratulated on rejuvenating a truly and necessary worthwhile movement. The ranks of that once mighty host which you now preside over, sir, as commander of the G. A. R., who for the past year have been answering the Supreme summons, one every five minutes, must feel a thrill of exultation to be present here and to realize that the service rendered by you and your comrades from 1861 to 1865 will never be forgotten as long as the American Legion endures.

The poet has said:

Condemned a slave to be from birth
Man knows not Freedom till he dies.
When flesh of earth goes back to earth
And the freed soul wings to the skies.

It is the fundamental truth, embedded in these lines, the faith to believe that death is liberation—the open door to a greater and more glorious life, that has banished the terror of death, plucked out its sting and turned the victory of the grave to defeat. While this glorious assurance of the immortality of the soul only reached its full fruition in the preaching of the Divine Nazarene, we know the pre-Christian world groped constantly and pathetically to grasp the truth which was to give humanity the strength to withstand the cruelties and oppressions of the world and sustain it in the hour when it trembled on the brink of eternity, waiting the tremendous moment when it would go out on that mysterious journey from which no traveler returns.

Out of this faith, perhaps in exaggeration of its true spirit, grew the cult the Worship of Ancestors and other religions equally strange, yet all having their roots in reverence for the beloved dead and a belief in the reunion and communion of spirits after death. These beliefs persist in the souls of the race, the unconquerable survivals from dawn of time, that have been sweetened by the sorrows and purified by the prayers of countless generations of men; and from them have grown that duty to the dead, whose expression in observance and ceremony has added beauty and tenderness to this reverent custom.

GRIEF — CHASTENED AND HUMBLE.

With these thoughts in mind we come to this memorial ceremony with a certain chastened humility and affection; the sharp edge of grief blunted by the passage of twelve years, to recall the memory of kin and companion who have passed into eternity; to recount their graces, their virtues, their accomplishments and to restate the traits that endeared them to us in life and will not let us forget them in death. All we are and have we owe to the past, to the fathers and mothers of the generations that once peopled the earth and toiled and builded that the earth might be better and life greater for them who came after them, and who having finished their allotted tasks passed out of time into eternity.

Remembrance and honor should be theirs.

Remembrance is the grace of Heaven; forgetfulness the oblivion of earth. God alone can give immortality; but when God calls back the soul he incarnated at birth we who remain must borrow some of the grace of Heaven and keep the memory of our dead green and honored, and sweet as the odor of dead flowers. And so today in harmony with this beautiful custom we come together to honor the memory of our dead brethren and in fancy lay a wreath upon the grassy sod above them.

To the memory of those who in the flush of young manhood went out to dare and die in the service of their country, we bring laurel for valor and rosemary for remembrance.

The dead of war sleep in peace, whether they lie in alien graves, in the depths of the soundless seas, or under American skies, and will not be forgotten. The survivors of the great conflict are with us still, some shattered in mind and body, some maimed, some sound, all doing their share of the nation's work, all waiting the inevitable day when they, too, shall answer the final call and pass over to the great majority to find under the grass and stars the peace that passes the understanding of man—surcease of bodily pain and mental anguish, and forgetfulness of the ingratitude of republics.

These, too, will be remembered, for though wars end and men forget, the shattered minds and broken bodies, the heritage of camp and field, remain to call us to duty. On us who survive, the vigorous and sane, devolves the duty of remembrance, of guarding the interests of the living victims of war, and compelling the payment of the nation's debt to them. To us the heroic dead and hapless living appeal, reminding us that national ingratitude is national dishonor.

Nor may we forget to pay the tribute we owe to the womanhood of America on occasions like this, to the mothers and wives of them who served and sacrificed; the women who watched and waited and worked and wept for the loved ones who never returned. The man who, in the front line trenches, faced his country's foe day and night did not suffer as did the mother and wife praying in the silences of the night for the safety and return of the husband and son, listening for the voice and step they will hear no more on earth. They, indeed, were heavy laden; they truly carried the most painful burden, as has always been the portion of women since time and war began, and to them we cannot pay too much honor. The man and soldier can go forth to war amid the clamor of trumpets and the roar of drums, with a light heart, with banners waving, stirred by the glamor and glory of applauding crowds; though these thrills fade and grow drab in the dirt and disease of campaigns he has had his day of drama and applause. But the wife and mother has none of these consolations; she must die a hundred deaths in the grief of separation, in the anguish of absence and uncertainty, in the watching and waiting. There is the ceaseless battle, the conflicts of contending emotions of heart and mind, that give a double horror to war.

How true, how worthy, how merited the noble tribute paid by Joaquin Miller to the mothers of the world, wherein he said:

The greatest battle that ever was fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not:
It was fought by the Mothers of men.
Nay, not with cannon nor battle shot,
With sword nor nobler pen;
Nay, not with eloquent word or thought
From minds of wonderful men;
But down in a woman's walled-up heart,
Of a woman that would not yield,
But silently, patiently bore her part.
Lo! There on that battlefield
With little to cheer, no bivouac song,
No gleaming banners that wave,
But, oh, those battles they last so long,
From babyhood to the grave.
But faithful still as the shining star;
She fights in her walled-up town;
Fights on and on in her endless war,
And fighting, silent, goes down.

Peace has its memories as well as war and out of the past come the forms and faces of the friends we knew and loved in other days, the comrades of peace, the partners of business and professions, the companions of feast and merrymaking, the brothers of the lodge room who cheered and helped us in dark hours and made life better for us.

They crowd about us at such times as these, and move our hearts as strangely and sweetly now as then. We see again the one whose name was legion, of whom we all say:

Green be the sod above him,
Friend of my better days.
None knew him but to love him,
None named him but to praise.

Those who died in the cause of country indeed travel in happiness with Almighty God.

AMERICAN LEGION SPEECH.

CLEARER PERSPECTIVE NOW.

The passage of thirteen years since those trying days of America's entrance into the World War furnished a clearer perspective as to the value of America's contribution.

We now realize that at the time of America's participation the citizenship of brave little Belgium had been largely decimated; the flower of manhood of France, which had fought so tenaciously for nearly three years, had been largely destroyed; and the bravest and best of the British Empire had, with the courage and persistence that has ever characterized the nation, been greatly depleted, while Italy had for a period of nearly three years courageously held in check the Austrian forces on the eastern front. In many of the other countries—Serbia, Greece, China, Montenegro, Japan, and Roumania, the grim specter not only of war but of famine had taken its tremendous toll.

While determination and courage was never absent in the ranks of the Allied Armies the prospect of defeat was gradually destroying the hope of success, and while the morale of the Allied forces was weakening, they still continued fighting doggedly with but limited prospect of victory.

To the aid of the Allied Armies at this critical period came a new fighting force, a force in whose veins flowed the restless and adventurous blood of men, many of whose ancestors actuated by the pioneering spirit had crossed three thousand miles of ocean to take up life's battle in a new and strange land, in many cases with whose language and customs they were not versed. They brought to the soil of Europe, in addition to their muskets, that which their ancestors had brought to America—high hope, firm resolve and an abiding faith not only in themselves and their comrades, and the justice of the cause which they represented, but a sublime faith in Almighty God.

Their coming not only revived the hopes of the war-weary soldiery of the Allied Armies but infused them with an "esprit de corps" that made victory certain.

ARMISTICE AND REFLECTION.

Armistice Day found the world rejoicing that the war was at an end but, alas, the whole world did not participate in the rejoicing. Thirty millions of human lives had been sacrificed and from thirty millions of homes happiness had departed and sorrow had entered.

More than seventy thousand American mothers grieved for the loss of a son whose resting place, marked with a little wooden cross, symbolizes his contribution in death to the cause—and the Flag—and the land which in life he had served, and in death had immortalized.

Thirteen years appears an exceedingly brief time to the individual in the possession of health and friends, but it must be an eternity to the countless thousands who suffered the loss of health, or limb, or of reason, and whose hours of agony are only brightened from time to time by the presence either of the members of their families, or their comrades in arms during the World War. Yes, thirteen years an eternity, and no man can testify to this fact, before a gathering of this character, more forcefully than the National Vice President of The American Legion from whom the sunlight, God's greatest gift, has been shut out—the Vice President seated on the platform here today.

To these men our hearts go out, and we owe them more than sympathy, as the beneficiaries of their service, we owe them an occasional visit which will convey to them in their agonizing moments the knowledge that a grateful people are not unmindful of their sacrifice.

To the peaceful shades of Arlington Cemetery, where rests the honored dead of America, the heartbroken mothers who have never been privileged to learn what became of the son they brought into the world, and for whose coming they themselves went down into the valley of death, make their pilgrimages.

A SOLDIER'S SHRINE.

The grave of the Unknown Soldier has become a shrine; a shrine at which kneel in prayer Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, Black and White, Yellow and Red, representatives of our cosmopolitan American population, typifying all races, all creeds, and all climes.

Would that the lesson which the shrine to the Unknown Soldier conveys might be accepted by the entire world; the lesson of the horror of war and the imperative need of the substitution of reason for force in the settlement of difference between nations.

Would to God that the spiritual idealism that pervaded America during the period of the World War might again manifest itself in the hearts of men the world over, and through the development of a program to outlaw war, make possible the preservation of peace in the world.

This splendid organization, the American Legion, today is filling the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, who, in answer to the Supreme summons, are rapidly passing to their reward in Heaven. For more than a half century the Grand Army have preached and practised patriotic service and devotion to the country, and the American Nation looks to the new Grand Army of America, the American Legion, to perform a like service.

The world looks to this splendid organization through whose valor and steadfast courage the Government made possible by Washington and the handful, the Government preserved by Lincoln and his followers, the Government perpetuated by Woodrow Wilson and the entire American people, for a spiritual leadership fruitful of service to God and humanity, through which the world may be preserved from the horrors of war.

MAYOR CURLEY EXTOLS LEADERS OF WORLD WAR AND THEIR GLORIOUS ACHIEVEMENTS IN ADDRESS AT DINNER TENDERED NATIONAL COMMANDER OF AMERICAN LEGION. CALLS FOR SERVICE AND SACRIFICE IN FUTURE CRISES EXAMPLED BY THOSE IN PAST.

Mayor Curley at the dinner tendered to National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion, at the Hotel Statler, October 6, 1930, spoke as follows:

Worthy National Commander, Your Excellency, Honored Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

It is a very great privilege for the City of Boston to entertain, within its gates once more, the representatives not only of our own country who wrote history in a most luminous and worthwhile manner in the greatest war in the history of the world, but in addition to welcome within our gates the representatives of those nations allied with America during the period of the World War. To welcome here the representatives of our sister republic that sent here in 1917 the first war mission headed by that illustrious soldier, through whose determination and through whose genius was made possible the estoppel of the mad march of the central empire at the Marne, Marshal Joffre, and to be permitted upon this occasion to greet an equally illustrious representative of the republic of France in the person of the great soldier and great Marshal of France, General Gouraud, at the table now is also a great privilege.

I know of no more inspiring lesson that can be taught to the children of France, the future citizens, than the story of his contribution during the period of the World War. It is almost as well known to the children of America as it is to the children of France. This man had an opportunity to remain six months in the hospital and preserve his arm as God had given it to him, but remained two months and lost his arm to help save France. To greet here the representative of that little country asked to hold out for six days, but held out with the determination that won for them the admiration of the whole world, holding out for six long weeks, until the land was almost drained white of its manhood, brave Belgium is likewise a great privilege.

We have a sort of traditional hostility against Great Britain in Boston, perhaps gained on the knowledge that more than eighty per cent of our population emanated from a nation that had carried on warfare against Great Britain, for nearly seven hundred years, but not always successful. But during the period of the war a miracle happened in Boston. It was my very great privilege to be Mayor at the time, to receive a visit from a colonel representing the Kilties. It was one of those courageous regiments from a country to the North, Canada, that gave 450,000 men in killed and wounded out of a population of a little more than 8,000,000 of souls.

When he called on me in the Mayor's office in Boston and said: "We would like to raise a regiment in Boston and go over and fight," for the first time we permitted recruiting on Boston Common and I made the first speech that ever was made for an English regiment on Boston

Common. They only wanted a thousand men but we gave them 1,200 in ten days. Among those who were recruited on Boston Common were some 300 members of my own political organization—the Tammany Club of Boston, dressed in their kilties. I went to see them off at—some ten weeks later.

A COMMON HERITAGE.

So a wonderful friendship was created between those people in the north and our people with a common heritage, a heritage of hand and courage, a heritage of blood strengthened with the passage of time since the period of the war. A mission later came to Boston to be received in the same manner. Their declaration, perhaps the most historic one of all, made in the Copley-Plaza, by the representative of the Japanese government, when, for the first time upon the presentation by the City of Boston a gold medalion of liberty, showing the flag of the United States, and the flag of Japan, and as we presented it he said, "There is only one place for the East and West to be and that is standing together, for the preservation of free government of the world."

So it is a very great joy to receive all these representatives here, and I know of no greater joy than to be privileged to sit and break bread with two of our representatives of these, our own branches of national defense, under whose leadership it was possible to transport over three thousand miles of ocean, a million of the flower of America's manhood, the quiet, retiring, wonderful man who sits at the table here tonight, who has added glory to the American Navy, in the person of Admiral Benson.

When you consider the number of men engaged in the war, and the long time and period it was in progress before America was forced to go over and end it, you have a realization of how difficult it was for America's army to get a status that would make possible for them a place in the history of the war, and of the world. When that history was written it required a man of supreme courage, a man of real determination, to stand out against the forces of the other side, outnumbering him more than ten to one, and insist that the American soldier boys on the other side be permitted to fight as an American unit rather than fight as a tail to the allied armies, a man to whom America and posterity will owe more to than any other single individual—the head of the American Expeditionary Forces. It was possible for America to reach a historical page in the history of the World War through General Pershing, seated on my left.

A NEW PERSPECTIVE ACQUIRED.

With the passage of time we acquired a new perspective, not only of the contribution of the various nations to the winning of the World War, but the contribution of our own nation. We acquired, with the passage of time, a more profound appreciation of the spirit of idealism that made possible of acceptance, by a nation that had a wholesome and a natural horror of a man who hurts a man, whose very flesh quivered and shivered at the thought of the word "conscription," the most hateful word in the English language. With the passage of time and our appreciation of the ideals and principles for which the allied nations were engaged in combat, it was possible one day to compel the acceptance by Congress of an order for the selective military service in America under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson.

So my friends, the distinguished commander of the American Legion looks at me, and his look is equivalent to an order to sit down, but before I sit down, I want to say, it is a joy to be permitted to come within the portals of a room where are now assembled the immortals of the war, a great portion of them among the immortals of our own land, to congratulate them upon their splendid contribution in their day and ours. For after all, when Jefferson wrote the word equality in the Declaration of Independence, he expressed the most sublime character of faith in the people who were to inhabit the American continent. And it is our right and sacred privilege as American citizens, in our day and hour, to show our willingness to serve and sacrifice for that courageous principle enunciated by Thomas Jefferson. You men have shown it, and God willing, may it be accepted by the men who will come after us with the same courage and hopeful outlook.

SHIP LINE AGENTS TO MEET IN BOSTON IN 1932.

Mayor Curley on October 3 received the following letter from Christopher de Groot, General Agent of the North German Lloyd in Boston.

HON. JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston.

MY DEAR MAYOR CURLEY,—May I take this opportunity to acknowledge receipt of your very kind letter of September 20, in which you extended on behalf of the City of Boston an invitation to the general agents of the North German Lloyd to hold our annual meeting in Boston in 1931.

I am very happy to inform you that while the meeting in 1931 will be held in New York on board the steamer "Europa," it has tentatively been decided to hold the meeting in Boston in 1932.

May I once more thank you for the many courtesies you have extended to the North German Lloyd and also to me personally.

Very respectfully yours,

CHRIS DE GROOT,
General Agent,
New England Territory.

MAYOR CURLEY PRAISES ACHIEVEMENTS OF ORGANIZED LABOR IN ADDRESS OF WELCOME TO ANNUAL CONVENTION OF AMERICAN FEDERATION WHICH OPENED ON MONDAY—CALLS FOR SOLUTION OF UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM.

At the Convention of American Federation of Labor, Hotel Statler, Boston, Monday, October 6, Mayor Curley spoke as follows:

National President, Distinguished Members of the National Board, Delegates to this Convention of the American Federation of Labor, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I did not write out a speech for this occasion, although I was asked if I had a copy of it when I came into the hall. Personally, I should rather talk with you in conformity with the dictates of heart and mind, because no single organization, with the possible exception of the American Legion and the Grand Army of the Republic, has done more for the American people and humanity than the American Federation of Labor.

Over in the country of my ancestors it is customary to present some one in whom you are interested with a cane that has thorns on it and which is usually used to give somebody a very healthy knock. It is not only given as a token of appreciation but serves as a measure of possible future defence.

And so I brought one of these canes here to present to the head of this organization. We call it a Constitutional Big Stick. Three of them are to be presented this year; one to the head of the American Legion, one to the head of this splendid organization, and the third to the man who made it possible for the American forces to continue as an independent fighting unit rather than as a tail to the kite of any army and made possible the writing of luminous pages of American history for the people of the world—General Pershing.

This Constitutional Big Stick was cut from an elm tree that grew on the very spot where the first shot was fired in the movement for American liberty, at Lexington—not Concord—and it affords me very great pleasure to present it to a man who, as head of this great organization, has done more than any other solitary individual during his term of service to uphold in its fullest and purest manner and in its most idealistic sense, the Constitution of the United States—President Green of the American Federation of Labor.

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF LABOR.

I also, sir, present you with a most useful weapon for entry into our city but we want to take this occasion to assure you that you will never have to use it in Boston. And so it is a like pleasure for me to present you, sir, with a key to the City of Boston, emblematic of the service which you have rendered for the world in the American Federation of Labor, and we not only give the key to our city but we give the key to our hearts.

My friends, we are living in a most interesting period in the history of the world. Organized labor celebrates its golden jubilee in the very year that the State of Massachusetts and the City of Boston observe the Tercentenary of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Out of the Massachusetts Bay Colony came, in the progress of time, and with the advent of the courageous and adventurous pioneers, typifying the pure womanhood and the hearty manhood over every land in the whole world, a wonderful development in a pioneering country where the soil was not very friendly and where the natives resented, as anybody should resent, the taking of their property and the invasion of their rights. It called for the development of the highest conceivable character of faith—faith based largely on the realization of the knowledge that unless all stuck together in a strange land and under these trying conditions, there was no hope for a solitary individual.

We can criticize, as we will and as we do, the weaknesses and the ills, and the vicious strains that predominated from time to time in the life of the Puritans, but there is no thoughtful individual that will ever find fault with that which represented the fruition of the development of faith, namely, the establishment of the American Republic and the contribution by the peoples of the world to the flag of our own country—the Stars and Stripes.

WORLD AND AMERICA AWAKENING.

Now, then, the most unusual feature of our existence as a people is that notwithstanding the fact that each and every individual under the law is entitled to the same right and privilege in the matter of suffrage and the majority of the people who work have always in their power sufficient voting strength to repeal any law or to enact any law if they stand united, I venture to say that were it not for this great and necessary essential asset to the lives of the American people you would scarcely find a single law on any of the statute books of the American Nation.

Our government was organized in three branches—executive, legislative and judicial. These three branches needed another necessary branch in order to function properly for the good of humanity, due to the suffering, want and sorrow, and so came this God-given addition to American progress and to humanity—the American Federation of Labor.

The world and America are beginning to wake up. We are aroused at the spectacle of 600 communists in Cleveland attempting to stall the train of the President of the United States. Why? Because they find it difficult to understand why the richest nation in the world, with more money in control of the Federal treasury, the trust companies and the banks, the financial interests of the land are unable to solve an economic problem that would guarantee work for the able-bodied, willing workers of America.

We had a meeting, Mr. President, the other day and when I called it I did not feel very hopeful of cooperation but I received it. To this conference I invited the president of every college in this state and the head of the economics department of each college, and all attended. I asked them if it was not about time that we relieved organized labor of the burden and provide a program that would make for safety and sanity in behalf of all Americans. If this is done the entire American people will bear the burden rather than organized labor alone. And I said to them what I am going to say to you here and now, and that is, that we have never fully appreciated, never appreciated in any sense, just what organized labor has done for America and humanity.

GROWTH OF ORGANIZATION.

A handful of men with only a limited number of its membership fortunate enough to enjoy a college education, limited in finances, limited in numbers, and with at one time or another even the hand of the workers themselves raised against them; also the power of the Federal courts and the power of the militia, and yet they have gone on until at the end of half a century they are stronger than ever.

We should be ashamed if we did not have the eight-hour day; the Saturday half holiday, the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Maternity Act, and countless other laws that make for peace and happiness in the home and patriotism in the land.

I like to think of a little poem I learned many years ago, which I think is peculiarly applicable to organized labor. It reads:

It is easy to sit in the sunshine,
And talk to the man in the shade,
It is easy to float in a well trimmed boat,
And point out the places to wade,
It is easy to tell the toiler,
How best he may carry his pack,
But no man can rate a burden's weight,
Until it's been on his back.

The burden has been on the back of labor for fifty years. Now to stem a possible tide of communism, now to stem a possible tide of unrest, now to meet an economic condition that will make for safety, we are going to have a lot of help. Everyone wants to help now, not for the present emergency but for the future.

Lloyd George is authority for the statement that they have an industrial depression in Great Britain once in every two and one half years. In America we have it probably once in every seven years.

We are shortly going to make our choice between the introduction of a "dole system" that will sap the initiative, character and pioneering spirit that has ever been in evidence in the American Republic or provide an economic system that will give work and wage for those who need work, and are unable to get it.

It must feel good after fifty years of fighting to realize that you have reached that stage where the justice of your cause receives the proper recognition that will ultimately mean united support to solve this great economic problem whose equitable solution is necessary if the American Republic is to endure.

LAND-TAKING IN HYDE PARK.

The Mayor has approved the order of the Board of Street Commissioners for the taking of land for a public improvement, consisting of the laying out and construction of Foster street, Hyde Park district, as a highway, from Loring street southeasterly, with the name of Chittick road or some other distinctive name, bounded and described as follows:

A highway named Chittick road is hereby laid out, from Loring street southeasterly for a distance of approximately ten hundred and eleven feet, and ordered constructed.

Said highway and the land, exclusive of trees or structures standing upon or affixed thereto, in which an easement for street purposes is hereby taken, is bounded and described as follows:

Northwesterly by Loring street, forty feet; northeasterly by the northeasterly line of Chittick road as hereby laid out, ten hundred ten and 73-100 feet; southeasterly by the southeasterly line of said Chittick road as hereby laid out, forty feet, and southwesterly by the southwesterly line of said Chittick road as hereby laid out, ten hundred ten and 91-100 feet.

Trees or structures standing upon or affixed to the aforescribed land shall be removed therefrom within sixty days following a notice of the city's intention to enter upon said land for the purpose of constructing said improvement.

Betterments are to be assessed for the making of the aforesaid improvement.

Ordered, That this Board estimates that the abutting lots of land on both sides of Chittick road, from Loring street southeasterly for a distance of approximately ten hundred and eleven feet, will receive benefit or advantage beyond the general advantage to all real estate in said city, from the improvement herein ordered; each of said lots to the amount hereinafter respectively set against it; said lots and the supposed owners thereof being shown on a plan marked "City of Boston, Chittick Road, Hyde Park, Assessment Plan, July 25, 1929, William J. Sullivan, Chief Engineer, Street Laying-Out Department," and on file in the office of said department.

Mayor Curley, on October 4, received the following communication from Adnah Neyhart, of 31 Milk street, Boston, Secretary of the Boston Horse Show, Incorporated.

Will you please accept our hearty thanks for the very valuable assistance you gave us in helping to bring about the acceptance of the invitation from the Boston Horse Show, Incorporated, to the governments of the Irish Free State, Germany, Sweden and the United States, to send army horse show teams to participate in our international military jumping contests, to be held at the Boston Garden, October 28 to November 1, inclusive.

Again assuring you of our appreciation and thanks, we are, Sir,

SIR WILLIAM HICKIE, K. C. B., MAJOR-GENERAL OF 16TH IRISH DIVISION IN WORLD WAR, ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON — WELCOMING ADDRESS DELIVERED BY MAYOR CURLEY.

At a luncheon tendered to Sir William Hickie, K. C. B., Major-General, commanding the 16th Irish Division in the World War and a Senator in the Irish Dail, Mayor Curley, on October 1, addressed the gathering in part as follows:

It is recorded in history that for more than nineteen centuries good men and women, some place in the world, struggled that the establishment of liberty and equality of opportunity might be the common heritage of all.

We have been privileged to welcome as guests of the city representatives of the governments of the world but the guest of this occasion today represents something more than a new contribution to the government of the world. He represents one of those contributions of the Almighty that is rather difficult for the ordinary individual to fully understand or appreciate, for singular as it may appear, it has been given by the Divinity to the small nations of the world to shape the destinies of the larger nations and of the world itself.

To the Republic of Poland was accorded the divine privilege of preserving, through the leadership of that great Polish citizen, John Sobiesky, who, at the siege of Vienna, with but forty thousand men, successfully opposed a force of seven hundred thousand Mohammedans, when it appeared as though the lamp of civilization that marked progress along the lines that really spell progress in the life of a nation or of a people — the love of education, the love of refinement, the love of the arts — might be extinguished from the earth. He gave to another small country the divine privilege of preserving all that civilization and the progress that civilization had made through the centuries and that is the land often called the "land of sorrow and tears," a nation of men who not only contributed equally with larger nations in the cares and vicissitudes of war and what we term progress but added glory and luster to the pages of the history of every land in the entire world.

There may have been disagreement with the action of the people of Ireland in 1916, because of what has been termed the Easter Week Rebellion, but there should be no more disagreement than there was with the people of the Colonies on that day far back in April, 1775, which marked the movement for the establishment of the American Republic. The Easter Week Rebellion of Ireland is a direct line of demarcation between 1916 and 1775 and no individual with a drop of Irish blood in his veins and a belief in the principle of liberty could ever quarrel because of the fortitude, courage and love of principle that actuated the action taken by the people of Ireland in 1916. It required supreme courage to face twelve-inch guns with rifles and revolvers.

Out of the World War came many men of great renown. Perhaps the Irish side of the World War has not been told. We are all familiar with the Canadian side, and that of the nations of Europe. We rejoice in our own contribution.

But we have heard very little of the contribution of Ireland. And now, like a knight coming out of an old oil painting of the past, there walks into our midst, accompanied by one whom every mother in New England calls "daddy," our own General Clarence Edwards, this man of modest demeanor, this man who perhaps would rather be anywhere else in the wide world or leading his gallant 16th Irish Division over the top.

He is here at the banquet board with one of the highest decorations which the Government of Great Britain can confer upon him. He is here in Boston with the title of Sir Knight which was conferred upon him for valor in the World War; he is here with the knowledge that in every emergency he stood up and was counted for that which counts more than anything else in the world — loyalty; Commander of the 16th Irish Division in the World War, Senator in the Irish Dail, Major-General Sir William Hickie, K. C. B., of Tipperary, Ireland.

CONTRACTS AMENDED.

J. A. Sprissler has been allowed to amend the contract for grading, etc., at the Henry Grew School, by striking out the word and figures "October 1, 1930," on page 14, article 4, and substituting therefor the word and figures "October 10, 1930," so that the said article 4, on page 14, shall read: "The contractor shall carry on the work with due diligence and dispatch, and shall bring the work to entire completion, as defined in the specifications, on or before October 10, 1930."

Rugo Construction Company has been allowed to amend the contract for finished grading at new Brighton High School in the Bennett District, by striking out the word and figures "September 1, 1930," on page 14, article 4, and substituting therefor the word and figures "October 15, 1930," so that the said article 4, on page 14, shall read: "The contractor shall carry on the work with due diligence and dispatch, and shall bring the work to entire completion, as defined in the specifications, on or before October 15, 1930."

MAKES BID FOR AIRSHIP EXPORT BUSINESS OF FORD MOTOR COMPANY FOR BOSTON AIRPORT.

The following letter was sent on October 3 by the Mayor to Ford Motor Company, attention of Mr. Edsel C. Ford, at Dearborn, Mich., regarding their considering using Boston Airport as their point for the shipment of airplanes to Europe and South American countries as follows:

GENTLEMEN,—My attention has been directed to the fact that the Ford Motor Company is seriously considering the Boston Airport as the point for shipment to European and South American countries, as evidenced by the arrival of a trimotor plane at the Boston Airport this day, to be shipped via the Oriole Line to England.

The facilities afforded by the Boston Airport at the present time, due to the generous expenditures made by the municipality for the improvement of the port and the advantage of twenty-four hours in transportation from the Port of Boston as against any other port in the United States, I assume has appealed to the judgment of the shipping department of your company.

The Boston Airport has been increased more than 100 per cent in size during the present year and, through a recent act of the State Legislature, land is now available for an increase of 100 per cent additional in the area of the port. The City of Boston has already expended a considerable sum of money for development and proposes to pursue a vigorous policy with the object in view of making the East Boston Airport the largest and best equipped of any port to be found in the entire world.

Under the circumstances, it is pleasing to find that the facilities afforded appeal to the judgment of the officers of your concern and I take this opportunity of assuring you that the City of Boston is prepared to comply with any reasonable demands that may be made to secure the business of your company.

With every good wish and trusting that the advantages of Boston may prompt a larger measure of business from your concern, I beg to remain

Sincerely,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Mayor Curley issued the following statement:

The pleasing news has this day been received that the Ford Motor Company has apparently selected Boston as the place for ocean shipment of planes to Europe, South America and other points on the Atlantic Coast.

The novel method in use by the company is most interesting and, apparently economical, namely, that of flying the plane from Detroit, where it is manufactured, to the East Boston Airport and there transferred direct to the steamers for the place of destination.

There is reason to believe that the adoption of this program of the Ford Motor Company will serve as an incentive for some action by the General Motors Company.

WEST POINT CADETS TO PARADE IN BOSTON.

Mayor Curley received a letter on October 2 from Major General Smith, superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, thanking the Mayor most heartily for his invitation to the cadets to parade upon Boston Common, extending one of their magnificent reviews, as a courtesy to the citizens of Boston.

Major General Smith further declared that the review of the corps of West Point Cadets on Boston Common will immediately follow their arrival at Huntington Station after they have had an opportunity to enjoy breakfast.

Major Thomas A. Terry, U. S. A., Assistant Commandant of the United States Military Academy of West Point will visit Boston during the coming week and will call upon Mayor Curley and officials of the Park and Police Departments, and arrange all details relative to the forthcoming review of the Cadets on Boston Common.

Major General Smith is very desirous that a reviewing stand shall be erected on Boston Common and has especially invited Mayor Curley and his friends to join him at the reviewing stand as the cadets pass in dress parade.

*General Order No. 91.AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION.

Because of the demands to be made on the Fire Department during the next week it will not be possible to weaken the force by leaves of absence for personal reasons. In order to care for various emergencies it has already been necessary to make several details of men; the main thought in all action being the protection of the lives and property of the citizens of Boston and the countless thousands of visitors attending the American Legion Convention.

Members of the department are expected to accept their assignments during the week in accordance with the best traditions of the department. So many exceptionally favorable comments have been received by the Fire Commissioner concerning the department of the members of the department at all public functions, that he knows that no instructions are necessary at this time to the men to extend the customary courtesy to all persons with whom they come in contact. Members of the department will perform the duties assigned to them and at the same time be considerate of the rights of others. If at any time they can be of assistance to anyone without interfering with their duties, members should do so promptly and courteously.

By order of Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY A. FOX,
Chief of Department.

*General Order No. 92.FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

In accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States and the Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the week beginning October 5, 1930, has been set aside as Fire Prevention Week. Coming as it does during the week of the American Legion Convention in Boston, when hundreds of thousands of visitors will be in the city, it has become necessary for the Fire Department to divide its attention between the two responsibilities. The protection of the lives and property of citizens and visitors is one of the gravest concerns of the department. The desire to impart the lessons of fire prevention is also one of importance and has always received prominence in the activities of the department. In order to participate in the activities of Fire Prevention Week the department will be governed by the following rules:

Fire stations will be open to the public between the hours of 12 m. and 9 p. m., for inspection and information as to how the department functions and on fire prevention matters, in addition to instructions as to the proper method of sending in an alarm of fire. During this period that houses are open to inspection they should be in good order, no gatherings or loitering on the main floor, and the man on patrol should wear his full uniform, including blouse, cap and badge. If visitors come he should summon the commanding officer who will either show the visitors around or assign someone to do it. Children under twelve should not be allowed in the house unless accompanied by an adult.

As far as possible, all schools will be visited by a district chief and such officers as they may assign to assist them in so doing; fire drills are to be held and permission requested to address the pupils on the subject of fire and fire prevention, the pupils to be assembled for that purpose. This can best be done after Wednesday, October 8, 1930, and may be extended into the week of October 12, 1930, if arrangements can be made with the masters of schools.

A number of copies of a proclamation issued by his Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, have been sent to the various divisions, and deputy and district chiefs will see that these are displayed in a prominent place, i. e., on the fire stations and such other locations where permission may be obtained to post them.

By order of the Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY A. FOX,
Chief of Department.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT (Paving Service).

Upon varying dates as indicated, the Mayor approved contracts with firms and persons named for the following work, according to communications received from Joseph A. Rourke of the Public Works Department.

BOSTON, August 25, 1930.

To His Honor the Mayor.

Your approval is respectfully requested for the award of contract, without advertising, to the M. F. Gaddis Company, for new asphalt pavement on Gore street, from Parker street to Terrace street, in accordance with unit prices bid by this firm on Marcella street, Roxbury. Total amount of contract not to exceed $2,600.

Respectfully yours,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, August 26, 1930.

To His Honor the Mayor.

Your approval is respectfully requested to the award of a contract without advertising to the M. F. Gaddis Company for the paving of Summer street, between Otis and South streets, which contract is for the removal of the wooden blocks and some asphalt top; the replacing and shimming up of concrete base and the rolling of a new asphalt surface on the entire area. The unit price for sheet asphalt top and removing the wooden blocks and the unit price for the concrete base is the same as the contract recently in force for doing similar work on Boylston street, Tremont and Washington streets. We also allow 30 cents a square yard for the removal of the existing asphalt top. Total amount of the contract approximately $8,500.

This section of Summer street is in a deplorable condition, having some car-tracks and a recent Edison steam-heating trench; and this is the last favorable opportunity for doing the work this year, as it will extend through the double holiday and the contractor has agreed to work both Sunday and Monday if necessary to complete the work.

Very truly yours,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, August 28, 1930.

To His Honor the Mayor.

Our bituminous patching program is still more extensive than we anticipated in order that by the expenditure of additional money this year we may forestall the complete reconstruction of many highways; as on the prices paid under this contract we were able to make a great impression throughout the city for better roadway surfaces at a comparatively cheap cost.

Your approval is respectfully requested for the award of a contract, without advertising, to the Central Construction Company, to the amount of approximately $25,000, at the same unit prices as in their existing contract for repairing bituminous pavements.

Respectfully yours,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, September 2, 1930.

To the Mayor of Boston.

Your approval is respectfully requested to the award of a contract, without advertising, to Samuel J. Tomasello for recut granite block pavement and granolithic sidewalks in Wall street, from Causeway street to Minot street; Cotting street, from Lowell street to Wall street, and Minot street, from Lowell street to Leverett street, all in the city proper, at a total cost not to exceed $10,000, at the unit prices identical with those submitted by by this contractor for paving Chatham, Medford and Lowell streets.

Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, September 3, 1930.

To His Honor the Mayor.

Your approval is respectfully requested to the award of a contract, without advertising, to Samuel J. Tomasello for granite block paving on Massachusetts avenue, comprising the following quantities: 906 square yards of concrete base removed at $2, $1,812; 2,250 cubic yards of concrete base at $7, $15,750; total, $17,562.

The extra amounts under these items are required for Massachusetts avenue from Southampton street to Edward Everett square on account of the condition of the old concrete base which was placed for granite block patching and which had to be removed, due to its poor condition, and the extra amount of concrete was required on account of the grades being low through settlement and the condition of the concrete in the Elevated's track area which practically required entire replacement due to its poor quality.

Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, September 4, 1930.

To the Mayor of Boston.

Your approval is respectfully requested to the award of a contract, without advertising, to the Beatty Construction Company for the reconstruction of Mapleton street, Brighton (Ward 22), from Murdock street to Market street, with sheet asphalt pavement on macadam base and granolithic sidewalks, the estimated total amount of the contract being $9,500, based on the unit prices in this firm's contract for repaving Warren street, Brighton, from Cambridge street to the Brookline line.

Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, September 4, 1930.

To the Mayor of Boston.

Your approval is respectfully requested to the award of a contract, without advertising, to A. G. Tomasello & Son, Incorporated, for the reconstruction with asphalt pavement and granolithic sidewalks, where required, of Dorchester avenue, from Victoria street to Hallam street; Bullard street, from Bowdoin street to Rosseter street, and Stanton street, from Norfolk street to Evans street, all in Dorchester.

The prices for the work to be done will be the same as those in the contract for Ashmont street, Dorchester, now being prosecuted by this contractor, and for items not appearing in the Ashmont street contract we will establish the following: 11 square yards of old concrete base removed at $1 per yard, $11.90; cubic yards of concrete base at $7.50 per yard, $675; total, $686. The estimated total amount of the contract is $25,000.

Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

The unit prices to be paid will be identical with those on the contract with this company for repaving Belgrade avenue in this immediate vicinity, and for items not appearing in the Belgrade avenue contract, we have established the following: 100 linear feet of edgestone foundation across driveways, at 20 cents per foot, $20; 270 square yards loam spaces at 50 cents per yard, $135; total, $155.

Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, September 8, 1930.

To the Mayor of Boston.

Permission to award a contract for the construction of artificial stone sidewalks in the public streets, without advertising, to John Bowen Company, Incorporated, 129 Newbury street, Boston, is hereby requested on the ground that this contractor is not selected by the city in the first instance but by the abutters; secondly, the expense of construction is to be divided by the city and abutters; also because such contracts vary greatly in amounts and seldom involve one thousand (1,000) dollars.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN E. CARTY,
Acting Commissioner of Public Works.

BOSTON, September 9, 1930.

Your approval is respectfully requested to the award of a contract, without advertising, for sewerage works in E street and Fargo street, South Boston, to A. Grande, 60 Braden street, West Roxbury, for the sum of $8,484.89.

The proposal contained quantities for the sewerage works on both E and Fargo streets, but the advertisement did not include E street. The low bidder on the proposals received September 11 was A. Grande and for the amount stated above.

This request for the award, without advertising, is to eliminate any legal objection which may be made on the original advertisement not carrying the name of E street.

The following bids were received on September 11:

General Order No. 110.

The commissioner realizes that this department is going to be under a severe strain during the week of October 4 to October 11, but he has confidence that the department is able and willing to cope with the situation in a way that will bring much credit to the city and the Police Force.

The commissioner is informed that in all other cities where the American Legion Convention has been held, those in authority have deemed it necessary to secure outside aid of various kinds to assist in policing the city where the convention was being held.

The commissioner believes that the Boston Police Department is competent to handle the policing of this city during the American Legion Convention. The department received much praise for the courteous and efficient manner in which the various parades in connection with the Tercentenary celebration in September were handled, and if the parades in connection with the American Legion Convention and the other work thrown upon this department during the convention are as well handled, this department will be entitled to feel satisfaction in accomplishing a good piece of work, as well as the praise of the community which it serves.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

General Order No. 113.

It is with great pride that the commissioner publishes the following letter, received this morning from his Excellency the Governor of the Commonwealth:

October 8, 1930.

HON. EUGENE C. HULTMAN, Police Commissioner of the City of Boston, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. COMMISSIONER,—I desire to express to you and to the entire Police Department, from top to bottom, my hearty commendation for the excellent service the department has performed during the trying period of the Tercentenary celebrations in this city.

That service reached its climax yesterday when the tremendous crowds, estimated at two and one half millions, incidental to the American Legion Parade, were handled in such a courteous, orderly and efficient manner.

Yours sincerely,

FRANK G. ALLEN.

The commissioner only desires to say that it is a matter of sincerest gratification to him that the department justified the confidence the commissioner has in it as expressed in General Order No. 110, dated October 2, 1930.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

A fireworks display at Braves Field, on Wednesday, October 8, 1930, as per program on file at the office of the Director of Public Celebrations, Room 52, City Hall, in conjunction with the National Convention of the American Legion.

ADDITION TO CONTRACT.

The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Limited, has been allowed to make the following addition to the contract for repairing and painting Fireboat Engine 47:

Furnish mill, install and calk graving piece in plank on port bow, $20; furnish and machine twelve shoulder studs for condenser, $15; make pattern, cast, machine and fit two new piston rings for air pump, $16; furnish and machine new liner for water end of sanitary pump; remove old liner and install new; remove steam end of pump to shop, rebore in true alignment and replace on board; make pattern, cast, machine and install complete new piston and piston rings; furnish and machine three new pins for valve gear and scrape both valve and seat, $95; remove three main steam pipes to shop, braze one hole in each drilled to test thickness for local steam-boat inspectors; replace pipes on board and rejoin same; relag pipes and cover with sewed canvas and repaint pipes, flanges and lagging, $98; total addition, $244; original contract, $3,950; total contract with addition, $4,194.

CONSOLIDATION OF COUNTIES TO REDUCE TAXES.

Just as consolidation of small business under holding or managing companies reduces overhead costs, it is fair to believe that consolidation of small counties into larger units would reduce taxes through eliminating duplicating offices, etc.

New York has a plan for recasting more than 60 counties into 37 units, and Tennessee, after already having merged 2 counties, now plans to merge the 95 counties in the state into 11 new units.

The results of Tennessee's experience in merging Hamilton and James counties in 1919, as portrayed by J. W. Manning of Vanderbilt University, are interesting. He points out that taxes in James County have been reduced one half, paved highways have been increased from two miles to fifty miles, and many manufacturing plants have entered the county because of the reduction in taxes. The results in New York and Tennessee will be watched with interest by the whole country.

LIFE-GIVING PATRIOTISM IS LOCAL.

By civic patriotism is meant the feeling and the taking of a deep, unselfish, earnest, ever-wakeful, active interest in the affairs of one's own city or local community, regarding it as having an autonomy, a distinct personality, a name and interests of its own, and, if one pleases, endowed with a sense of personal honor and with all laudable ambitions for the promotion of the welfare of its people.

Where such civic virtues exist the local community will neither suffer from the dry-rot of public indifference and neglect nor become tainted with graft or corruption. Its life will be healthful, and, like the ocean, will be kept pure by its own ceaseless flow and movement. All life-giving patriotism is local.

Show a good municipal citizen and one will see a citizen who loves his state, and who loves his nation, and who will discharge all the duties of this triple relation. Good government in local affairs is the best assurance of good government in state and national affairs.

AIRPORTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The number of airports in the country continues to grow steadily, and the listing compiled by the Department of Commerce showed 1,520 airports in operation on October 2 of this year. Of these, 442 were municipal airports, and 468 were privately owned and operated. The rest included army fields, naval air stations, Department of Commerce intermediate fields, marked auxiliary fields and miscellaneous others. As will be noted, the municipal airports comprise 29 per cent of the total number now in use in the country. The fact that 442 cities of various sizes have indicated their interest by investing substantial funds in the purchase of property and construction of these airports illustrates the stability of aviation today. As indicative of the volume of traffic already in evidence at municipal airports, it might be noted that in a recent representative week the Des Moines airport showed 88 airplanes arriving and 86 leaving. Oakland, California, showed 55 arriving, 52 leaving; while the Tulsa, Oklahoma, airport showed 272 arriving and 265 leaving. These figures are constantly increasing, and they show that the city airport is already being used.

PORT OF BOSTON.

Boston Harbor comprises an area of about 47 square miles (exclusive of the islands), including all the expanse of tidewater within a straight line from Point Allerton to Point Shirley and extending therefrom to the mainland. It is the best of natural harbors, near open sea, sheltered and spacious for anchorage; main ship channel 35 feet in depth at mean low water, increasing to 40 feet from President Roads to open sea; new dredging operations in charge of United States engineers are under way for increasing depth of said main channel to 40 feet; waterfront (i. e., lineal pier space) 40 miles, 6 miles fronting on 30 feet depth at low water.

Commonwealth Pier No. 5, South Boston, 1,200 feet long, 400 feet wide, accommodating five 600-foot ships at one time, 40 feet depth at mean low water on both sides, with three 2-story fireproof buildings of steel and concrete construction, containing 900,000 square feet of floor space, total cost of this enterprise to State, $4,500,000. Commonwealth Pier No. 6, South Boston (Fish Pier), buildings on same erected by lessee, Boston Fish Market Corporation, cost to State, $1,487,361. Commonwealth Pier, No. 1, East Boston, 900 feet long, costing State $764,600 for site and $426,674 for construction. New dry dock at South Boston (probably the largest in world), completed in 1919, 1,200 feet long and 120 wide, costing $3,169,651 and taken by United States Government at total cost.

Islands in Boston Harbor over 3 acres in area, 17, with total area of 965 acres; Long Island the largest, or 215.5 acres. Owned by United States, 392 acres; by City of Boston, 334 acres. Number of wharves, 143, of which eight are owned by the city.

There are 38 foreign steamship lines with regular sailings to and from Boston, ten coastwise lines and three intercoastal. In 1915 a revision of the harbor lines was made and the project undertaken whereby 600 acres of flats between Governor's Island and Jeffries Pt. will be filled in and used for extensive commercial developments under State control. About 175 acres of flats have recently been filled in and added to the land area of East Boston and 160 acres to that of South Boston.

In April, 1918, the Government decided to establish its Army Supply Base on a portion of the Commonwealth lands in South Boston. About 57.6 acres were purchased of the State, the price being $1,317,510, soon followed by the construction of two pier sheds, each 920 feet long, a wharf shed and other buildings, including one of the largest storehouses in the world, built of reinforced concrete, eight stories high, 1,638 feet long, 126 feet wide and with floor space of over 1,650,000 square feet. The total outlay for the plant was $26,000,000.

Total expenditure by State for improvement of Boston Harbor $22,575,827 from 1859 to November 30, 1927, inclusive; in the same period, there was expended additionally $951,992 on small channels; total Federal expenditure from 1790 to June 30, 1927, $13,258,846.

FLAG DAYS.

By order of the City Council it is the duty of the City Messenger to have the national colors displayed upon the public flagstaves on the following days:

Franklin's Birthday, January 17; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Evacuation Day, March 17; Patriot's Day, April 19; Grant's Birthday, April 27; Memorial Day, May 30; Anniversary of Adoption of National Colors, June 14; Bunker Hill Day, June 17; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, September (first Monday); Anniversary of Foudning of Boston, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Armistice Day, November 11.

THE COST OF DIPHTHERIA.

Diphtheria costs New York City over $5,000,000 annually, according to Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, whose statement, given in a news release from the department, is based on the calculations of the value of the lives lost, the cost of hospital care, and the expense of caring for patients in their homes.

Last year the loss occasioned by diphtheria in New York City was as follows:

Value of 642 human lives lost.....	$4,575,000
Cost of hospital care for 2,976 cases in the Contagious Disease Hospitals.....	391,000
Cost of caring for 7,800 cases in private homes.....	273,000

As against an annual economic loss of over $5,000,000 a year it is stated that an expenditure of less than 10 per cent of this sum will suffice to wipe out diphtheria and thus save the community $4,500,000 annually.

Figures by the New York City Department of Health show that thus far this year over 25,000 children have been immunized against diphtheria, nearly 12,000 having been protected by private physicians. The growing interest on the part of parents is well shown in the steady increase in the number of children immunized, which increased from 555 in the first week of the present campaign to 4,702 during the first week in April, or almost ninefold.

VETO OF ANNUITY.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 22, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen,—I return herewith, without my approval, the order adopted by your honorable body under date of September 8, 1930, providing for the payment of an annuity to the widow of Frank L. Lyons, late a captain of the Boston Fire Department.

The appended opinion as submitted by the Corporation Counsel and which is in conformity with opinions handed down in similar cases by four of his predecessors in office, Thomas M. Babson under date of December 20, 1909, Judge Joseph J. Corbett on July 29, 1912, E. Mark Sullivan on April 11, 1924, and Frank S. Deland on December 9, 1921, leaves no other course open.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Law Department, September 22, 1930.
Hon. James M. Curley,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Sir,—With reference to your inquiry of September 20, 1930, wherein you ask for an opinion as to the legality of an order of the City Council which provides:

"Ordered: That an annuity of six hundred dollars be allowed and paid to the widow of Frank L. Lyons, late captain of the Boston Fire Department, such annuity to continue as long as said widow remains unmarried and to be charged to the appropriation for Fire Department, Pensions and Annuities."

please be advised that the provisions of law authorizing an annuity such as in the present case are contained in section 1 of chapter 241 of the Acts of 1930. This section provides in part that certain annuities shall be paid in the event that a member of the police or fire force of this city is killed or dies within one year from injuries received while in the performance of his duty and it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Mayor and City Council that such death was the natural and proximate result of an accident occurring during the performance and within the scope of his duty as such member, and provided, also, that the attending physician or medical examiner shall certify that the death was the direct result of said injury. This act amends chapter 182 of the acts of 1930, which requires acceptance by the city. You will observe that by the language used in chapter 241 a condition precedent to the payment of an annuity is that the fireman shall have been killed or shall have died from injuries received and that the death was the natural and proximate result of an accident.

Prior to the enactment of chapter 241 of the Acts of 1930 the following acts were applicable especially to the City of Boston:

Section 2 of chapter 107 of the Acts of 1880, as amended by chapter 93 of the Special Acts of 1919 and chapter 62 of the Acts of 1920.

Section 2 of chapter 107 of the Acts of 1880 is as follows:

"If any member of the said fire department shall die from injuries received while in the discharge of his duties and shall leave a widow, or, if no widow, any child or children under the age of sixteen years, a sum not exceeding three hundred dollars may be paid by way of annuity to such widow so long as she remains unmarried, or to any such child or children so long as he or they continue under the age of sixteen years, and the board of fire commissioners may from time to time order such annuity to be reduced."

It is thus seen that under the present act, as well as under the earlier statutes applicable to Boston, that the Legislature has limited the payment of annuities to cases where the fireman died from injuries received while in the discharge of his duties.

The report of the Medical Examiner of the Fire Department to the Fire Commissioner concerning the late Capt. Frank L. Lyons states that he died of broncho-pneumonia and that the medical certificate "proof of death" gives the cause of death as "bilateral broncho-pneumonia." This report clearly indicates that the late Capt. Frank L. Lyons died from a disease rather than from an injury. In my opinion section 1 of chapter 241 of the Acts of 1930 does not apply when the member of the department dies as the result of a disease and payment must be confined to cases where death follows as the result of injuries due to an accident occurring during the performance of his duty.

Four of my predecessors in office, the late Thomas M. Babson, on December 20, 1909, Judge Joseph J. Corbett, on July 29, 1912, E. Mark Sullivan, on April 11, 1924, and Frank S. Deland, on December 9, 1927, arrived at the same conclusion on the construction of the word "injuries" as contained in the earlier statutes. Mr. Babson in his opinion to Samuel D. Parker said:

"The statute under which this pension or annuity is granted does not apply to the widows of persons who died of disease contracted in the discharge of their duties as firemen, but only to widows of persons who received physical injury which resulted in some way in their death."

He further ruled that the statute did not apply to the case of a fireman who died of pneumonia occasioned by getting wet at a fire.

Judge Corbett in his opinion said:
"In an effort to provide relief for employees incapacitated by disease, the door would be opened wide to claims of a highly flimsy and litigious character. It is largely a matter of proof. Where there is a change in the physical structure, it is generally possible to show the fact that it occurred in the course of employment which produced it. Where there is a disease it depends on the statements of the employee and his physician. The question of fact that it was caused by the employment is rarely without doubt."

(See opinions dated December 11, 1924, of former Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan, and December 9, 1927, of former Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland.)

I am unable to arrive at a conclusion different from that of my predecessors. The present case very clearly indicates that the late captain died of sickness or disease rather than from injuries received as the result of an accident which occurred while in the performance of his duties and within the scope of his employment.

Very truly yours,

SAMUEL SILVERMAN,
Corporation Counsel.

REPORT ON VOSE PARK.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 29, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen,—I herewith transmit to you report from the Metropolitan District Commission regarding Vose Park in the Neponset River section. This is in reply to your order of August 18, 1930.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Park Department, August 26, 1930.
C. A. Reardon, Secretary, Mayor's Office, City Hall, Boston.

My dear Mr. Reardon,—I have your letter of August 25, with enclosure, order from Councilor Wilson that the Metropolitan Park Commission, through his Honor the Mayor, be respectfully requested to make some early provision for improvement of Vose Park in the Neponset River section of Dorchester, in which you state that his Honor the Mayor is desirous of having a report submitted.

The area commonly called Vose Park is a wooded section on the banks of the Neponset river, adjacent to the Walter Baker chocolate mills and is in Boston (the river dividing the area, so called, from Milton).

There is no question but what the Metropolitan District Commission could make a decided improvement at this point if it so desired and had the money. A small park could be arranged for at very little expense and could be utilized for a mothers' rest or a small children's playground.

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM P. LONG, Chairman.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
Metropolitan District Commission,
1 Ashburton place,

Boston, September 12, 1930.
Mr. C. A. Reardon, Secretary to the Mayor, City Hall, Boston.

Dear Sir,—The commission took up at its meeting yesterday, your letter of August 29, submitting order of the City Council relative to provision for improvement of Vose Park. I was directed to reply that Vose Park has been cleaned up of underbrush and debris, and the commissions would be glad to transfer this park to the City of Boston for care and control, if the city would maintain it as a public playground.

Very truly yours,

W. E. WHITTAKER, Secretary.

ZONE SYSTEM ON HUNTINGTON AVENUE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 29, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen,—I herewith transmit to you report from Edward Dana, General Manager of the Boston Elevated Railway, regarding the zone system on Huntington avenue. This is in reply to your order of September 8, 1930.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Boston Elevated Railway,

Public Trustees,
Park Square Building,
Boston, September 26, 1930.

Hon. James M. Curley,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Mr. Mayor,—In reply to yours of September 20, I beg to advise that the trustees in a sincere effort to offer a five-cent fare so that short-haul riders might take advantage of same and thereby increase the number riding, placed an experimental plan into effect for thirty days from September 1. This plan has now been extended for the month of October. It is believed expedient to make no change in the method now in operation until the trustees know the results and can come to a definite conclusion as to its merits as far as assisting in the problems of meeting our revenue demands is concerned.

Under the Service-at-Cost Act it is incumbent upon the trustees to meet the cost of service. Owing to the decline in gross revenue the situation has become acute. This experiment is an effort, through a fare decrease rather than a fare increase, to see what results actually can be obtained. I shall be very glad to advise you later.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD DANA,
General Manager.

REMOVAL OF ASHES AND GARBAGE IN DORCHESTER.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 8, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen,—I herewith transmit to you report from Joseph A. Rourke, Commissioner of Public Works, regarding the removal of ashes and garbage in the Dorchester district. This is in reply to your order of August 18, 1930.

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

City of Boston,
Public Works Department,
September 3, 1930.

To his Honor the Mayor.

In reply to attached order in Council, by Councilor Wilson, "That, through his Honor the Mayor, the contracting firm in charge of the removal of ashes and garbage in the Dorchester district be instructed and required forthwith to comply with the requirements of the contract between that concern and the City of Boston," we expect complaints from every large district as regards the individual non-collection of garbage and litter and for many reasons, but the complaints from the four big districts average less than one to 1,000 inhabitants for the period from August 1 to 27, which is the season ordinarily when we have the greatest number of complaints on account of the large amount of green corn waste which fills up the containers. In fact, to remedy the situation, we have given some portions of the Dorchester district more than two collections a week as called for under the contract.

The strange provision of this contract for the last four years is that Dorchester is the only one of the five contract districts which requires the collection of garbage twice a week the year around. Why this favoritism was shown during the past four years is a mystery, except that it was for the purpose of favoring a bidder for the first year's contract who was awarded the contract and who hopelessly fell down on collections and disregarded entirely, it is said, the provisions of the contract. It may be that the people of Dorchester having been given twice the service as any other section of the city, either contract or day labor, are expecting too much.

We realize that under the contract, or under the day labor system, the individuals who collect are human and sometimes neglectful and are resentful of discourteous treatment from householders and, naturally, take offence at unreasonable chronic kickers, so that complaints are expected, but in no case where a complaint reaches either the district foreman's desk or the City Hall headquarters do we fail to see that proper collection is made immediately and the contractor notified that conditions must improve.

Under contracts to be let during this term, it is only fair to the rest of the city to see that the number of collections in Dorchester will not exceed those made elsewhere.

Yours respectfully,
J. A. ROURKE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

PROSECUTION OF PORT DIFFERENTIAL CASE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 23, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen.—I beg to submit herewith report of the Boston Port Authority requesting an additional appropriation in the sum of $20,000 for the prosecution of differential case now pending and for the conduct of the business of the Board.

I accordingly recommend the adoption of the accompanying order.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Boston Port Authority, Custom House,
Boston, September 17, 1930.

Hon. James M. Curley,
Mayor of Boston.

Dear Mayor Curley.—In the matter of the necessity of a further appropriation for the Port Authority at this time, may I refer you to my letter of August 12, 1930, on this subject. With further reference to the matter, I wrote to your secretary, Mr. J. P. Hanlon, on August 20, 1930, Mr. Hanlon advising in reply that the Corporation Counsel had the matter in mind. At our request, the Corporation Counsel has drafted an order to be submitted by you to the City Council, three copies of which order I am inclosing.

Without going into further detail as to the need for an additional appropriation at this time, I can inform you briefly that we now have remaining out of our original appropriation of $25,000 only $3,400. Our total expenditures since September 10, 1929, have been $21,500, of which $16,300 have been spent on the differential case. In order to continue the prosecution of this case it is, of course, absolutely essential that funds be at our disposal. We know that you realize the importance of this matter and are therefore requesting that the order for $20,000 be forwarded to the City Council for attention at their meeting on Monday, September 22.

Very truly yours,
BOSTON PORT AUTHORITY,
RICHARD PARKHURST, Secretary.

Ordered, That the sum of twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars be, and the same is, hereby appropriated to be expended under the direction of his Honor the Mayor, in accordance with chapter 229 of the Acts of 1929, for necessary expenses of the Boston Port Authority, said sum to be charged to the Reserve Fund.

Referred to Executive Committee.

L STREET AND STRANDWAY IMPROVEMENT.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 29, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen.—In order to make available sufficient funds for the construction of the L Street Bath House and the improvement of the various beaches along the Strandway, I recommend that the unexpended balance remaining in the special appropriation, Columbus Park, Improvements, be transferred to the special appropriation, Columbus Park and Strandway, Improvements, etc.

I submit, herewith, an order providing for this transfer and respectfully recommend its adoption by your honorable body.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Ordered, That under authority of chapter 261 of the Acts of 1893 the City Auditor be, and hereby is, authorized to transfer:

From the appropriation for Columbus Park, Improvements, $96,400.57 to the appropriation for Columbus Park and Strandway Improvements, etc., $96,400.57.

Referred to Executive Committee.

SALE OF LAND, CHESTNUT HILL AVENUE.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 25, 1930.
To the City Council.

Gentlemen.—The property located at Chestnut Hill avenue and Commonwealth avenue, containing 66,672 square feet, is unsuited for playground purposes and in the opinion of the Park Commission should be sold.

The City of Boston maintains a playground in the vicinity of Cleveland circle, within two hundred yards of the Chestnut Hill avenue and Commonwealth avenue property, containing 371,200 square feet, and in the event that the property at Chestnut Hill avenue and Commonwealth avenue is sold the money derived from the sale could be utilized for the development of the major property into a playground that would serve the needs of this section of the city for many years.

The property at Chestnut Hill avenue and Commonwealth avenue is assessed for $1 per foot and a fair upset price would be $1.50 per foot, in view of the desirability of the lot for realty development.

Under the circumstances, it is clearly the duty of the city to dispose of this property and improve the larger plot of land for the benefit of the residents of the district.

Accordingly, I recommend the adoption of the accompanying order.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Ordered, That the Board of Park Commissioners be, and hereby are, authorized under the provisions of chapter 274 of the Acts of 1899, to sell at public auction on such terms as said Board, with the approval of the Mayor, may deem proper, the parcel of land owned by the city at the corner of Chestnut Hill avenue and Commonwealth avenue, containing approximately 66,672 square feet.

Referred to Committee on Public Lands.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

LEGION REVIEWING STAND FOR CITY COUNCIL.

The following was received:

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor, September 29, 1930.
To the City Council.
Gentlemen,—The parade of the American Legion will be held on Tuesday, October 7, and it is fitting that a special reviewing stand be provided for the membership of the Boston City Council, in view of the fact that many members of your honorable body are Legionnaires. I have, accordingly, this day, directed the Superintendent of Public Buildings to cause to be erected a reviewing stand at the School street entrance to City Hall for the exclusive use of the Boston City Council.

I have further notified the Chief Marshal of the parade that this stand has been here located, and that it is my desire that the official salute be given to the President and the members of the City Council by the marchers in the parade.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Coun. CURTIS—Mr. President, at the Executive Committee meeting a committee of three was appointed in connection with this matter. I would like to move at this time that one of our members, a member of the Legion, who was absent from the committee room at the time, be included in the membership of the committee. I would move, therefore, that the number of the committee be enlarged to four, and that Councilor Fish be included.

Chairman COX—The Chair would rule that the motion is out of order, as that was a committee matter.

Coun. CURTIS—Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we may take the matter up at this time, amending the vote in that respect, so as to allow of the addition of one more member to the committee.

Chairman COX—If there is no objection, the Chair will entertain the motion.
(No objection was expressed.)

Coun. Curtis' motion prevailed, the membership of the committee was increased to four, and Councilor Fish was added to the committee.

Coun. FITZGERALD—Mr. President, I would further move that Councilor Donovan be added to the committee, as a participant in the late war.
Coun. DONOVAN—I do not wish to be added to the committee, Mr. President.

The communication was placed on file.

BUSES ON MASSACHUSETTS AVENUE.

The following was received:

The School Committee of the City of Boston, 11 Beacon Street, Boston, September 19, 1930.

To the Honorable the City Council.

Gentlemen,—It has been called to the attention of the School Committee that there is no car service now on Massachusetts avenue from Uphams Corner by way of Edward Everett square, and that the tracks have been removed, which would indicate that there is to be no car service through that section. This discontinuance of service is proving a hardship to the school children who go from Dorchester, Mattapan, Neponset, etc., to the in-town schools. The children must now go by way of Dudley street or Andrew square, which mean considerable additional time going to and from school.

The School Committee brings the matter to the attention of your honorable body with the hope that you may take steps to authorize bus transportation through that section in the interests of the school children and of the people of the section who must be equally handicapped by the taking away of the car service which has been available for so many years.

Very truly yours,
ELLEN M. CHONIN, Secretary.

There are six intersections there of Washington street, Talbot avenue, Centre street and Norfolk street, with at least two surface car lines and three bus lines, and three streets coming over the hill at that point. HEARING ON PARKING.

Coun. DONOVAN submitted the following: Ordered, That the Traffic Commission be requested to grant further hearings on parking conditions in suburban districts.

Coun. DONOVAN—Mr. President, my reason for introducing the order at this time is that I want to strenuously protest against the arrest of people who park cars in the suburban districts. I personally enjoy the friendship of the police, particularly of the officers in my district, and I have the highest respect for their honesty and devotion to duty as public officials. But I want to most earnestly and strenuously protest against the arrest by the police of people who park cars in the suburban districts. We grant certain licenses and privileges in Boston to taxicab companies and taxicab owners, and certainly no good purpose is served by preventing the owners of cars in the suburban districts from even parking cars in front of their own homes, particularly where there is no question of interference with traffic arising. Certainly, unless a man is interfering with traffic conditions, he has a perfect right to park his car in front of his own house. Certainly no question can arise in regard to such parking of cars in the suburban district where there is no interference with traffic. As I understand it, the restrictions against the parking of cars in the congested parts of the City of Boston is in order to relieve the congestion that would otherwise result. That is all right in the heart of the business section. But when you get out into the suburban districts and interfere with the parking of cars outside of the homes of our citizens by their owners, hauling into court taxpayers of our city and giving them a criminal record, simply because they have left their cars parked outside of their homes, it is going altogether too far. Whenever we have an innovation of this kind, in police procedure in this city, the brunt of it always seems to fall on East Boston. "Everything falls on Patsy." I don't know how it may be in other parts of the city, but, due to a piece written by a scribe on one of our East Boston papers, a rather long article dealing with the parking of cars in certain parts of East Boston—which was evidently called to the attention of the Traffic Commissioner by one of our garage owners, the police have been indulging in activities in the way of bringing into court car owners in our section, people who have parked cars in places where there was no interference whatever with traffic conditions. It seems to me an outrageous thing. I am not offering the order at all as an affront to the Traffic Commissioner of the city, who simply had it called to his attention in this way and who acted accordingly; but I do feel that it is outrageous to have such car owners brought into the courts of the Commonwealth and given a record for any such cause, people who are honest, law-abiding citizens of the community.

Coun. WILSON—Mr. President, I agree with the gentleman from East Boston (Councilor Donovan) in this matter. I feel that the Traffic Commissioner has been doing an excellent job in the downtown district of Boston, but I agree with the councilor that a resident of a suburban district ought to have the privilege of parking his own machine in front of his own home. There has been similar procedure to that of which the councilor tells about in East Boston taken in regard to parked vehicles in the Dorchester district, particularly in the neighborhood of Codman Hill. There have been such cases where men have parked cars in front of their own homes, and also cases where they have parked them in the neighborhood of various moving picture houses, where they were not interfering with traffic in any way whatever. It seems to me that the only logical objection to such parking is where it is causing congestion and interfering with the free flow of traffic; but in the residential districts, for the most part, particularly in places where there is no danger of traffic congestion, the police of this city could better utilize their time in other ways than by bringing the owners of cars, who park them in front of their own homes, into court. Particularly when we consider, Mr. President, the breaks that have been going on in some of the districts, it certainly seems that the police officers in such districts might better utilize their time on the more secluded and out-of-the-way portions of their beats than by staying among the bright lights, in such places as Codman square, which may afford a more pleasant environment than the other places where their efforts may be more needed. Certainly, it would seem that their time might be spent to better advantage than in bringing into court people who park cars in such districts in front of their own homes.

Coun. CURTIS—Mr. President, I would also like at this time to protest against the treatment of these minor violations as criminal offenses, dragging the owners of such cars into our courts and giving them thereby criminal records. There has been legislation suggested on the Hill for several years, carefully thought out by men of judicial capacity, to treat such technical violations of the law in a different way from that in which really criminal matters are treated; and I would like to see the Council go on record some day as favoring such proper and reasonable legislation.

The order was passed under suspension of the rule.

CHANGING STREET NAMES.

Alteration in the names of streets seems to be on the increase in the United States. In most cases the reasons for it are inadequate, while changes that would actually make for clearness remain unmade. The reason for change would usually seem to be general patriotism, national or local, as where the name of some prominent person is given to a street. During the war German names were largely discarded, as where Berlin avenue in St. Louis became Pershing avenue. In the height of President Wilson's popularity abroad, Wilson avenues sprang up all over the allied countries. Later, disappointment or dissatisfaction caused many of these to be changed

SAFE DRIVING.

Most cities and towns have a long list of "dont's" but do little to educate the drivers of cars. If one half the time that is used trying to make people do something or not to do something was spent in educating the drivers much better results would be obtained. We need drivers' schools and the city or town that first starts such a school will be doing a real service.

SETTLEMENT OF BOSTON, 1630.

Effected by Puritan colonists under Governor John Winthrop in the latter part of August, 1630. The name of the original settlement was changed to Boston from Trimountaine by order of the Court of Assistants on September 7, (O. S.), 1630. This date was moved forward by the new style calendar in 1752 to September 17, the recognized date of the founding of Boston. The name, Trimountaine, had been given because of the three peaks of the most prominent hill, afterward called Beacon Hill, much higher then than now. By the Indians the place was called Shawmut. The name, Boston, was derived from the English town of Boston in Lincolnshire, the home of some of the leading colonists and promoters of the enterprise.

DIMENSIONS, ETC., OF BOSTON.

Boston's greatest length, 13.8 miles, i. e., from northern end of East Boston to southern end of Hyde Park; greatest width, 7.75 miles, i. e., from Marine Park shore to western end of Brighton; median transverse width, 5.75 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Harvard Bridge to Neponset river at Blue Hill avenue; width of business center, 1.2 miles, i. e., from Charles river at Cambridge Bridge to Fort Point channel at Summer street. Geographical center of city in Roxbury, corner Walnut and Westminster avenues.

NEW ORLEANS BUILDING THREE NEW INCINERATORS.

Three new incinerators to cost a total of $700,000 are under construction at New Orleans and will add appreciably to that city's sanitation system. This will make a total of five plants where garbage can be readily disposed of. The plants, according to Commissioner of Public Property John Klorer, will be equipped in the most scientific manner with special provision for the prevention of any smoke nuisance.

The incinerators are conveniently distributed about the city, one of the new ones being almost ready for use. The one now nearing completion can handle 170 tons of garbage every 16 hours with no odor escaping, and its stacks are 125 feet high.

COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT TAXES BY MUNICIPALITIES.

The collection of delinquent taxes is often neglected by city officials, resulting in a considerable financial loss to the municipality.

The sale of property for taxes usually takes place from one to three years after the taxes have become due and after the publication of a tax sale notice for from three to six weeks. The property is sold at auction to the highest bidder provided that the bid covers the amount of taxes, all unpaid assessments, interest, fees, penalties, and other charges against the property. If the bid is not sufficient to cover these items, the city bids in the property. Property sold for taxes may be redeemed after a period varying from one to three years upon payment of sum sold for, together with interest computed at the rate of 12 per cent per annum. If the property is not redeemed within the prescribed time the purchaser is given either a deed, an estate in fee simple, or an absolute estate in fee, subject only to the lien of unpaid state and county taxes.

In two cities, White Plains and Yonkers, the tax lien is sold. This has worked out very satisfactorily. In Yonkers the problem of the collection of delinquent taxes has been cleared up:

1. By keeping the assessed valuation down to the real present market value, thereby preventing the accumulation of a large amount of uncollectible taxes.
2. By foreclosure, in one action, of large numbers of lots in one ownership.
3. By assignment of tax liens, at full value, to any one applying for same.
4. By resale, at reduced amounts, of tax liens held by the city.
5. By compromise with owners, reducing the amounts due to a sum that will make it worth while for such owners to pay up the city thereby saving foreclosure costs, and immediately placing such property on a taxpaying basis, and at the same time allowing the owners to get out with some equity. Foreclosure should never be resorted to where an owner shows any disposition to compromise.

BOSTON AREA TO WARD LINES.

Total, 30,598 acres (i. e., 47.81 square miles), 2,944 acres being filled land, 1,143 acres water area and 1,436 acres flats. Land area only, 28,019 acres (i. e., 43.78 square miles). Included in the latter are 160 acres of filled flats recently added to the land area of South Boston and 175 acres to that of East Boston.

Original Boston contained about 780 acres of land. Of the twelve leading American cities, eight are larger in land area than Boston, viz., Los Angeles (441 square miles), New York (318), Chicago (199.4), Philadelphia (129), Baltimore (91.9), Detroit (80), Cleveland (56.6) and St. Louis (61.25). The only city in Massachusetts with larger land area is Taunton (50 square miles).

If Boston should expand by annexations as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and others have expanded, its total area, in case of including the thirty-nine cities and towns within the 15-mile radius, would be second to the largest, viz., Los Angeles, the present land area of "Greater Boston" being 409.5 square miles.

CHICAGO POLICE ALLOW SPEED ON SAFETY BASIS.

Traffic police in Chicago have been ordered to make a "sane application" of the law on speeding, determining the relation of an automobile's speed to the hazards it may create, according to "Chicago Commerce," published by the Association of Commerce of that city.

Such an interpretation of the law is new to Chicago, but is based on the experience of Michigan police and of those in other states where speed limits have been legally removed in favor of the enforcement of cautious driving.

"The Illinois statute," states Police Commissioner William F. Russell, "makes it illegal to drive at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and the use of the way, or so as to endanger the life or limb or injure the property of any person."

"The following types of fast driving are particularly dangerous and must be stopped:

"Cutting in and out of traffic at excessive speed.

"Excessive speed while approaching or passing pedestrians in the street.

"Excessive speed while approaching an intersection where the view of the other street is obstructed.

"Driving at high speed on a boulevard or through street in such a manner as to prevent other drivers from entering or crossing the same after they have made the legal stop.

"Driving at excessive speed while turning a corner where pedestrians are crossing.

"Driving at excessive speed at any time where an accident results, causing injury to any person or property."

AUTOMOBILE FATALITIES.

Automobile fatalities for the months of January and February of this year, as compared with last year, decreased considerably in the cities and increased considerably in the towns and country, as indicated by the Nation-wide reports received by the National Safety Council.

These reports show that the cities had six per cent fewer automobile deaths this year than last year; 61 of the 90 cities that reported showed declines, or no changes at all, as compared with a year ago. But the state-wide reports received during the same period showed an increase of 11 per cent in fatal automobile accidents. In the total, there were an estimated 4,240 motor vehicle deaths during January and February of this year, as compared with 4,220 such fatalities during the same two months of last year.

SITUATION OF BOSTON.

Boston is situated in latitude, north, 42 degrees, 21 minutes, 29.596 seconds, longitude, west, 71 degrees, 3 minutes, 51.040 seconds (exact situation of apex of State House dome, according to United States Coast and Geodetic Survey). Boston's latitude is similar to that of Detroit and the southern boundary of Oregon, also Rome (Italy), Sofia (Bulgaria) and Mukden (Manchuria); longitude nearly that of Quebec (Canada), Bogota (Colombia) and Santiago (Chile).

No. 42

BOSTON BRILLIANTLY CELEBRATES THE CONCLUDING IMPORTANT EVENT OF HER TERCENTENARY YEAR — COLUMBUS DAY — DEDICATES ATHLETIC STADIUM IN SOUTH BOSTON, BEFORE DISTINGUISHED GATHERING; TENDERS BANQUET TO ITALIAN AMBASSADOR, THEN HOLDS PARADE AND LEVEE ON BOSTON COMMON — MAYOR CURLEY PRESIDES AT EXERCISES OF MOST MEMORABLE DAY.

Almost the concluding event of Boston's celebration of her Tercentenary took place Sunday and Monday of this week in connection with the celebration of Columbus Day.

Boston had made elaborate preparations for the celebration of the event, having invited Italy and many other nations to share in the exercises, especially planning to entertain his Excellency, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Kingdom of Italy, as the city's chief guest.

As the special feature of his entertainment during his stay in Boston provision was made for the dedication of the athletic stadium at the Columbus Park Playground in South Boston. In addition to that a dinner was tendered the ambassador at the Hotel Statler, exercises were held at the Tribune on Boston Common, and the representative of the Italian Government was entertained with a review of the Boston Police parade and a parade, on Monday afternoon, of the hosts of former citizens of that great nation which gave Columbus birth, at the Court of Honor, on Tremont street.

At the stadium in South Boston there gathered a host of the most distinguished citizens of Boston to greet the invited guests. There were representatives present from almost all the countries of the world. Mayor Curley presided.

In assuming the role of presiding officer, Mayor Curley spoke in part as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Distinguished and Honored Guests, Right Reverend Monsignor, and Friends.

It is an exceeding pleasure upon this, the 438th anniversary of the discovery of America, to dedicate this great outdoor stadium, which we some time term a reservoir for the promotion of public health and public recreation, in honor of that great son of a Genoese wool comber, through whose courage, and daring, and sublime faith in Almighty God, the land we now know as America became numbered among the nations of the world.

Governments of World Represented.

It is a fitting climax — if you will — of the observance of the Tercentenary of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony that a celebration of this character should be graced not only by the direct representative, in America, of the government of which Christopher Columbus was a subject, but a representative of that great faith in which Columbus was a believer. It is pleasing on this occasion to have numbered among our guests many representatives of Central America and the consuls representing the principal governments of the entire world.

It is a source of genuine sorrow that those great republics to the south of us — the republics of South America — are not represented in larger measure today. We have an appreciation of the difficulties through which they are passing at the present time; we have a realization of how close are our own smaller disturbances, but with an abiding faith — the same character of faith that made it possible for Columbus to carry on that voyage of discovery until successful — a faith in God which made possible a successful culmination of those efforts — we have an abiding faith that in God's own good time we shall solve our present day problems once more in this land of ours, so that we may have peace, happiness, patriotism and the equality of opportunity guaranteed by the Declaration of Independence, by the Bill of Rights and by the Constitution of our United States. This will once more become the heritage of every individual living under the beneficent folds of the flag of our common country — Old Glory.

It is most pleasing and encouraging to note the changed attitude of the public as a whole with reference to our present day economic problem, more particularly in America.

Within the last week we have been exceedingly fortunate in having with us the remainder of that once mighty host that, in response to the call of the late lamented war President of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, crossed the ocean, joined forces with the Allied Armies, making possible an ending of the war and the preservation of free government in the world. The most encouraging note sounded in the convention of the American Legion was the announcement by the brilliant and able, and eminently capable leader of the American Legion, Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, that it was the purpose of the American Legion to work hand in hand with the representatives of organized labor for the adoption of such program of economic character as would guarantee work for those seeking work in America, and who were unable to find it.

It was equally encouraging later in the week to receive a visit from the President of the United States and to be advised of his interest in this matter.

It was equally pleasing this morning at Mass at the Cathedral to listen to the courageous pronouncement of his Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, in favor of justice for those who labor in our country.

GLOWING TRIBUTE PAID TO ITALIAN RACE, TO RELIGION, ART, SCIENCE AND GOVERNMENT BY MAYOR CURLEY - PRESIDES AT RECEPTION AND DINNER TO AMBASSADOR DE MARTINO, AT HOTEL STATLER, WHERE FLOWER OF BOSTON'S CITIZENSHIP GATHERED TO HONOR CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS - REPRESENTATIVES OF ALL WALKS OF LIFE GREET DISTINGUISHED GUEST.

For the entertainment of his Excellency, the Ambassador of Italy, on Sunday evening, at the Hotel Statler, Mayor Curley assembled the flower of Boston's citizenship, representing almost every walk of life. Here were gathered, to pay court to Italy's representative, representatives of the religious, the military, the naval, the political and the civil groups of Boston's cosmopolitan citizenship.

Again Mayor Curley was the presiding officer, speaking as follows:

Your Excellency, Distinguished Consuls, Honored Guest, Ladies and Gentlemen.

It is an exceeding pleasure as Mayor of Boston, upon this the four hundred and thirty-eighth anniversary of the discovery of America by that great son of Italy, Christopher Columbus, to have as guests of the City of Boston not only the ambassador representing the Italian Government at Washington, but the distinguished representatives of substantially every one of the South, Central American and European countries.

The Tercentenary observance of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony would be incomplete and unworthy of the name if we failed to pay our meed of reverence and tribute of respect to the discoverer of America — Christopher Columbus.

To the sublime faith of Columbus may be traced the success of the voyage of discovery which paved the way for the pioneer movement that made possible at a later period the settlement of the Pilgrims and Puritans, and the gradual development of the structure which later became known to the world as the American Republic.

The contribution of Columbus to human progress and human happiness does not differ materially, except in volume, with the character of contribution the Italian race has made in every century to religion, art, literature, science and government.

WORLD'S DEBT TO ITALY.

To Italy the world owes an everlasting debt for the creation and perpetuation of worthwhile memorials and traditions, through which the light of civilization was permitted to spread from the Mediterranean to the Baltic.

Toward Italy annually turn the seekers of knowledge and the students of art, there to gratify their longings by gazing on those imperishable works that despite the passage of time have never been improved upon, the works of Dante and Tasso and Petrarch, of Raphael and Michelangelo and Canova, of Verdi and Rossini, Bellini and Donizetti, of Ristori and Duse and Salvini and Rossi, of Alfieri and Giacometti, of Cavour and Mazzini.

To the students of history or romance there is an appeal that can only be satisfied through a study of the literary contributions of such sons of Italy as, Carlo Botta and Pasquale Villari, romancists like Manzoni and D'Annunzio, and masters of language like Bartelli and De Amicis.

Why prolong the presentation? The glory of the past will endure; it needs commendation or praise from no individual; and the art of Italy is both inanimate and animate.

To Italy in every crisis the hearts, and the eyes, and the minds of the world have turned regardless of race, creed or color, seeking that spiritual direction and comfort which the representative of St. Peter, from the sacred precincts of Rome, has never failed to give to a waiting world.

TRIBUTE TO MUSSOLINI.

When the materialistic forces in the world, blind with power and the desire for power and wealth, threatened by their excesses the destruction of the social system, the rules and order that society through nineteen centuries has found necessary for the preservation of home and moral standards a waiting world has never failed to receive spiritual guidance from the Holy See.

This sublime faith is not confined solely to the representatives of the religious orders; rather does it appear to be a part of the very atmosphere itself of Italy, and when at the close of the recent World War the forces of destruction sought to substitute communism and anarchy for the established order that twenty centuries of experience had proven was both wise and right, when these same forces had overthrown the government of Russia and were sweeping like a conflagration over Europe, when Christian civilization was threatened with extinction it was a son of Italy, rallying to his standard a devoted handful that grew to the multitude, that made possible the estoppel of the mad march of the forces of destruction and chaos, the present Premier—Benito Mussolini.

This act of supreme daring was in keeping with the sublime courage displayed by his comrades in arms—the Italian Army—during the World War. The Italian Army has never been accorded by historians either the credit or praise it deserves as a consequence of its contribution in the winning of the World War.

ITALIAN ARMY IN WORLD WAR.

Some day the history of the World War will be written, fifty or one hundred years from now, with truth rather than falsehood and rumor as a basis and the world will learn what the Italian soldiery know—that for a period of three years the army of Italy, with but scant assistance from the remainder of the Allied forces, held the Austrian Army in check and had Italy yielded, and as a consequence of her yielding the forces on the eastern front been permitted to consolidate with the armies on the western front, the forces that stood for the preservation of free government in the world might have fared most badly.

Under the brilliant leadership of the Italian Premier—Benito Mussolini—the people of Italy are facing not only the present but the future with high hope and supreme courage, and give promise not only in Italy but throughout the entire world of making contributions in the future as valued, if not more valued, than in the glorious past.

It has been truly said by a poet of my own race, "A nation's greatness lies in men, not acres. One master mind is worth more than a million hands."

And fortunate indeed is the nation and the people when led by a master mind.

I ask all present to rise as a measure of respect to the preserver of Christian civilization in the world—the master mind and leader of Italy—Benito Mussolini.

His address concluded, Mayor Curley, as presiding officer, introduced Major-General Fox Conner, U. S. A., with the following words:

It is a common saying in America that we rarely find an orator in the ranks of the American Army and it is even more rare to find one in the American Navy with its school at Annapolis. The Military Academy at West Point develops soldiers, not public speakers, and we are fortunate in having with us here tonight, representing the government of the United States in the military branch, Major-General Fox Conner, Commandant of the First Corps Area, who has not only won every decoration but who possesses excellent qualities as a diplomat — Major-General Fox Conner, U. S. A.

Major-General Conner said:

Ladies and gentlemen, his Honor is entirely wrong. I may be more or less diplomatic on occasions but I am not a speaker, in fact, I am coming here under more or less false pretences. When his Honor said he was going to call upon me to say a few words I assured him I was

COLUMBUS DAY EXERCISES.

So there is indication that with all these forces working together, each agreeable to sharing his own particular portion of the burden, organized labor alone in America will no longer be required to carry alone the economic burdens of the land single handed.

There is also an indication that into the life of America there will shortly come a better appreciation and a more profound realization of the true meaning of the second Divine commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." When that meaning becomes the accepted portion of American life we can all look into the future with a more courageous perspective and we can all share everything that is worthwhile, the product of the hand and the brain of all the people of the United States of America.

At the conclusion of his address, Right Reverend Monsignor Richard J. Haberlin was presented for the invocation, which was as follows:

Almighty and Eternal God, Creator and Redeemer of mankind, we adore Thy presence and infinite Majesty and we give Thee thanks for the priceless gifts and blessings which Thou art daily and abundantly bestowing upon us in Thy gracious goodness. O God of might and justice, through whom all authority is rightly administered and judgment decreed, assist with Thy holy spirit of counsel our chief executive. O Heavenly sovereign, in Whom are lodged all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, bless we beseech Thee our beloved America and preserve her in order and prosperity. O Lord, direct that the light of Thy infinite wisdom may enter into the deliberations of our Congress so that the laws they enact may tend to the preservation of peace, the promotion of national happiness, and perpetuate to us the blessing of equal liberty. Grant, O Lord, the power of Thy protection to his Excellency the Governor of this Commonwealth, to His Honor the Mayor of this city, and to those chosen to guide our welfare that they may be enabled to discharge the duties of their respective offices with ability and with honor. O most loving Father, to Thy unbounded goodness we recommend the citizens of these United States. Banish from our hearts all spirit of envy, discord and hatred and sanctify us in the observance of virtue that we may be preserved in union at home and in peace with all the world, through the mercies of Christ, Our Lord. Amen.

Chairman William P. Long, next introduced, in formally presenting the stadium, addressed the gathering as follows:

This stadium which you are about to dedicate, with the exception of the field house which will be completed within one month, practically finishes construction work, and brings to completion all work necessary except the landscape planting, to make this park one of the finest waterfront parks in this country.

To construct this park was a gigantic task; its location being for the most part on mud flats which, when the tide was low, threw off offensive odors which were not conducive to the health of the community. It took a master mind, such as you have, Mr. Mayor, to conceive, visualize and direct an undertaking of this magnitude.

The first steps taken towards bringing about this improvement were made during your first administration as Mayor of this city, when various sewer and drain overflows were extended, and a contract to hydraulically fill some seventy-five acres of mud flats was let. Under this contract 1,234,043 cubic yards of material were pumped from the bottom of Dorchester Bay, at a cost of $91,302.02. No further work on this project was done during your successor's term in office and it remained as it was at the close of your first administration until you again returned to office in 1922, when a contract was made to furnish and grade 190,000 cubic yards of filling and 81,000 cubic yards of loam at a cost of $551,547 as well as build a bath house and a reinforced concrete parking space at a cost of $262,226.75.

Again at the end of your second term as Mayor work ceased on this project until your return to the office of Mayor for the third time when again you ordered work resumed, and on March 22, 1930, you approved a contract amounting to $271,000 to erect these bleachers and do the necessary grading to complete this beautiful stadium.

This stadium is built so that it can be enlarged to hold 75,000 if necessary. It can also be made into an open-air auditorium if occasion requires. Mr. Mayor, Boston owes you a debt of gratitude it can never repay for what you have done for its improvement and I hope Almighty God will spare you to do for the State of Massachusetts what you have done for the City of Boston in making it the foremost city in the country.

In accepting the stadium, Mayor Curley said in part as follows:

Mr. Chairman of the Park Commission, Distinguished and Honored Guests, and Friends:

I do not feel that I need any words of praise for this contribution to the health and recreation of the citizens of Boston. It was an axiom of the Greeks that "a sound body denoted a sound mind," but I believe it was Disraeli or Lord Beaconsfield that said "the most important duty of government is the promotion of public health." Every park of this character, after all, bears the same relation to the community as the lung does to the human body, an opportunity for the promotion of health which if rightly accepted and properly respected and cared for should go on through the years, and on through the centuries, proving of benefit to untold thousands.

As the chairman of the Park Commission has pointed out, it has not been an altogether easy task to complete this great public outdoor recreation park and strandway. It was started in 1915 and during the periods I was out of office nothing was done to complete it. I suppose this was due to the old pride of origin we have, which is not only the curse of government but is the curse of society as well. However, fortunately for the good people of Boston, I was enabled to come back, and the entire development will be completed within the next twelve months.

On the completion of the L Street Bath House it will be possible to double the bathing facilities that have heretofore been enjoyed there. I have a profound appreciation of how attractive a place Palm Beach is in the winter time and I have a realization of how many persons would love to go there but are prevented from doing so because of financial reasons. We have decided with the new bath house to bring Palm Beach to you; to bring you the sunshine it would be necessary to travel 1,200 to 1,800 miles in the winter to enjoy. We are arranging, in connection with the new bath house, to have a quartz glass roof upon the structure and all hot salt water showers. Here the individual can receive all the benefits of violet rays without the expense. The probability is that there will be a general use of this structure, the first of its kind in the entire world in the possession of any municipality. The generally accepted belief is that it will be not only conducive to the promotion of public health but it will be actually a preservative of the health of the people of the community who patronize it.

So after all, this splendid monument dedicated to the discoverer of America I trust will go on through the years and the centuries shedding the same beneficent rays upon the people of this Commonwealth that the voyage and the discovery of Columbus shed not only upon the people of the United States but the people of the entire world.

I do not know who got up this program but I do know this; that they made specific arrangements that I should have no rest upon this occasion.

I have now been ordered to raise the Flag and when I raise the Flag I assume that the leader of the chorus here will be prepared to make his contribution—the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Following this the Mayor then presented to the audience some of the distinguished guests. These were the Honorable Jacob Sieberg, Consul for Latvia; Honorable Filomeno Mata, Consul for Mexico; the Honorable Carl W. Johansson, Royal Vice Consul for Sweden; the Honorable Johannes H. Reurs, Consul for Holland; the Honorable D'Almeida, Consul of Panama; the Honorable Karl von Tippelskirch, Consul for Germany; the Honorable Enrique Naranjo, Consul for Colombia.

These formalities ended, the Mayor then presented the representative of the Pan-American Congress. In doing so, Mayor Curley said:

America has occupied a unique and unselfish—though sometimes misunderstood position—with reference to the Republics of South and Central America, notwithstanding the unselfish character of America, notwithstanding the attitude of America after the defeat of Spain, when the Island of Cuba—commonly termed the pearl of the Antilles—most attractive from every material standpoint and within the grasp of America, the United States turned that nation over to the people of Cuba so that under the guidance of God they might be permitted to work out their own destiny.

During the administration of President Monroe, America enunciated and adopted what was known as the "Monroe Doctrine." The purpose of the Monroe Doctrine was for America to act as "big brother"—if you will—to the smaller republics of Central and South America and upon at least two occasions, if not more, when powerful nations of Europe sought entry into South America the United States supported the position as enunciated by President Monroe and by the position taken by America or by the United States of America, made possible the sovereignty of our South American neighboring republics. I sincerely trust, as an American, that some day the unselfish character of America's position may be just a little better accepted and that the people of North and of South America, and of Central America, may learn to realize that our sole aim is harmony, unity and a better common understanding in the movement for the promotion of a brotherhood among the people of North, South and Central America.

As a consequence of a movement in recent years, there was erected in 1910 in Washington a building known as the Pan-American Union Building, one of the finest examples of the work of an architect and a builder to be found on the entire continent. Within that building it is customary for the representatives of South and of Central American countries to sit in conference with the representatives of our own country and out of this has grown what is now known and recognized the world over as the Pan-American Union.

Representing the Pan-American Union here today and speaking for it, as well as for his own country, the Republic of Costa Rica, I have the very great pleasure of presenting Honorable Senor Don Manuel Castro Quesada, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Costa Rica.

Minister Quesada said: I am awfully sorry my lack of English does not permit me to express my feelings in the language I would like to. You have been so kind as to permit me to express myself and with your permission I will say a few words in my language—Spanish. In closing, he said in English, Boston first—Boston always—and Boston forever.

Mayor Curley then replied: I am sure we are all exceedingly grateful to the representative of Costa Rica for his most complimentary references to our own City of Boston. I said, speaking of better understanding between the people of America and the republics of South and Central America, that perhaps there are some things that have been done by Americans that were not altogether conducive to a better common understanding, or to the promotion of that faith that would make acceptance of every act as an act of good will.

At the time of the administration of the late President Roosevelt certain property was seized without right, but as a consequence of that seizure the Atlantic was wedded to the Pacific. Perhaps the recent act of the late President Wilson providing compensation for the land taken by President Roosevelt has done something to at least compel the acceptance of good faith upon the part of the people of America.

The names of his Excellency the Honorable Senor Doctor Don Ricardo J. Alfaro, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Panama, and Senor Angel Morales of the Dominican Republic were mentioned by the Mayor. They were unable to be present but their names were greeted with cheers after which the representative of the Italian Government in Boston was presented, Commendatore Giovanni Mario Pio Margotti, Royal Italian Consul-General of Italy in Boston. When he bowed but declined to speak, Mayor Curley said:

With that natural modesty that has ever characterized him he is desirous that there be but one prima donna on this occasion and that be his Excellency, the Italian Ambassador.

Before presenting him, however, I desire at this time to present the head of one of the important fraternal organizations, organized for the protection of the mothers and the children in the homes when the head of the household departs this life, an organization that extends over the entire Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

It affords me very great pleasure to present the present head of that organization, Grand Venerable Vincent Brogna, of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts Order of Sons of Italy in America, and former representative to the General Court in Massachusetts.

Mr Brogna spoke as follows:

Your Excellency, Mr. Mayor, Right Reverend Monsignor, Invited Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

I have been introduced as the head of the order of persons of Italian origin the purpose of which is to look out after the widows and orphans of departed brothers. Mr. Mayor, that is the usual conception that is held of the practises and purposes of the Sons of Italy in America. As a matter of fact it is only one of the features of that organization, the principal feature of the organization is to create a better understanding between the persons of Italian origin in America and his neighbors representing the other races in the community. The order through patriotic performances seeks to interpret to America the heritage and the soul of Italy while at the same time it seeks to impart to the newcomer the institutions and the ideals for which America stands and the principles of liberty, charity and equality upon which the foundation of America rests.

I want to take this opportunity, because we have another wonderful celebration tomorrow, of inviting everyone here present to participate in the celebration tomorrow on Boston Common, which is being held under the auspices of the Order of the Sons of Italy in collaboration and cooperation with his Honor, the Mayor of Boston.

We have an elaborate program beginning early in the morning and ending with a musical program and beautiful pageant in the evening. I therefore extend to you a welcome to participate on that occasion.

Mayor Curley next introduced Hon. John E. Swift with the following words:

With a view to perpetuating the achievements of Christopher Columbus a great order was organized in America and with the passage of time has grown until just after the close of the World War it boasted a membership of nearly one million in America. No organization rendered more notable service not only to the soldiery on the other side but to the mothers at home than the order known as the Knights of Columbus.

This great fraternal organization recently convened in the City of Boston. Its contribution to the promotion of good citizenship is unexcelled by any other organization in America. Its patriotic record ranks as high as, or higher, than that of any fraternal society. Its record of humane service in the home has never been equalled. And so, it affords me very great pleasure at this time to present the Supreme Director of the Knights of Columbus, Hon. John E. Swift.

Supreme Director John E. Swift spoke as follows:

It is a distinguished privilege which has been accorded to me to bring the greetings and congratulations of the Supreme Officers of the Knights of Columbus on the occasion of this magnificent celebration of Columbus Day, a day on which is commemorated the oldest and most important event in the history of the world since the birth of Christ—the discovery of the Western Hemisphere. A day which has been set aside by the states of the American Union and recognized by the peoples of the North and South Americas as a fitting time to pay tribute of love and esteem to the memory of the great Christian mariner, Christopher Columbus, who gave to the world a new continent and to men and nations new hope and ambitions for great achievement.

Fortune has smiled upon this vast assemblage here today, for it gives us all an opportunity to join in the sincere and hearty welcome which his Honor Mayor Curley, in behalf of the people of Boston, is extending to the distinguished guest, his Excellency, the learned ambassador and diplomat representing the great Kingdom of Italy at Washington.

It is likewise a signal honor to attend these exercises today when this marvelous Municipal Stadium, initiated and completed through the leadership and vision of the great civic leader of Boston, is dedicated in the presence of this distinguished company and this great concourse of citizens.

For sixteen years the hero of this day, a man of learning, piety and unselfish devotion to a cause, poured the tale of his incredible ambition into the ears of a cold and indifferent Court, whose advisers were quick to ridicule his theories and powerful enough to withhold support and encouragement. Defying all the fates that baffled him and buoyed up by the spiritual consolation of the holy monks who interceded for him, Columbus set forth in August, in 1492, on the most momentous voyage recorded in history.

For weeks, amid the threats and insults of a mutinous crew, this Crusader, possessing the faith of a Christian leader, hoping to extend the realm of Christ to a western world, resourceful and persistent, with courage sublime, this cross-bearer found a path across the unknown seas and won for himself the undisputed title of the greatest mariner the world has ever known.

Columbus Day belongs not only to America but to the world and all mankind is heir to his accomplishments. It is fitting that we pause in our day of celebration to analyze the lofty ideals that filled the heart of our patron leader, confident that he was divinely commissioned to discover, not only a shorter route to India, but new lands to which he could bring the Cross of Christ and under which he might unite all peoples and thereby give new meaning to the universality of the Church of Christ.

His mission was to lead a new crusade and rescue the Holy Sepulchre from the hands of the infidel.

Possessed of genius, labor, patience, mild but persisting, courageous, but recognizing his dependence on Divine Providence, untiring, strong, confident but tolerant, filled with piety, Columbus transmitted to all ages an inheritance that symbolizes practical faith and citizenship from a man whose worth increases as the years go on.

It was in the lessons of Calvary that Columbus found hope for his perilous journey and his gratitude to heaven was made manifest when he landed on the shores of the New World chanting Te Deum to the Almighty God as he raised the Cross of Christ on the shores of San Salvador. He was a man of faith, a man who believed in himself and who knew that courage and character make men, and that men make events, and that events are the milestones on the roads of progress.

This day brings to each of us two great lessons,—the hope to mankind as Columbus interpreted the meaning of the Cross of Calvary and the opportunity that has come to succeeding generations in the discovery of this new continent as a place for the propagation of the Christian faith and for the planting of civil and religious liberty.

The acquisition of wealth and power had furnished the element of destruction and decay among the nations and among men. A new antidote to the perils confronting governments was eagerly sought.

With the discovery of America came the spirit of equality of all men before God and the law. The hope and confidence that inspired Columbus also provided the opportunity to establish in the new world the basis of all freedom, the equality of men before the law. Columbus furnished the factor, America the place, and mankind has been the beneficiary.

The people of the old world flocked to the shores of the new land, freed from the shackles which prevented them from acquiring the ordinary results of their labors, able now to worship their God according to their conscience, enjoying the blessings of life, liberty and happiness, they established the basis for a democracy and free government. They formed a sovereign state and provided an opportunity and example for the world to witness and to admire, where the people make the laws that govern human conduct, where religion flourishes and where Christian fraternity is fostered and encouraged.

America has furnished to the peoples of the Old World a haven and retreat for the distressed and down-trodden.

On this day the militant spirit of Columbus beckons us to renew our faith in the Creator of all things and humbly to acknowledge that wisdom which gave strength and courage to this commanding genius, this intrepid explorer who was divinely commissioned to spread the gospel of faith and hope among men. Through his efforts people have been freed, serfs made sovereigns, and the humble have become rulers; commonwealths have been established and power and prosperity, liberty and enlightenment are the wonder and admiration of the world.

The great international fraternity of Knights of Columbus established in every state of the American Union, dedicating its membership to God and to Country in common with the people the world over, join in paying this tribute to Christopher Columbus, our patron, our hero and our apostle. His Christian faith, courage and perseverance have given the world America.

America, our country, home of the chosen people of the modern world, even as in the vast procession of the ages the Israelites first heard the authenticated voice of revelation and gave to mankind the divine Saviour of the world; as the Hellenic genius enlightened the life of man with letters and philosophy and enriched the human spirit with the undying splendors of the arts; as the glory that was Rome bequeathed to civilization the sublime structure of government and ordered majesty of law; even so in the divine councils is it thy manifest mission, O Columbia, to exhibit to the nations the beneficent power of liberty under the law and the universal blessing of a democracy made safe for the world.

Here upon thy shores thou didst establish the first abiding hearthstone of civic independence, the first refuge and asylum for the heavy-laden of every land, the first unflinching fount of life's unmeasured opportunities, the first free field wherein unfettered man could bravely lift his head and aspire to the stars; now by righteousness, by unselfish service of ideals, by the truth that has made thee free, thou art exalted unto moral dominion unchallenged throughout the world. To thee the liberated people of the earth lift eyes ablaze with confidence and holy hope. O fail them not, land of the great Columbus!

March on, great hearted sons of faith and trust;
Increase like sands upon the shore
In chivalry of all that's pure and just
And worthy of San Salvador.

Mayor Curley next introduced his Excellency, the Italian Ambassador, with the following words:

No greater honor could come to any man than to be chosen to represent his government at three of the most responsible seats of government in the world. The next speaker has had the distinguished honor of having served in a diplomatic capacity at Berlin, Constantinople, Cairo and Berne, and became Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Italy in 1913; serving as Ambassador at Berlin in 1920; the Court of St. James in London 1921-1923; and Italian Ambassador at Tokyo 1923-1924.

We all recall here in America the terrible earthquake that overtook Japan in 1923 but few have any realization of the character of leadership that was necessary to save the stricken people of Japan from extermination as a consequence of the earthquake, as a consequence of the conflagration and as a consequence of the famine that took place in certain districts. During the term of service of the guest speaker whom it is my honor to present, he was representing his government in Japan and took charge, and rendered such notable service as to earn the commendation of every representative of every government then located in Japan.

We have a profound appreciation in this hour of unrest in the world of the character of service not only rendered in ancient times but in modern times by Italy, not only to Europe but the world and to Christian civilization throughout the entire world. For to Italy that has not only been the creator but the preserver of those essentials which mark the upward progress of mankind we owe more than to all other nations in the world combined; creator and preserver of all that we love in art, whether it be in painting or in sculpture, or in the work of the silversmith, to all that we love in literature, much that we enjoy in science and invention, not only creator but preserver through the centuries. We owe to Italy the haven of refuge long enjoyed and recently made fully free through the leadership of the present great and courageous leader, the Premier of Italy, Benito Mussolini. When the whole world is weary, as it becomes from time to time, as it was during the period of the World War, as it is now with industrial depression, and famine stalks in various portions of the world, the whole world turns its eyes for succor to the head of that great religious faith in Rome, where peace, and confidence, and serenity, and spiritual leadership abide.

Shortly after the close of the World War the spirit of unrest that made itself manifest in Russia, the threatened mad march of communism, that not only made for violence but possibly chaos for all the standards that civilization has reared in nearly two thousand years of the life of the world, when there was a prospect that all of those standards that make for morality and purity in the home and happiness in the land were threatened with destruction, when the red tide that had swept Russia threatened to engulf Italy, it was a son of Italy that stepped into the breach, gathering around him a handful, that through his leadership and courage became a multitude, and made possible the estoppel of the mad march of communism, of atheism, of excesses, and made possible the preservation and perpetuation for mankind of Christian civilization, Benito Mussolini, Premier of Italy. No man can be truly greater without able, competent and capable followers. It is recorded that one of the old Roman generals in a peaceful mood was wont to speak of the battles he had won and the cities and towns he had sacked, and an old soldier that had lost an arm spoke up at one of the gatherings and asked, "Were there no soldiers with you?" Mussolini needed soldiers and helpers, when two thousand of the most flourishing communities in Italy were in the hands of the Communists and there was a threat to overthrow Italy. Leading the forces of Mussolini, and who made possible with him the destruction of communism and the continuance of government, was this man who affords me very great pleasure at this time to present to this gathering, his Excellency, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Kingdom of Italy.

His Excellency spoke as follows:

Mr. Mayor, Most Reverend Monsignor, Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

I am indeed very grateful to you for having asked me to be your guest on this very day when you are celebrating the memory and the work of Christopher Columbus. No greater honor could you have paid to me because no greater pride to an Italian in this country for than to the country which gave birth to Christopher Columbus. I thank you, Mr. Mayor, for your expressions of friendship and appreciation for my country and for the man who is leading Italy towards her future destination. May I tell you that the very day before my leaving Rome I had a long talk with Senor Mussolini and I happened to tell him that with your kind invitation, Mr. Mayor, I was going to Boston to attend the celebration of Christopher Columbus, when Senor Mussolini expressed his deep appreciation for your invitation and he added this remark: "Boston, the city of Emerson, the great thinker."

You see by this remark of the chief of the Italian government how closely he knows the history of the development of your culture and civilization. Ladies and gentlemen, great is the glory of Columbus, of that sturdy Italian sailor, with those frail Spanish ships, who dared to attempt to solve, and did solve the mystery of the Atlantic. But connected to that glory, great also is your glory, American people, because you follow his steps in the ideals he put before you. I may say that I can fancy the great army of militia of civilization going forward through this great continent which has been opened to progress by the efforts of thousands and thousands and millions of Americans. Your glory is great and I may say here that the first of this militia was Christopher Columbus. Then came the settlers; those who conquered Virginia; those Puritans who settled in Massachusetts, and who brought faith, the foundation of civic virtues, which is the basis of your modern political life. Amongst the people who composed this militia I see the great names of George Washington, of Jefferson, and those who fought the war for the independence of the country; also Lincoln, and all in the cause and for the same end. I may say, looking at the great events, the last soldier of this militia was the unknown citizen who lies in the cemetery at Arlington, under a monument erected by the people of the nation. But, ladies and gentlemen, that national monument to the unknown soldier does not mean any more resentment or spirit of revenge or hatred; it means the forgiveness; it means humane understanding between all the nations of the world; it means love. This is the love as indicated to us by the glorious, splendid, personality of Christopher Columbus. Thank you.

Mayor Curley approved a draft on the city treasury, on October 14, for $1,906,503, payable to the Boston Retirement System under the provisions of the Retirement Act. Of the total amount of this draft, $706,049 is appropriated by the city to match the deductions made on current pay rolls from the salaries and wages of those employees enrolled as members of the system. The balance, $1,200,454, represents the city's contribution because of "prior service." That is to say, it is the liability resting on the city on account of the service rendered by those members of the system who were in the employ of the city prior to the establishment of the act.

The system now has a pay roll of approximately 1,100 retired persons who are receiving annually approximately $750,000. It has a membership of about 12,000 employees who pay in contributions deducted from the weekly or monthly pay rolls an amount of approximately $700,000 per year.

CONTRACTS AMENDED.

R. J. Connelly has been allowed to amend the contract for moving sixteen portables at various schools by striking out the word and figures, "September 6, 1930," on page 14, Article 4, and substituting therefor the word and figures, "October 15, 1930," so that the said Article 4, on page 14, shall read, "The contractor shall carry on the work with due diligence and dispatch, and shall bring the work to entire completion as defined in the specifications, on or before October 15, 1930."

B. Krivitsky has been allowed to amend the contract for fire escape in the Florence Street School, Florence street, Roslindale, Boston, by striking out the word and figures, "September 10," on page 2 of the specifications, and substituting therefor the word and figures, "October 15, 1930," so that the paragraph of said completion of page 2 of the specifications shall read, "The work is to commence immediately on the award of contract and is to be completed on October 15, 1930."

DINNER TO AMBASSADOR.

not a speaker and I thought he believed it. He only pretended to, but, as I hope to have cordial relations with him for several years, I think it better to give a demonstration and after this I am sure he will not call on me again. As long, however, as he has got me on my feet I want to assure his Excellency that we in America appreciate Italy. I cannot add to the tribute that his Honor has paid Italy, but I can say that we are very thankful that Columbus discovered America.

We sometimes think it was worthwhile discovering and Columbus was very wise when he undertook the job. As a soldier I want to also testify to his Excellency that the Italians in the Army of the United States, whether in the regular service before or after the war, whether in the National Guard or the millions that were raised during the draft, the Italian has always proved to be not only a valorous soldier but a soldier in every sense, a true patriot of these United States.

I want also to thank his Honor for the reception which he has given me in Boston. We southerners are taught that Boston is the most important Cradle of American Liberty. It has always been my ambition to serve in Boston and to live in Boston and I can only repeat to his Honor my thankfulness at being received here as I have been. I thank him again and again.

The Mayor then said, "I am quite sure you will all agree with me that General Conner has qualified as an orator as well as a soldier."

In introducing Commander Guy Davis, of the Navy, the Mayor said:

"We have heard from the Army. We have heard that the representatives of the other branch of the service are not only diffident but invariably extremely modest and it affords me great pleasure to present at this time the handsomest representative of the United States Navy to be found in the country — Commander Guy Davis, United States Navy.

Commander Guy Davis said:

Your Honor, Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen.

I am sure you will all agree with me that if I am the handsomest—the Lord pity the rest of them. I have a great honor bestowed upon me tonight in being present here as representing Admiral Nulton of the navy, the Commandant of the First Naval District, who was unable to be present. I am here tonight to aid in commemorating this important day in our great country, which was discovered by that Italian navigator, Christopher Columbus. Few of us realize 438 years ago, when this great Navigator, at considerable trouble and years of waiting, finally put to sea in three small boats about the size of the Arbella.

I don't believe anybody who has not been in the navy and looked over the ocean for days upon days can realize what he went through in those seventy-two days he sailed from Spain. The last two weeks journey of that trip was a terrible one. His crew mutinied on him; they all thought him crazy but he had those qualities, qualities handed down to him, of bravery, steadfastness and stamina, which brought him through, the same qualities that Byrd had when he went to the South Pole, the same qualities that Nobile had when he went to the North Pole, the same qualities Marconi had when he invented and perfected the radio and forced it upon us. We did not believe it possible and did not believe it for years. It is also very fitting that we should celebrate this anniversary in Boston tonight, 438 years after he discovered America.

Another party of discoverers left England and landed in Massachusetts and from that party practically the roots of our great Massachusetts sprang. It started from the East Coast, from Boston, Maryland and Virginia and went west to the Pacific Ocean and not content with that went to the Far East, so at the present time this great nation made possible by the Discoverer of America, Columbus, extends clear into the China station.

It is very fitting tonight on this 428th anniversary to celebrate the discovery of America by this Italian navigator. We are very happy and very lucky tonight to have a representative of that government with us and in the name of the United States Navy I wish to congratulate his Excellency upon this anniversary and to say that we appreciate all this great navigator has done for this great country.

Mayor Curley next introduced Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, who spoke for the Governor.

Speaker Saltonstall said:

Your Honor, Your Excellency, Distinguished Guests, and Friends.

It is a great pleasure for me to be able to be here to represent his Excellency the Governor, Frank G. Allen, of this great Commonwealth. He wished me to tell you particularly how sorry he was that he could not be here on this occasion himself. It seems to me particularly fitting that we should have in this city on Columbus Day the representatives of the great land of Italy, which produced some of our founders.

Last February 22, on Washington's Birthday, I had the privilege of presiding at Symphony Hall when the various choruses from Sweden, France, Germany, Ireland, Poland, and I think one or two other nations, presented their choruses from their native lands. Then after it was all over they all united in singing the national anthem, the "Star-Spangled Banner." They impressed me and made me think how much we are indebted in this country to the various elements that are brought into us from the various nationalities that come to make up a great nation.

Here we have a parade led by you ladies and gentlemen of the Order of the Sons of Italy. You are giving to us on the day particularly fitting something we can partake of and something that will aid all of us whether we are of your nationality or any other nationality, something you are bringing us, something that is to your benefit, that is to our benefit, for what you bring us is true and helpful. So long as we can celebrate those benefits and remember at the same time that we have got to make them benefit our nation here and the nation to which you have now subscribed your citizenship and as long as we can remember that we will be the greatest nation on the earth because we take something from each other.

Your Excellency, his Honor the Mayor has had placed between the flag of Italy and the flag of the United States the inscription "Benvenuto a Boston." May

I say on behalf of his Excellency the Governor, "Benvenuto a Massachusetts."

Mayor Curley, in presenting the next speaker, said:

It affords me very great pleasure at this time to present as the next speaker a representative of the same faith, the same church and the same altar at which Columbus himself worshipped, one who has not only long enjoyed the confidence and respect but who is here tonight as the representative of his Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell—the Right Reverend Richard J. Haberlin, D. D., V. G.

Monsignor Haberlin said:

Your Honor, Your Excellency, Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

It is my pleasure this evening as the representative of his Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, who unfortunately could not be present here himself, to bear a message of his most cordial salutation. The whole nation today makes holiday, and commemorates the priceless service of that courageous discoverer who though he had suffered disappointment after disappointment scaled the seemingly insurmountable obstacles and reached an unknown continent.

The land which he discovered bears not his name, but millions of his fellow-men have proclaimed with joy and appreciation the qualities of his genius and have hailed him in undying gratitude as America's greatest discoverer. Mankind loves and honors its heroes, for its progress is marked by their achievements and the onward and upward march is potent quite as much if not more by the heroes of peace as by those of war. Down the centuries come the cloak of the Washingtons, the Grants, the Lincolns, and their fellow Americans. Beyond the vast expanse of the oceans today, proudly marching in the first ranks of the nations of the world with glorious history and noble traditions, America draws back the curtains which have hidden the years that have gone and beholds that dauntless, intrepid, triumphant Christopher Columbus.

In presenting his Excellency, the Italian Ambassador, Mayor Curley said:

It affords me very great pleasure at this time to present his Excellency, the Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Kingdom of Italy to the United States, Nobile Giacomo de Martino. But, before presenting him, if I may, it is my desire to take this occasion to present him with just a little souvenir to send to the government in Italy to symbolize and distinguish love and affection that the people of Boston have for the great contribution, not only that which was made by Columbus, but that which has been made to civilization and all that civilization represents in the century of the march of progress—the flag of the municipality of Boston—with the hope that it may repose within the confines of the secular city.

Ambassador de Martino said:

Ladies and Gentlemen.

I am afraid I have no expressions in my power to depict the real emotion that overcomes me, having attended this ceremony of tonight, the high distinction that has been bestowed upon me by your Mayor in presenting me the flag of the City of Boston.

Nothing could be dearer to my heart, I am sure, and I know that I interpret the feelings of my government, and of the people of Italy, in assuring you that by this kind and precious idea of yours, the gratitude of Italy is insured to you forever. I have no address to deliver to you tonight, as usually ambassadors do; it is only an informal talk I shall have, and excuse me, therefore, if in the solemnity of my language there is something lacking.

The City of Boston has given to this celebration of Columbus a magnificence and a splendor, to which I attach great significance, because, here in the City of Boston, which represents the center, I may say, of the culture of this great country, in this city you are, more than in any other place, in a position to understand what is the real significance of the achievements of Christopher Columbus, the discoverer of America.

The achievement of Columbus means one thing. First of all, the power in the history of humanity, the power of defining, to see in history so many events which are great in the achievement of Columbus. He had one idea, and he had nothing else to support him. This means the spiritual factor in the history of mankind, the real foundation of the spiritual factors. So in the history of humanity spiritual factors are the foundation of the evolution of humanity. It is natural, for in that correct expression of divinity in the human events, more or less, you see appearing at the surface this great and powerful element that in the ideals of our very day you see in the power of the spiritual factor. If you look really at the bottom of the events you see it, in all its splendor.

Contrary to what some people said, the system of political economy and social organization that we have in Italy, that we call Fascism, is inspired by political conceptions and ideas. It is utterly false to pretend that Italy is under a regime of constriction and violence. Don't believe that, please. Let me say one thing that is necessary, and it is easy to demonstrate it to you. We have so often declared that we Italians are so pleased and satisfied with our system of government that we have not the slightest idea of persuading other nations to adopt it. We understand the great events between Italy, in its present situation, and other nations along accomplishment of history and tradition. Therefore we say that Fascism means a high philosophical idea. It is easy to criticize a new idea because it is new, because it is against the ordinary conception of government and of social organizations, but that is a false point of view.

What is new in the history of government? Nothing is new; nothing is old, because history is nothing; nothing is eternal. Look on the past, and see how many great ideas were born. What is the test? What is the test of a system of political and social organization that we civilized people require? There are two. First, that it must be in conformity with the principles of eternal morality that we recognize in our God. Second, it must have the consent of the people. Both of these principles are fulfilled by the Fascism—morality and righteousness. Let me point out one instance which arose after the war. Two big forces sprang out of the Bolshevism that means destruction of social order, destruction of relationship of the family. And this settled the first point; now about the second. How many people say that Fascism has not the support of the nation. How false it is. You know Italy, a country, a nation that has hundreds of years behind her, of sad experience very often, of glorious experience in several difficulties. Human souls are refined as gold is refined in the fire. And do you think that a nation with such a gift bestowed upon her by God would tolerate any sort of government if it did not have the consent of the nation? This would be a contradiction unthinkable. All the nation, all the Italian people surround the government of Fascismo, the government of Mussolini, with heartfelt consent.

I witness myself in these very days the general plague and financial depression, which as you know are in all the countries of the world. Italy, of course, comes under this, too. I returned from my country a few days ago, and I saw how the government faces the difficulty of unemployment, which, if you please, is less in Italy than in other countries, for instance, in Great Britain and Germany. And what strikes the foreign observer is this: the spirit of cooperation and discipline that the personality of Mussolini has infused into every man, even the ignorant and most poor, and we are conscious that today we face difficulties as do all the peoples of the world. But no, we can soon overcome them by the spirit of discipline and sacrifice, and we are all grateful to that man who leads us in this time—Benito Mussolini.

I think that American people appreciate everything that is efficient, and everything that is sincere and genuine. Therefore we are sure of your friendship. I could not close without an expression of appreciation of the warmth of the cordiality and understanding between our two nations, which will always increase. Our two nations are divided by no contrast of interest. They must unite; they can unite in a common work for the benefit of progress and humanity.

When the Ambassador had concluded Mayor Curley introduced General Edwards with the following words:

In the World War many men acquired great dignity and distinction. Among our friends we have a representative of the Army of the United States who has given more than forty years of service to the United States—faithful, devoted, valorous service. During the period of the war there was no mother from all New England to whom he was not known as "Daddy" to her boy. Because of his qualities of heart and mind he is endeared to the hearts of the people of New England and as leader of the Yankee Division was more often known as "Daddy" Edwards than General Clarence R. Edwards.

General Edwards paid tribute to the occasion and to Mayor Curley, after which the Mayor introduced the retiring National Commander of the Legion, O. L. Bodenhamer. In presenting him the Mayor said:

The City of Boston has been privileged to entertain as one convention out of 540 that have assembled or will assemble within the city during the present year that wonderful body of men known as the American Legion. The retiring National Commander of the American Legion, under whose auspices the convention recently held in Boston was conducted, is with us here tonight. Through the streets of Boston upon the occasion of the parade marched 70,000 members of the American Legion. Lined along the roads over which the parade traversed were some two million women and men and every man of that 70,000 in that parade conducted himself as an American gentleman.

If excesses were committed, to which reference has been made by the publication of one of our American universities, in all probability those excesses could properly be traced to the sons of slacker representatives of that university, who never wore a uniform during the war but who seek to bring discredit on that great citizen soldiery through whose leadership and genius and heroism was made possible the preservation of liberty, not only for the men who served but for the detractors of the men who sacrificed.

I know of no organization more worthy to receive from the Chief Executive of the capital city a sacred treasure and symbol of authority cut from a newel post in old Faneuil Hall, before the reconstruction some ten years ago, one of the original newel posts made possible by the gift of Peter Faneuil and it is my pleasure to present this symbol of authority, a gavel of historical character, to the man who was leader of the American Legion when they honored Boston not only by their presence but by their conduct, National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer.

Commander Bodenhamer said:

Your Honor the Mayor, His Excellency, the Ambassador, Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

That statement coming from the Chief Executive of the host city of the American Legion in its 12th Annual National Convention will meet with a great deal of pleasure and will strike with a responsive chord in the hearts of the 880,000 men who comprise the Legion throughout the United States of America. We have sought not to dignify the attacks upon our organization when we know that we have in our host and in our friends the defenders who will protect the good name of the organization—but I want to say to his Honor the Mayor here in the presence of this distinguished group of ladies and gentlemen that never has the American Legion been more royally and courteously entertained in any city in America than in your own Boston.

Some three years ago it was my good fortune to join some 250 leaders of the American Legion in a visit to Italy and there we received from those veterans of the World War a most hearty welcome. When his Excellency the Ambassador made the statement a moment ago that under the present system of government there is harmony and cooperation and good will, I could well believe the truth of that statement based on the way that we were received and entertained while within the borders of that great country.

Recently we have had the good fortune in America to entertain a delegation from Italy who came here to attend the Fidac Congress and I want to say to his Excellency the Ambassador and to the people of Italy that their representatives to America last month made a most wonderful impression upon the American Legion and the American people as such. They conducted themselves as real ambassadors of peace and they stimulated the growth of friendship and comradeship between the members of our respective veteran organizations. I know that here in America all our loyal citizens who claim to have come from Italian extraction are happy to know that the American Legion recognizes no group in the organization other than those who are American citizens, regardless of the nation from which they or their parents may have come. And, at this time I believe that his Honor the Mayor and this distinguished group of citizenship here that are paying a real tribute not only to Christopher Columbus but to the Italian people as we seek to bind more closely the bonds of friendship between these two great nations, America and Italy. Surely, this is the best move and I am happy to join with you as American citizens in paying tribute to the loyalty, the courage and the valor of those who came to our country from their mother country, Italy.

John E. Swift, National Director of the Knights of Columbus, was next introduced and spoke.

The Mayor next presented the Honorable Senator Francesco Doria Paz, representative of President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, who addressed the gathering.

Following him, Mayor Curley, in presenting the next speaker, said:

No gathering would be complete without the presence of a representative of that once mighty host, numbering at one time nearly three millions, who in response to the summons of the Emancipator, through four years of devoted service and sacrifice made possible the preservation of the American Union, without loss of a state to that Union or a star to the Flag, the Grand Army of the Republic, rapidly passing to its reward.

We have with us on this occasion a representative of that Grand Army who who not only gave four years of devoted service in the field of battle but who has devoted the entire time since the close of that war to the promotion of a spirit of patriotism and love of country to the great cosmopolitan population that comprises the citizenship of the United States of America—and it affords me great pleasure to present the State Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, Alvin C. Howes.

Comrade Howes said:

Your Honor, Mayor Curley, it seems to me that in justice to all that I have been permitted to enjoy and the education in a certain way that has come to me from that enjoyment I owe to the Mayor of the City of Boston, James M. Curley, my personal appreciation and thanks. On this wonderful day, for it is a wonderful day because it marks the beginning of things in America, I am not going to attempt at this time and this hour to add anything that has not been said before this.

But all through this wonderful afternoon and evening while tributes of eloquence and oratory were being paid to the one who discovered America, the thought has been running through my mind that no mention has been made with courtesy or reverence to our King, the Redeemer of Mankind, and all tribute of worth has been given to the Discoverer of America, but no thought has been given to the Mother of our King.

Were it not for our King and womanhood, it would not have been possible for Christopher Columbus to have taken that perilous journey he did take. He arrived in America because of the gift and faith of a woman, that woman was Queen Isabella, and let us all stand and pay tribute to womanhood and what they have represented in the past—what they represent now and what they are going to represent in America, as America goes forward, as I believe under the protection of God it will go.

At this time Judge Frank Leveroni presented the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

That Mayor Curley send messages of greeting to the King and Premier of Italy. Accordingly the following cablegrams were sent to King Victor Emanuel, 3d, and Premier Mussolini, at Rome, Italy.

BOSTON, MASS., Oct. 12, 1930.

His Royal Majesty, KING VICTOR EMANUEL, 3d, Rome, Italy.

Greetings from Boston on the four hundred and thirty-eighth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus by seven hundred friends of Italy assembled in honor of the occasion.

JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston.

BOSTON, MASS., October 12, 1930.

His Excellency, PREMIER BENITO MUS-SOLINI, Rome, Italy.

Seven hundred friends of Italy gathered on the occasion of the four hundred and thirty-eighth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus send you greetings and sincere best wishes.

JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor of Boston.

URGES DEPORTATION OF RED RIOTERS.

On Thursday, October 16, Mayor Curley made the following statement:

The report with reference to a riot in the vicinity of the Bradford Hotel, where the American Federation of Labor is convening, discloses the fact that many of those responsible for the disturbances are not citizens of Boston, and this has been true in every similar disturbance that has taken place during the present year.

The American Federation of Labor and public officials generally are honestly doing their best to relieve industrial depression, and to the present time the only contribution made by the so-called Reds is represented by talk and violation of existing laws. The present industrial depression, like every other great problem which has confronted the American people during the existence of the Republic, will ultimately be settled and settled right, and the best method of dealing with these individuals who would substitute violence for orderly procedure in the settlement of economic problems is to deport them to the country whose subjects they are, and the sooner America is rid of them, more particularly the Russian Red Radicals, the better for America and the worse for Russia.

MAYOR PRAISED FOR UNEMPLOYMENT STAND.

Mayor Curley, on October 9, received the following communication from Major Frank Pease, of Hollywood Gardens, 60 Front street, Marblehead, Mass., and likewise the president of the Hollywood Technical Directors Institute of Hollywood, Cal.:

It is to be hoped that this note of mine is but one which you are beginning to receive from all quarters throughout the nation, congratulating and thanking you for your wonderful, and brave, and so intelligent a stand regarding local and national unemployment.

The late Colonel Roosevelt would have done as much, and, indeed, on a less immediately vital issue, conservation, did once call together the governors of our states. Your move in calling upon the brains first is both logical, proper and highly strategic.

These men should have it put up to them, since they are specialized in suggestive power towards solutions of social and economic problems, and more especially so since our Federal Government and our great business institutions are so apathetic, or anyhow so dilatory, in getting down to brass tacks.

You, my dear Mr. Mayor, have not only started a move for possible and immediate solutions, but you have initiated a most striking and powerful precedent. Yes, indeed, call upon the sober conservative and practical brains of the locality and the nation in order that it may be known what is the thing to do first, then get people moving to do it.

Just arriving here on a trip from Hollywood, Cal., I was greatly struck by the very obvious numbers of unemployed everywhere. This thing must be bigger and vaster than has been made public, and it must not be permitted to continue in the face of winter. If it is, we may depend on it, all revolutionary forces will take full advantage of it, which must never be.

Again permit me to express my unbounded thanks and appreciation for your great stand.

I have the honor to be, sir,

Most sincerely yours,

AMERICA, WITH ITS GLORIOUS ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE PAST, NEED NOT FEEL IMPOTENT TO SOLVE HER UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM, MAYOR CURLEY TELLS MEMBERS OF UNITED TYPOTHETAE ASSOCIATION AT HOTEL STATLER.

At the banquet of the members of the United Typothetae Association at Hotel Statler, October 14, 1930, Mayor Curley spoke as follows:

Mr. President, Distinguished Visitors, Members of the Typothetae.

Boston has been singularly favored this year in the matter of conventions, and we have actually evolved from a rather sedate, modest and diffident community into one that has, during the present year at least, been bustling with life and finery, and really taking on every appearance of being part of the "jazz age," which is rapidly disappearing.

It was rather an unusual departure for the city but, nevertheless, one that it was deemed wise to undertake in view of the pessimism that is evident throughout the country, and the general feeling of poverty, which is largely psychological on the part of most everyone in America; and in view of the additional fact that Boston is so located geographically that we must attract folks here, for when a depression obtains such as has been in evidence during the last year we shall suffer in a larger measure than any other portion of the United States.

And so, we embarked on the experiment, and we have had the unusual good fortune of entertaining within the city during the present year, more than 500 conventions, or a record of 540 at the end of the year. Now, these 540 conventions have included the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, that is now in session, the Masonic orders, the Knights of Columbus, and about all the leading fraternal, social, business and financial organizations of prominence in the entire country.

When you consider that Boston, or Massachusetts, is living under the same character of law that obtains in every other portion of the United States, and that we are competing for convention business with sections of the country where a continuous "wet" season obtains, you will realize that we have been fairly successful, all things considered.

Now then, the most interesting feature of our convention business has been that we have found it unnecessary to compete with the mushroom communities of the country, that lead in the matter of holding conventions, in financial competition. Almost every individual in America looks forward, either when he gets married or when he gets wealthy, to making a trip to three places in the United States, the National Capitol, Washington; New York, the nightmare; or Boston, the historical center.

BOSTON'S HISTORICAL TREASURES.

And we have endeavored through the use of that particular agency which you men so well represent, to attract the attention of the people of America, not only to the historical treasures that are to be found here in Boston but to the advantages. I believe it was Mark Twain who said you could get every kind of weather in Boston, but strange to say during the last three months we have had only one kind of weather, with the exception of a portion of two days, and it is possible for a citizen of Boston to talk upon the weather in almost the same manner that a citizen of California talks to someone who has never been outside of his county.

I can recall being there in 1915 and wearing ordinary clothing that one wears in the month of November in Boston, which is usually heavy both inside and outside, and after seven o'clock at night, chattering and chilling, in what we call a heavy cold fog coming in off the Pacific. I can recall talking to the Mayor, Jim Rolfe, one of the dearest souls in the world, and I said, "Do you get much of this kind of weather here?" and he said, "What weather are you talking about?" I said, "this weather that just chills you to the bone," and he said, "That is not a fog but just a little golden dew off the golden gate." He said, "we rarely get it in the form you get it today; I don't remember another for the last twenty years." But if I had asked another Californian he probably would have said this was the first time it occurred in a lifetime.

But, as a matter of fact, we have had three months of the most glorious weather in Boston that it was possible to obtain in any portion of the United States, and during this three months we have produced a series of outdoor pageants, from the production of Edipus Rex by the Greeks, to the production of Twelfth Night by the Y. M. C. A. We have had somewhere in the vicinity of 2,000,000 visitors enjoying these wonderful spectacles. So it has been possible, where depression existed in other portions of the United States, for a man, provided he had a good sturdy pair of shoes or the necessary fare, to come to Boston, live on his neighbors during the day and go to the Tribune on Boston Common during the evening and there enjoy these wonderful spectacles, and regain his shattered hopes by listening to grand opera without charge. There is no other place in the world where a person can enjoy himself more and not have a dollar in the world than within the City of Boston during the past year.

Now, then, of course, the picture is changing. We are rapidly passing beyond that stage where we were all afraid of the prospects that might be in store for the United States of America. I believe that it was the late lamented Woodrow Wilson, during the period of the World War, who referred to the War's conclusion as a matter of psychology.

STOCK MARKET FOR GULLIBLE.

I know of no better term that would apply to the present state of mind of the people of America. Of course we have had a depression, also a stock market crash, and a great many people have been squeezed, but no one with a grain of intelligence should ever expect to gain anything from the stock market. If ever they discover some individual in America that has played the market on margin and has made a dollar that man can command his own figure as a curiosity to be placed beside the behemoth or the dinosaur, or any other extinct species. Stocks are made to be sold to gullible people. They are printed to make profit for the printer, and for the broker who exchanges them for Uncle Sam's currency. And so a great many have suffered. It has been like an epidemic of measles or smallpox. They spread it to the community and the community has become possessed with a fear of the future.

Now, how are we going to explain this situation? Simply by a plain statement of facts. If there is a depression in America, America is not alone in the matter of depression, it is world-wide, but it is less severe in America than in any other country in the entire world, with the exception of France. I venture to say there is not any American worthy of the name who would exchange present day depression in America for conditions existing in France. Someone asked President Doumergue, within the last thirty days, how he accounted for the fact that France was fairly prosperous while the depression was general throughout Europe. He replied that 1,500,000 young manhood was destroyed entirely during the war and 500,000 permanently incapacitated; 2,000,000 men removed from industry in a country that never averaged in excess of 45,000,000. Again I say that there is not a man in America that would exchange for the prosperity of France, with its penalty, our own depression.

LIFT BURDEN OFF LABOR'S SHOULDERS.

How about our depression? We have not lost a single acre of land since 1929. We have just as much territory. There is just as much wealth in the treasury of the United States, in the banks and in the financial institutions, as there ever has been in the history of America. The one thing we have lost is the faith in ourselves and our ability to devise a program that will make for economic security and economic stability. And when we notice the revolutions occurring in South America and the general unrest obtaining in the various capitals of Europe there comes to us a realization that it is about time we lifted a portion of the burden off the shoulders of organized labor alone and make it the business of every single individual interested in the perpetuation and preservation of the finest country and the finest nation in the world, the United States of America. Someone said this cannot be done. It is too huge a problem. They said the same thing about the eight-hour day when the men were working fourteen hours a day in America, yet we have an eight-hour day now and we are gradually beginning to realize that a man does not lose his job any more, the job vanishes.

I went to the Radio Exposition the other night and a man picked up a telephone, something like this one on the stand; there was a small model train on the table and he said, "Go ahead, Casey," and the train started. Then he said, "Back up, Casey Jones," and the train backed up. If you are going to substitute machines for men you must make some provision for the regulation of the production of these machines or you will not have any men working. When the time comes that there are no opportunities in the land, the cornerstone of which is equality of opportunity, then I think we can all very well tremble as to the future. I have an abiding faith in the ability of the American people to solve this problem.

I am going to present your presiding officer with a symbol of that faith. It is not like the key we presented to the Prince of Wales some time ago which was not a real key to the city, as it would not open anything, even a wine closet. This key is cut from an elm tree that grew on almost the identical spot where the first shot was fired in Lexington in the movement for the establishment of American liberty. I sincerely trust it will convey to your organization, as it conveys to every thoughtful student in America, a realization of the sublime character of faith these men had, not only in their neighbors, but in Almighty God.

These men, the handful, there being less than 3,000,000 at that time in the thirteen colonies and little more than one half in favor of severance of allegiance with the mother country, taking up arms against the most powerful nation in the world, when it was possible only through the capture of the ships of the enemy on sea and the capture of the arms and ammunition of the enemy on land; and yet they carried on for eight long years and gave to the world the finest and most courageous example of government ever known in the world. These men were actuated by faith. Their problem was a great problem and ours fades into insignificance beside it; but surely a nation that during a century and a half has solved many important problems is capable of solving the present one. Surely a nation that can carry on divided for four years in order to strike the shackles from the black man and make a reality of the theory of equality, as enunciated by Jefferson and set forth in the Declaration of Independence and in the Bill of Rights, is capable of solving our present-day problem.

A nation that can muster to the colors in the hour of the world crisis 10,000,000 Americans, mustering under the most hateful word in the English language, "Conscription," and going across and joining forces with an army that had not known victory for three long years, and wresting victory from defeat, should not feel it an impossibility to determine a program that will make for continuity of employment that will preserve equality of opportunity for the workers in America. Nor should it feel impotent to make possible, through a more generous and general distribution of the creative wealth of America, conditions under which there will be happiness in the home, patriotism in the land. Then when the National Anthem is played, and every American will stand with hat in hand, thanking Almighty God that he is privileged to live under the best flag and the best Government the world has ever known or may ever know.

CHANGING STREET NAMES.

Alteration in the names of United States seems to be on the increase in the United States. In most cases the reasons for it are inadequate, while changes that would actually make for clearness remain unmade. The reason for change would usually seem to be general patriotism, national or local, as where the name of some prominent person is given to a street. During the war German names were largely discarded, as where Berlin avenue in St. Louis became Pershing avenue. In the height of President Wilson's popularity abroad, Wilson avenues sprang up all over the allied countries. Later, disappointment or dissatisfaction caused many of these to be changed.

COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT TAXES BY MUNICIPALITIES.

The collection of delinquent taxes is often neglected by city officials, resulting in a considerable financial loss to the municipality.

The sale of property for taxes usually takes place from one to three years after the taxes have become due and after the publication of a tax sale notice for from three to six weeks. The property is sold at auction to the highest bidder provided that the bid covers the amount of taxes, all unpaid assessments, interest, fees, penalties, and other charges against the property. If the bid is not sufficient to cover these items, the city bids in the property. Property sold for taxes may be redeemed after a period varying from one to three years upon payment of sum sold for, together with interest computed at the rate of 12 per cent per annum. If the property is not redeemed within the prescribed time the purchaser is given either a deed, an estate in fee simple, or an absolute estate in fee, subject only to the lien of unpaid state and county taxes.

In two cities, White Plains and Yonkers, the tax lien is sold. This has worked out very satisfactorily. In Yonkers the problem of the collection of delinquent taxes has been cleared up:

1. By keeping the assessed valuation down to the real present market value, thereby preventing the accumulation of a large amount of uncollectible taxes.
2. By foreclosure, in one action, of large numbers of lots in one ownership.
3. By assignment of tax liens, at full value, to any one applying for same.
4. By resale, at reduced amounts, of tax liens held by the city.
5. By compromise with owners, reducing the amounts due to a sum that will make it worth while for such owners to pay up the city thereby saving foreclosure costs, and immediately placing such property on a taxpaying basis, and at the same time allowing the owners to get out with some equity. Foreclosure should never be resorted to where an owner shows any disposition to compromise.

BOSTON AREA TO WARD LINES.

Total, 30,598 acres (i. e., 47.81 square miles), 2,944 acres being filled land, 1,143 acres water area and 1,436 acres flats. Land area only, 28,019 acres (i. e., 43.78 square miles). Included in the latter are 160 acres of filled flats recently added to the land area of South Boston and 175 acres to that of East Boston.

Original Boston contained about 780 acres of land. Of the twelve leading American cities, eight are larger in land area than Boston, viz., Los Angeles (441 square miles), New York (318), Chicago (199.4), Philadelphia (129), Baltimore (91.9), Detroit (80), Cleveland (56.6) and St. Louis (61.25). The only city in Massachusetts with larger land area is Taunton (50 square miles).

If Boston should expand by annexations as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and others have expanded, its total area, in case of including the thirty-nine cities and towns within the 15-mile radius, would be second to the largest, viz., Los Angeles, the present land area of "Greater Boston" being 409.5 square miles.

CHICAGO POLICE ALLOW SPEED ON SAFETY BASIS.

Traffic police in Chicago have been ordered to make a "sane application" of the law on speeding, determining the relation of an automobile's speed to the hazards it may create, according to "Chicago Commerce," published by the Association of Commerce of that city.

Such an interpretation of the law is new to Chicago, but is based on the experience of Michigan police and of those in other states where speed limits have been legally removed in favor of the enforcement of cautious driving.

"The Illinois statute," states Police Commissioner William F. Russell, "makes it illegal to drive at a speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and the use of the way, or so as to endanger the life or limb or injure the property of any person."

"The following types of fast driving are particularly dangerous and must be stopped:

"Cutting in and out of traffic at excessive speed.

"Excessive speed while approaching or passing pedestrians in the street.

"Excessive speed while approaching an intersection where the view of the other street is obstructed.

"Driving at high speed on a boulevard or through street in such a manner as to prevent other drivers from entering or crossing the same after they have made the legal stop.

"Driving at excessive speed while turning a corner where pedestrians are crossing.

"Driving at excessive speed at any time where an accident results, causing injury to any person or property."

AUTOMOBILE FATALITIES.

Automobile fatalities for the months of January and February of this year, as compared with last year, decreased considerably in the cities and increased considerably in the towns and country, as indicated by the Nation-wide reports received by the National Safety Council.

These reports show that the cities had six per cent fewer automobile deaths this year than last year; 61 of the 90 cities that reported showed declines, or no changes at all, as compared with a year ago. But the state-wide reports received during the same period showed an increase of 11 per cent in fatal automobile accidents. In the total, there were an estimated 4,240 motor vehicle deaths during January and February of this year, as compared with 4,220 such fatalities during the same two months of last year.

SITUATION OF BOSTON.

Boston is situated in latitude, north, 42 degrees, 21 minutes, 29.596 seconds, longitude, west, 71 degrees, 3 minutes, 51.040 seconds (exact situation of apex of State House dome, according to United States Coast and Geodetic Survey). Boston's latitude is similar to that of Detroit and the southern boundary of Oregon, also Rome (Italy), Sofia (Bulgaria) and Mukden (Manchuria); longitude nearly that of Quebec (Canada), Bogota (Colombia) and Santiago (Chile).

POLICE DEPARTMENT ORDERS.General Order No. 114.

BOSTON POLICE PARADE, DRESS PARADE AND REVIEW, MONDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1930.

General Instructions.

On Monday, October 13, 1930, the Boston Police Parade will take place at 9.50 o'clock a. m., sharp.

Every officer in the department, who is not sick, will either take part in the parade, go on street duty, or hold himself in readiness in his station house until the parade is over.

Division commanders will instruct all officers who are to take part in the parade, to present the very best possible appearance; trousers creased, buttons, badge, and cap ornament polished, hair trimmed, face shaved, and shoes shined; to refrain from chewing any substance; to preserve silence in the ranks; to pay no attention to greetings or remarks, friendly or otherwise, which may be made by spectators along the line, and at all times pay attention and show discipline, so that when any command is given it will be understood and immediately executed.

The regulation fall uniform, with dress coat, white standing collar and white gloves, will be worn by members of the department participating in the parade, and also by officers on detail and on street duty in uniform.

It is desirable that the members of the force who are veterans and who are entitled to wear decorations or insignia other than service buttons, members of the Department Rifle Clubs who have qualified as experts, sharpshooters and marksmen, and members who have been awarded the Scott Department medal wear the same on breast of uniform coat in line with the police badge, while taking part in the parade.

Short-day men detailed to parade will be excused at 6 o'clock a. m., October 13, and they will report at their station for first-half duty at 6.45 o'clock p. m., October 13.

After the parade is over, day men on route duty will remain on the street until relieved, about 7 o'clock p. m. Long-day men will be governed by instructions from their commanders.

During the parade the officer in charge of each station will cover the routes on his division the best he can with the number of men left on the division. If additional men are needed in any station in an emergency, call Headquarters immediately.

The patrol wagons from Divisions 9 and 17 will be used in the parade. During their absence, Division 9 will call for Division 5, 10 or 11's wagon; and Division 17 will call for Division 13 or 18's wagon if necessary. In case of accident, where more than one ambulance is needed officers in charge of divisions will notify Headquarters, and Headquarters will immediately notify City Hospital and Haymarket Relief Hospital.

After the parade is dismissed on the Common, each captain or officer in charge of a company or unit will be governed by Superintendent's Orders relative to other details for the day.

Division commanders will instruct the officers detailed to parade with the Riot Gun Companies and Thompson Submachine Gun Unit to report to Police Headquarters at 8.15 o'clock a. m., October 13, where they will be equipped with guns, belts, etc.

After the regiment is dismissed on the Common the officers in command of the companies and units mentioned in the paragraph immediately preceding, will report with such companies and units at Headquarters and deliver guns and other equipment.

The color bearers, color guards and guidons will report at Headquarters at 8.15 o'clock a. m., October 13, where they will be equipped with the Colors, rifles, and guidon flags. After the parade they will march back to Headquarters and deliver the flags, guns and guidons. Colors from Division 3 may be carried by the bearers to the formation point with company.

Sergeant Cain and twelve mounted officers from Division 16 and four mounted officers from Division 20 will ride at the head of the parade, riding eight abreast, except in Boylston street, between Arlington street and Park square and in School street, where they will ride in column of fours.

Two mounted officers from Division 20 will ride in rear of the parade.

Division commanders, who are stationed a long distance from the parade formation point, will arrange to transport their men, paying fares, and charging same in their expense account.

Commanders of companies and units, as designated in General Order No. 112 of October 3, 1930, for the Police Parade, will report to Captain Lutz, on Dartmouth street, between Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street, not later than 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, October 13, 1930.

Details to help make up Divisions 8 and 18 Companies, as enumerated in Superintendent's Orders of September 27, will report to Captain Lutz in Commonwealth avenue, south side, at Dartmouth street, at 8.45 o'clock a. m.

It is very important that the men detailed to help make up Divisions 8 and 18 Companies report on time and be carefully instructed as to which company they are to report, so that there will be no confusion at the last moment.

The commanding officers of Divisions 8 and 18 will report at 8.45 o'clock a. m. with the designated number of men from their division in Dartmouth street, at Commonwealth avenue, and when their companies are formed they will take their places in line with their respective battalions.

Lieutenants and sergeants assigned to parade with companies and units other than their own, will report at time and place ordered for such company or unit.

Hyland, respectively, will report to Captain Lutz in Dartmouth street, between Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street, at 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, October 13, 1930, form their respective battalions in line, and see that their several companies are properly uniformed and equipped, after which each battalion commander will direct his adjutant to report to the regimental adjutant at 9.40 o'clock a. m. sharp.

Captains Michael Healy and Mathew Killen, Lieutenants William H. Allen, Charles B. McCloskey, Thomas S. J. Kavanagh and Stephen J. Gillis, and Sergeants Edward A. Moore and Patrick H. Purcell, and Patrolmen Thomas P. Gallagher and Patrick F. Concannon will report to Captain Lutz at 9.30 o'clock a. m., sharp, in Dartmouth street, corner of Commonwealth avenue.

Line will be formed at 9.45 o'clock a. m. with right resting in Commonwealth avenue, at Dartmouth street, after which the parade will start promptly at 9.50 o'clock a. m., over the following route:

Route of Parade.

Dartmouth street to south side of Commonwealth avenue, Arlington street to Boylston street, north side, between Arlington street and Charles street, Tremont street to Temple place, Washington street to School street, Beacon street to Charles street to Boston Common.

The mounted unit, motor cycle unit and patrol wagons will enter the Common through the center gate drive on Charles street and take assigned posts on the left of the third battalion.

The parade will be reviewed at City Hall at 10.20 o'clock a. m. by his Honor the Mayor; at the State House at 10.25 o'clock a. m. by the adjutant general, Jesse F. Stevens, representing his Excellency the Governor, and after the dress parade on the Common, by the Honorable Eugene C. Hultman, Police Commissioner.

LEGIONNAIRES SEND LETTERS OF THANKS TO BOSTON FOR ENTERTAINMENT.

Mayor Curley has received the following letters in connection with the recent National Conventions of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, held in Boston.

From Mary Virginia Macrae (Mrs. Donald), retiring National President of the American Legion Auxiliary, came the following:

81 BEACON STREET, BOSTON.

MY DEAR MAYOR CURLEY,—May I take this opportunity of thanking you for the many courtesies extended to me and for the exquisite bouquet of flowers you presented to me—the most beautiful, I think, I ever saw.

I enjoyed meeting your very interesting family and hope I may have the pleasure of meeting you all again. I have been visiting here for a few days and could not leave without this acknowledgment.

May I take this opportunity of expressing my admiration for your very delightful personality and for the love you have won of the people of Boston. I may have the pleasure of meeting you again. Believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

MARY VIRGINIA MACRAE,

[Mrs. Macrae's home is in Council Bluffs, Iowa.]

From Alex J. Smith of the Barre Post, the American Legion, Barre, Vermont, came the following:

MY DEAR MAYOR,—As a member of the Barre Post, the American Legion, I want to take this opportunity of expressing our thanks for the wonderful time we had while in Boston last week. Every person with whom we came in contact was mighty fine to us.

Wishing you the greetings of Elksdom, I am,

Fraternally,

ALEX J. SMITH.

The following letter accompanied by a beautiful box of flowers was received at the home of Mayor James M. Curley, from National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion, as an expression of his appreciation of the reception and hospitality accorded the American Legion during its National Convention which closed October 9, in Boston.

MY DEAR MAYOR,—My term as National Commander is nearly completed, but before retirement I want to express to you, personally, my genuine appreciation of all that you have done individually to make my sojourn in Boston so thoroughly delightful. I know that I speak for the entire American Legion, as well as myself, when I add a word of gratitude for the exceedingly generous efforts you have exerted to make this Twelfth Annual National Convention the outstanding success it is proving to be.

With assurances of high esteem, best wishes and kindest personal regards, I am,

Very truly yours,

O. L. BODENHAMER,
National Commander, the American Legion.

Mayor Curley received the following communication from Mr. William Schain, of 1327 Grant avenue, Bronx, N. Y., a former member of Machine Gun Company, 9th U. S. Infantry:

Permit me to express my heartiest appreciation to you and to the people of your great city for the hospitality extended to me while there.

I am a wounded veteran, formerly with the Second Division, and I want to say here and now that the last convention of the American Legion will be my dream of the "Big Parade." It will linger in my mind the rest of my life.

I wish to commend your Police Department for the wonderful courtesy they rendered. I cannot gather enough words to express myself the wonderful time I have had; in other words I was sorry to leave Boston. However, I do hope that the Legion will meet again in the near future. In conclusion, I wish to say that the remarks in this letter come from a number of my comrades who are recuperating from the Big Parade.

May God bless you and the rest of the people of Boston.

Very respectfully yours,

WILLIAM SCHAIN.

Mayor Curley also received the following communication from Mr. Morris Rote-Rosen, Village Clerk, Village of Granville, New York.

MY DEAR MAYOR,—Permit me, as a member of the American Legion, to express to you my appreciation for the wonderful reception we were tendered by the people of the City of Boston. It will be many years before the American Legion will be so hospitably received and treated with such kindness of heart as it had by the people of your city.

Also I wish to express my gratitude to the Boston City Police Department for its courtesy extended to us. The personnel of your Police Department should make all the citizens of Boston feel proud.

If the Twelfth Annual Convention of the American Legion has been the most wonderful one we have had, most of the credit should go to you as the official head, to your Police Department, and all the people of Boston.

I shall always remember Boston.

Very sincerely yours,

MORRIS ROTE-ROSEN,
Village Clerk.

ATHENS, GREECE, SENDS SALUTATION TO BOSTON, "ATHENS OF AMERICA."

Mayor Curley, on October 11, received the following communication from the Honorable Mayor of the City of Athens, Greece:

YOUR HONOR,—Great though is our joy as we celebrate the first centenary of our independence, still greater has it become since the receipt of your kind letter.

When reading it before the members of the Municipal Council of Athens, all of us were deeply moved as we seemed to hear the voice of the most illustrious son of Boston congratulating us through the medium of the first citizen of his birth-place.

In the resonance of the highly inspired words of your congratulatory letter it was as though we listened to the thunder of Tyranny striking the lightning rod of Liberty and visualized its being changed from a destructive fire to the electric spark of progress and civilization.

The ancient City of Athens is proud because the new Athens worthily bears its name in the New World and feels the pulse of a very great emotion, since the happy daughter does not forget the cruelly-tried mother.

This sincere pulse I transmit to you today as Mayor of the Greek Capital, assuring you at the same time that the reminiscence of the valuable aid which was given so spontaneously by American philanthropy during the catastrophic disaster of Asia Minor will remain imperishable in the hearts of all Greeks.

From the heights of the Acropolis, I send you a brotherly salute as a symbol of Greco-American friendship, which will remain eternal as long as the waters of the Mediterranean shall merge with those of the Atlantic Ocean and the waves of Salamis, pushed by the winds of classical tradition, shall embrace the shores of Cape Cod.

Sincerely yours,

C. MERCOURIS,
Mayor.

MAYOR CURLEY MOVES TO HALT IMMORAL SHOWS IN THEATERS.

His Honor the Mayor, on October 15, issued the following statement:

The Censorship Board of the City of Boston, consisting of his Honor the Mayor, the Chief Justice of the Municipal Court, Wilfred Bolster, and the Police Commissioner, Eugene C. Hultman, for the first time in seven years visited one of the shows which the Municipal Censor, John M. Casey, stated had refused to comply with his recommendations, and which were violating the moral code adopted in 1916.

Apparently between the time of the complaint made by the Municipal Censor and the performance last evening the management had made such changes as had been recommended by the censor.

In the opinion of the Censorship Board a flagrant and general disregard has been in evidence of the rules adopted in the interests of decency and morality. Accordingly, it has been found necessary to adopt a new policy under which the failure of the licensee of an amusement enterprise to comply with the recommendations as made by the Municipal Censor will not only suffer the loss of license but the revocation shall be for an indefinite period of time rather than the scheduled duration for the production.

The position of the Censorship Board will undoubtedly be construed as severe, but in the opinion of the Board drastic action is necessary for the protection of public morals from the vulgarity and obscenity that has disgraced the public stage.

BENITO MUSSOLINI LAUDED AS SAVIOR OF CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION — MAYOR CURLEY THRILLS VAST AUDIENCE AT TRIBUNE ON COMMON ON COLUMBUS DAY IN ADDRESS BEFORE ASSEMBLY OF SONS OF ITALY.

Mayor Curley, speaking at the Boston Tribune, Boston Common, Monday, October 13, at the mass meeting of the Sons of Italy, said in part as follows:

Your Excellency, Distinguished Ambassador from Italy to the United States, Right Reverend Monsignor, Distinguished and Honored Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen.

A unique character in American history, known as the poet of the Sierras, in a tribute to the great Genoese in whose honor we assemble here today on the sacred soil of Boston Common, tells the story not only of the voyage of discovery but of all that has taken place up to the present hour in the life of America; it is a wonderful and glorious tribute to Christopher Columbus. No individual can read the poem of Joaquin Miller, the eccentric genius of the Sierras, without arriving at the conclusion that America in the destiny of Almighty God has been designated as an instrument for the fulfillment of His mysterious decrees. It was Miller who said, talking of the voyage:

Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind the Gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores,
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said: "Now must we pray,
For lo! the very stars are gone.
Brave Admiral, speak, what shall I say?"
"Why, say 'Sail on! sail on! and on!'"

Then pale and worn, he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness. Ah, that night
Of all dark nights! And then a speck—
A light! a light! a light! a light!
It grew, a starlit flag unfurled!
It grew to be Time's burst of dawn.
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: "On! sail on!"

He gave to the world its grandest lesson: "On and on, and on, sail on," and that has been the lesson of America.

Less than one short month ago on this very Tribune there were assembled the leaders of our nation, representatives of our Commonwealth and of the municipality to celebrate our Tercentenary, and where, during the last three months, nightly outdoor celebrations have been held at which more than two millions of persons have been presented with a pageantry and a story of the contribution of the various racial elements that go to make up the cosmopolitan nation in which we live, told the story of the contribution of their various races to the cultural achievements in their own land and their contribution in America. It was a story of art, the story of science, the story of literature, the story of religion and that of progress under the beneficent influence of the Stars and Stripes of free America.

PROGRESS SINCE COLUMBUS.

Over yonder on Beacon street is erected a memorial in enduring granite and bronze to mark the establishment of the first spring of pure water that made possible the beginning of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The Massachusetts Bay Colony might have long postponed its settlement, or might never have been settled, were it not for the voyage of the daring navigator—Christopher Columbus—inspired alone by his supreme faith in the Master of the Universe, Almighty God. We rejoice in what has been accomplished by America since the Puritans settled here three centuries ago, or since the arrival of Columbus 438 years ago, and truly a miracle of human progress has been wrought on the blessed soil of America, for here came the fruition of the aim and the aspiration, aye! the dream and the ideal of good women and men the world over for nearly twenty centuries—the sacred privilege and blessing of liberty for the individual man.

On the soil of America was fought the greatest internecine struggle ever engaged in by any people from the beginning of time. Four long weary years under the divine, inspiring, leadership of Abraham Lincoln; four years of warfare fought successfully and which ended without the loss of a state to the Union or a star to the Flag and the black man freed not only in America but throughout the entire world.

And then the greatest war in the world's history. I said last evening that I trust some day a true history of the World War will be written. When that history is written, if written before another Columbus Day parade is held, every man with a drop of Italian blood in his veins will walk with his head just a little more erect and his spine a little stiffer, because of the contribution of the land of his fathers for the preservation of free government in the world.

We rejoice that in America, America that has been more blessed than any other land in the world, that the pure womanhood and the sturdy manhood representing the immigrant Italian here in America seeking equality of opportunity and liberty, we rejoice that when the World War came on and ten millions of the manhood of America were mustered under the colors there was never any occasion for a draft officer to round up a man with Italian blood in his veins—they came forward and enlisted without being prodded.

Harking back to those trying days from 1915 to 1918, those days when the greatest and the best organized war machine the world had ever known threatened to sweep all before it, a division was necessary of the Austrian and German Army. Why? Because of the bravery, the courage and the devotion of the Italian Army that alone and almost unaided by the rest of the allied forces for three long years held in check the Austrian Army. And through the holding of the Austrian Army prevented a combination of forces on the western front which if it had happened would either have much longer prolonged the war or might have ended in disaster for the allied forces.

NO CONTRIBUTION GREATER THAN ITALY'S.

So that we can truthfully say that during the period of the war no people contributed more heroically than the people of Italy. The war over, the natural excesses that are every present following the conclusion of a great war of that character, the conversion of liberty into license, the attempt to tear down the code of law necessary for the preservation of home and of state, and at a critical period when Russia had crumbled and given way to communism; when radicalism and Bolshevism threatened to engulf the states of Europe, it was a citizen of Italy that stood in the breach and with a handful of loyal defenders stopped the mad march of anarchy, Bolshevism and communism, and saved Christian civilization for the world—Benito Mussolini.

So, my friends, it is not only a joy but a pleasure to welcome the representative of that country. That country which not only preserved Christian civilization at the most critical period in the life of the world, but that country which has contributed in larger measure than any other country in the whole world to religion, to art, to science, to literature, that country to which the eyes and the hearts of the people of the world in every crisis always turned for solace and for spiritual guidance.

Long may she continue to serve, not only the Italian subjects, but the people of the whole world.

MAYOR'S EMPLOYMENT CONFERENCE APPEALS TO EMPLOYERS OF STATE.

At a conference on unemployment held on October 9, at the Parker House, by Mayor Curley, at which presidents of Massachusetts universities and professors of economics departments of universities were present, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, The representatives of Massachusetts universities and the professors in charge of economics departments of the said universities in conference assembled this day to consider the question of stabilizing employment are of the opinion that the most necessary step to be taken at the present time is that which will result in destroying the psychology of fear, due to the belief on the part of persons now employed that they may suffer the loss of their employment, have adopted the following resolve:

Resolved, That in our opinion labor has been sufficiently liquidated and that workers now employed in every line of activity are necessary to meet the present needs of the country.

Resolved, That for the best interests of industry and of the worker we hereby express our belief that employers throughout Massachusetts give consideration at once to the assuring of continuity of employment for workers now employed that they will be continued in their employment as a means of promoting optimism, destroying fear and restoring industrial stability.

At the conference the following motion was made and seconded:

That it is the sense of this meeting that there is necessity for legislation providing for a Federal Planning Board, whose duty would be to develop a program for the stabilization of industry in the United States, and provide such safeguards as will render impossible industrial depression in future.

AMERICA LOOKS TO AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR IN PRESENT INDUSTRIAL CRISIS AS IT DID DURING WORLD WAR, MAYOR CURLEY TELLS LABOR CONGRESS AT HOTEL BRADFORD.

At American Federation of Labor Congress Banquet, Bradford Hotel, on October 15, Mayor Curley addressed the gathering in part as follows:

Mr. Chairman, National President Green, Distinguished Guests of the American Federation of Labor, Ladies and Gentlemen and You of the Unseen Audience.

It is an exceeding pleasure and one that I esteem a very great privilege to be permitted to extend the felicitations of the good people of Boston upon this the golden anniversary of the organization of the American Federation of Labor.

The City of Boston with a desire to give expression in a substantial manner to the work that has been done, the necessary work, not only for the good of the working man in America and the working woman but for the good of humanity the entire world over has seen fit upon this occasion to select as a gift to be presented in the name of the citizenship of Boston a gavel made from one of the original newel posts that were located in Faneuil Hall as constructed in Colonial days.

Around the center of this most precious relic that links us with a most glorious past is to be found a golden band symbolic of this golden anniversary of the American Federation of Labor. Upon that band we have inscribed "Presented by the City of Boston to William Green, National President of the American Federation of Labor, a gavel made from one of the original newel posts located in Old Faneuil Hall, the Cradle of Liberty." And in presenting this to the National Head of the American Federation of Labor, I do it with full appreciation of how well deserved this tribute is from the City of Boston and from Americans generally. For, after all, the Cradle of Liberty is dear to us for from the Cradle of Liberty there emanated that righteous protest which welded the people of the Thirteen Colonies together in the movement for the establishment of what in our day is known as the best land, and the best flag, to be found in the entire world, the United States of America under the Stars and Stripes.

And if we have the best land and the best flag in the world to no single institution or organization is more credit due than to the American Federation of Labor. Like the Colonial Fathers in 1775 they represented but a feeble handful fifty years ago and that fifty years of service to humanity and to America represented more than one third of the entire time that the American Republic has been in existence.

Nearly every single measure of humane legislation, legislation the purpose of which was to make the home happier, the family fireside a more contented one, the population of America just a little more patriotic with a patriotism based on a degree of economic justice enjoyed under the Stars and Stripes in our common country, was initiated and sponsored by the American Federation of Labor.

How few there are that are willing to acknowledge or recognize the fact that substantially every single measure of social and economic legislation the purpose of which is to lighten the burden of the toiler will be traced to the handful that had their origin in our own City of Boston a half a century ago.

When the Colonial Fathers began the movement for liberty in 1775 man was just emerging from a condition of serfdom and it was not in the history of this country until such time as the American Federation of Labor by protest and by dint of energy and by their meager contribution and their still more meager incomes made possible the laying of the foundation for the social and economic program in which America takes reasonable, justifiable and a pardonable pride at the present hour.

If the condition of the toiler has been improved and if the day of the worker has been reduced from fourteen hours of serfdom to an eight-hour day, if the Saturday half holiday universal in America in our day, if the workmen's compensation acts and if the mothers' maternity acts which guarantee to the mother in the home protection for herself and her offspring when the head of the household is stricken by the hand of Almighty God, if we enjoy these measures of social and economic legislation that indelibly marks the advance of humanity along economic lines there is but one agency in America to whom credit is due and that is the splendid agency presided over by the present head of the American Federation of Labor — William Green.

In Boston within the last week it was our privilege to entertain the convention of the American Legion and our minds harken back to those trying days of 1917, when the same forces that today would substitute license for liberty practiced sabotage in the shipyards when they threatened defeat to the movement for the preservation of free government in the world, it was to organized labor that the President and the Cabinet and the Congress of the United States turned for succor and assistance and they did not turn in vain. Under the splendid and brilliant leadership of Samuel Gompers sabotage and communism were destroyed in American workshops and it was possible for America to make that character of contribution that preserved free government in the world.

In this present hour of national distress it is not altogether to the halls of learning or to the halls of legislation that the eyes and faces of America and the leaders of America and the leaders of American industry turn for a program that will make for industrial security, for a program that will make for a continuity of employment to the worker, a program the fruition of which means happiness in the home and patriotism in the land.

Let us pray God that America in this hour of the nation's trial turning to the American Federation of Labor for advice, for assistance and for direction will enjoy the same character of splendid advice, the same character of right direction and the same character of inspiring program that made possible the winning of the World War.

It is an exceeding pleasure, sir, as Mayor of Boston on this, your golden anniversary, to present you with this sacred relic from the Cradle of Liberty with the golden band and convey to you the affection, the esteem and the love that the people have for the splendid contribution made by organized labor to America, to Americans and humanity.

PRESIDENT GREEN'S RESPONSE.

President William F. Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, responded as follows:

I wish first to express the deep appreciation of the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor for the cordial welcome that was extended to us when we came to this city. We have been overwhelmed with kindness, and we have been charmed by the hospitality of his Honor the Mayor and the citizens of Boston. Our visit here is a most delightful one. It is difficult to conceive a more satisfactory and pleasing situation than we find here in this historic old City of Boston. We shall go from here carrying back to our homes the most pleasant memories of a very wonderful visit in the City of Boston.

In behalf of the membership of the American Federation of Labor I wish to express to his Honor the Mayor our sincere thanks for this most valuable and precious gift he just presented to the American Federation of Labor through its president. We value this historic gift very highly. We shall keep it protected, and he who wields it anywhere or any place will be unworthy of membership in the American Federation of Labor unless he wields it with wisdom, fairness and justice.

If I could answer an inquiry as to what is the real objective of this great humanitarian organization, the American Federation of Labor, my answer would be made in just two words. Our great ideal, our great objective, the goal of the American Federation of Labor, is "human betterment." We are not engaged in the exploitation of material resources, nor are we attempting to impose an injury upon industry or those associated with it, but we are engaged in an endeavor to promote and advance the highest and best institution of the masses of the people. We have in mind the welfare of the children, America's most precious possession, and whether we find an underfed, underprivileged, or undernourished child in the South or in the North, the East or the West, the American Federation of Labor is the champion of that child. We are the defenders of our common schools; our system of education. We insist that here in America the principle of religious freedom shall again be revitalized and reannounced. We believe that the success of our own homeland, the protection of our institutions, the preservation of our form of government, depends upon the establishment here in America of economic justice and the maintenance of the high standard of living.

HAVE KEPT FAITH.

We are privileged in this historic City of Boston to make a mental review of the pathway over which we traveled during the last forty-nine years. The picture is before us. It seems that even now we can hear the voice of that grand human who spent much of his life in the City of Boston, he whose spirit must be with us on this occasion, our beloved Grand Chieftain, Samuel Gompers.

During these years, almost a half-century as our honored Mayor has said, we have kept the faith; our faith has been toward the future; we have never lived in the past, nor in the yesterday. Our mission is now as bright as it was fifty years ago. We have made progress; we have reduced the hours of labor; we have helped the children; we have elevated the standard of womanhood; we have raised here in America what we are pleased to term the American standard of living; but with all that has been accomplished we are still dissatisfied; we are going forward to the realization of human betterment, and we are thinking about the distressing problem that now presses upon us for consideration.

It would be impossible to gather together on an occasion like this unless we thought seriously about the problem of unemployment. In every city of the land, and every home, there are people thinking seriously, and in many sections there are thousands suffering from unemployment who are tasting of the pangs of hunger and distress.

This great convention of the American Federation of Labor is confining itself diligently to the consideration of a solution of that problem. Men of serious mind; men with a practical outlook, men who really dream dreams of a better day and a better life; but men who realize that practical problems can only be settled through the application of practical remedies.

So, my friends, the voice of labor will go out from this great congress of labor demanding that the American people, those in authority, the captains of industry, the owners of the mills and the mines and the factories, of the country, shall join together and frame a solution for the problem of unemployment. They believe that unless we find a solution for this great distressing economic problem that the great American people will be overwhelmed by the consequences. And I am happy to know that in this great city, the cradle of liberty, a place that is sacred to every American, a place pregnant with sacred memories, memories of battles fought for the enjoyment of freedom and labor, that there is at the head of this city government a man who is deeply concerned over this problem of unemployment; a man who is attempting to find a better way; one who is using the resources of this great city in order to relieve depression; the American Federation of Labor deeply appreciates the services being rendered by his Honor, Mayor Curley, in trying to find a solution to unemployment.

CIVILIZATION INDICTED.

It is an indictment upon our civilization and upon our ability to manage industry, to serve as the agents of industry, if we are to suffer on recurrent periods the terrible distress that comes from unemployment; if we are to admit that we are helpless, if we are to admit that it cannot be solved, then there stands against us a most terrific indictment, not only upon men but upon civilization itself, and so, my friends, our task will never be completed. The mission of the American Federation of Labor will never be fully completed and fulfilled until as a result of the great economic influence of the American Federation of Labor, we find here in America a righteous solution for the problem of unemployment.

Now may I say in concluding these brief remarks that we appreciate more than language can express the generous hospitality that has been bestowed upon us by the Mayor of this city, the distinguished people who live here, the masses of the people, our own friends, the working people of this city; we are grateful to them for the very wonderful reception that has been accorded to us. We thank them from the bottom of our hearts and we are certain that the American Federation of Labor is going to write another bright page at this convention in the history of our great labor movement.

MAYOR CURLEY PUSHES MOVE FOR CHINA RELIEF THROUGH SALE OF WHEAT.

Mayor Curley, on October 9, sent the following letter to Mr. D. O. Lively, China Famine Relief Headquarters, at 205 East 42d street, New York, N. Y.:

MY DEAR MR. LIVELY,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication, and also have received copies of the Red Cross reports with reference to the refusal of the Red Cross to participate in the raising of funds to relieve famine conditions in China.

I anticipate being in New York early in the next week and shall make it my business to call upon you with reference to what, in my opinion, is one of the most important subjects for consideration by the people of America.

The shipment of 200,000,000 bushels, or even more, of wheat to China would furnish the American farmers with dollars instead of dead wheat and would save millions of Chinese from death by starvation during the coming winter.

China is the most attractive nation for future American trade and a good-will foundationed by the knowledge that the charity and generosity of America had saved millions of Chinese from starvation in 1930 would continue as a tradition in China long after the year 2930.

Sincerely yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

NOTICE OF REAL ESTATE OWNERSHIP CHANGES.

Coun. WILSON offered the following:
Ordered, That his Honor the Mayor be requested in the budget for 1931 to make suitable provision for such clerical assistance as will provide for notice being given the Water Division of the Public Works Department, the Board of Health, and the office of the City Collector, with reference to any changes in ownership of real estate in the City of Boston.

Coun. WILSON—Mr. President, with reference to that last order, I submit that that request of the Mayor is a very proper and important one. The reason for the request, briefly, is this, that in the 1931 budget some provision be made for clerical assistance to follow the transfers of title and the Suffolk Registry of Deeds. I understand, perhaps erroneously, that even at the present time the Board of Assessors has a staff of eight or ten men who supposedly follow those transfers and keep the Assessing Department somewhat in line with what is going on, in order that tax bills may be sent to the proper parties. But, owing to the present duplication of effort in different departments, there should be a sufficient number of men assigned to the Registry of Deeds to give notice of transfers of title not only to the assessors' office, but to the Water Division of the Public Works Department, the City Collector's office, and other offices that may be concerned with transfers of title. Recently, in spite of the assurance of the last administration that there would be no further water shutoffs in the City of Boston, and despite my protest earlier this year, I understand that they have returned to the old city ordinance in the matter of water shutoffs, with a great deal of injustice and hardship to parties who are really innocent. You will probably recall that a year or two ago the Council thought the matter of sufficient importance, after scores of water shutoffs in Dorchester, to recommend that the water ordinance that allowed that sort of thing be repealed, having in mind the fact that the ones who suffer in such cases are the occupants, not the owners of the buildings. Our action was vetoed. Assurance, however, was given by the last administration that that sort of thing should not be continued. But during the last month several instances have come to my attention in my ward of shutoffs, which, of course, affect immediately the occupants, without notice being served on the present owners, probably because of misapprehension in regard to the ownership. It seems to me some provision should be made so that the Water Department may know to whom to send their notices, and the City Collector's office should be kept informed so that it may know to whom to send tax bills. I understand that where a tax bill is sent to the wrong owner, and is not paid for two years, the property is sold for taxes, and then the question comes of assessing costs and accrued interest. If it can be shown that no bill was sent to the owner of record on the first of April, even though the city is trying to get the taxes for two or three years, it can get no interest and no costs under the law. So it seems to me an ordinance such as I suggest would also be in the interest of the city in that respect. Therefore, not only from the point of view of the man whose water is shut off, but from the point of view of the owner of the property and of the City of Boston, I feel that something should be done in this matter.

The order was passed under suspension of the rule.

MOTION RE NEXT MEETING.

Coun. MURRAY—Mr. President, I make a motion that when we adjourn it be to Tuesday of next week, instead of Monday.

Chairman BUSH—The motion is out of order.

BATH HOUSE AND LOCKER BUILDING, SAVIN HILL.

Coun. McGRATH offered the following:
Ordered, That the Park Commission be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to include in its budget for 1931 a sum sufficient to erect a combination bath house and locker building to replace the present structure located between Savin Hill Beach and the Savin Hill Playground.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

AUTOMATIC SIGNAL LIGHT, WARD 11.

Coun. ENGLERT offered the following:
Ordered, That the Traffic Commissioner be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to provide for the installation of automatic signal light at the junction of Green and Washington streets, Ward 11.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

ELECTRIC ARC LAMP, WARD 15.

Coun. KELLY offered the following:
Ordered, That the Commissioner of Public Works be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to establish an electric arc lamp at the corner of Granger street and Duncan street, Ward 15.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

EXTENSION OF SPOFFORD ROAD, WARD 21.

Coun. HEIN offered the following:
Ordered, That the Park Commission be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to extend Spofford road, Ward 21, to the main roadway of Commonwealth avenue by means of a road crossing the street car reservation.

Passed under suspension of the rule.

SPOT-LIGHT, COMMONWEALTH AVENUE, WARD 21.

Coun. HEIN offered the following:
Ordered, That the Commissioner of Police be requested, through his Honor the Mayor, to install a spot-light for the traffic officer at Commonwealth avenue and Gorham street, Ward 21.

Coun. HEIN—Mr. President, in regard to that proposed spot-light on Commonwealth avenue and Gorham street, I introduced an order along this line some time ago. At that time the Police Commissioner said it was not needed there. Since then, three police officers have been hurt there and two are in the hospital at the present time. There have been thirty-five accidents there within a few months, due to a precaution of this kind not being taken. It is near a theater. I trust that the Police Commissioner will see fit to install such a light there.

The order was passed under suspension of the rule.

CLOSING MINIATURE GOLF COURSES AT 11.30.

Coun. HEIN offered the following:
Ordered, That the Committee on Ordinances be requested to consider the advisability of drafting and presenting to the City Council for action an ordinance providing for the closing of miniature golf courses within the city limits not later than eleven thirty o'clock p. m.

Coun. HEIN—Mr. President, there seems to be at present no time for the closing of these golf courses, with the result that many people who want to sleep in their neighborhood are unable to do so. They run until two or three o'clock in the morning, making considerable noise. I hope this matter will be considered by the Committee on Ordinances and that an ordinance will be drafted which will provide for the shutting down of these courses at 11.30 p. m.

The order was passed under suspension of the rule.

ACTION TAKEN ON ADJOURNMENT.

Coun. MURRAY—Mr. President, I would like to ask the stenographer what action was taken in regard to the motion to reconsider Coun. Ruby's motion to adjourn?

The REPORTER—The motion to reconsider was lost.

Chairman BUSH—There is no doubt about it. Coun. MURRAY—Well, if so, Mr. President, the announcement was mumbled.

Chairman BUSH—I think the announcement was made very clearly.

Coun. KELLY—Mr. President, I noticed Councillor Murray rise to his feet to doubt the vote, but I noticed that you recognized Councillor Wilson. I don't know whether it was an oversight or what it was.

Chairman BUSH—In explanation, the Chair would say that he recognized Councillor Wilson because Councillor Murray had just spoken.

Coun. KELLY—We had just voted, and Councillor Murray rose to his feet, and you refused to recognize him. That is what happened. I know what happened.

Chairman BUSH—Further motions, orders and resolutions?

Adjourned at 3.03 p. m., on motion of Coun. ENGLERT, to meet on Monday, October 20, at 2 p. m.

PREVIOUS ACCIDENT EXPERIENCE OF OPERATORS INVOLVED IN FATAL ACCIDENTS.

Only 147, or little more than one-third of the 393 motor-vehicle operators involved in fatal accidents in Connecticut in 1928 had previously been in accidents, according to the study of automobile mishaps in that state for that year, made by Richard S. Kirby, Associate Professor of the Department of Civil Engineering of Yale University.

The survey shows that 4 drivers involved in fatal accidents in 1928 had each been in 7 accidents previously; 2 others had previously been involved in 6 accidents; 4 in 5 accidents; 8 in 4; 13 in 3; 43 in 2; and 73 in 1.

There were 256, or close to two-thirds, however, who had clear accident records. Only 2 drivers out of the entire number had figured in previous fatal accidents.

Actually, 90 more drivers were in fatal collisions, but 20 of these were "hit and run" drivers, and 70 others were killed.

CONSOLIDATION OF COUNTIES TO REDUCE TAXES.

Just as consolidation of small business reduces overhead costs, it is fair to believe that consolidation of small counties into larger units would reduce taxes through eliminating duplicating offices, etc.

New York has a plan for recasting more than 60 counties into 37 units, and Tennessee, after already having merged 2 counties, now plans to merge the 95 counties in the state into 11 new units.

The results of Tennessee's experience in merging Hamilton and James counties in 1919, as portrayed by J. W. Manning of Vanderbilt University, are interesting. He points out that taxes in James County have been reduced one half, paved highways have been increased from two miles to fifty miles, and many manufacturing plants have entered the county because of the reduction in taxes. The results in New York and Tennessee will be watched with interest by the whole country.

LIFE-GIVING PATRIOTISM IS LOCAL.

By civic patriotism is meant the feeling and the taking of a deep, unselfish, earnest, ever-wakeful, active interest in the affairs of one's own city or local community, regarding it as having an autonomy, a distinct personality, a name and interests of its own, and, if one pleases, endowed with a sense of personal honor and with all laudable ambitions for the promotion of the welfare of its people.

Where such civic virtues exist the local community will neither suffer from the dry-rot of public indifference and neglect nor become tainted with graft or corruption. Its life will be healthful, and, like the ocean, will be kept pure by its own ceaseless flow and movement. All life-giving patriotism is local.

Show a good municipal citizen and one will see a citizen who loves his state, and who loves his nation, and who will discharge all the duties of this triple relation. Good government in local affairs is the best assurance of good government in state and national affairs.

MAYOR CURLEY WINS IN EFFORT TO SECURE GOVERNOR'S ISLAND FOR AIRPORT—MADE AVAILABLE TO CITY AFTER CONFERENCES WITH PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY OF WAR—$18,000,000 TO BE SPENT IN IMPROVEMENT WITH WORK BEGINNING ALMOST IMMEDIATELY.

According to news dispatches from Washington on Thursday, Mayor Curley has won for Boston his battle to obtain Governor's Island as a municipal airport. After conferences with President Hoover and Secretary Hurley, announcement was made that the War Department would make the island available to the city for use as an airport. Mayor Curley was accompanied by William P. Long, Commissioner of Parks, and Thomas J. A. Johnson. They called upon President Hoover to urge that the Federal Government, by cutting all red tape, take steps immediately to transfer the island to the City of Boston.

Mayor Curley outlined to the President the plans for making Governor's Island one of the finest airports in the world, pointing out to him also that the development can be begun at once, involving, all told, the expenditure of about $20,000,000. Under the present plans, Mayor Curley said he expected to employ about 500 men in November or December, another 500 in January, and a third 500 in May. This employment would last for about two years, so the Governor's Island project has a very close relation to the employment situation in Massachusetts.

According to Mayor Curley, President Hoover showed much interest in the plan. There had been some question whether congressional approval would not first be necessary, but in Mayor Curley's view the original act, passed in 1902, by which Congress transferred the island to the city, could still serve as a legal basis for immediate action by the executive departments. The Government took back the island during the war and, if given back to the city again, would only be transferred with the understanding that in the event of an emergency the Government could once more take possession.

Mayor Curley and his party went over to the War Department immediately after their conference with the President and discussed the matter with Secretary of War Hurley.

Secretary Hurley said the method under which the land would be made available to the city depended upon a search of existing titles. In the event the original title called for specific use of the property for "military purposes," he said the army could only lease the property to the city. Should the title be found to be clear of specific encumbrances the title would be made over to the city with the provision that it could be used by the army in an emergency.

The War Department was anxious to cooperate in every way with the municipal authorities to determine the most feasible method whereby the property could come into the hands of the city, the secretary said.

Mayor Curley, after seeing Secretary Hurley, conferred with General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, in an effort to clear up the question of the title. A decision is expected immediately.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce sent the following telegram to Mayor Curley:

"Boston Chamber of Commerce and business community cordially support your efforts to expedite transfer of Governor's Island from War Department to City of Boston for development in conjunction with Boston Municipal Airport as dirigible base. Full and co-ordinated development of airplane, seaplane and lighter-than-air facilities at airport will not only be of great value in domestic and future transatlantic air transport but will provide excellent general air base for northeastern area in connection with national defense. We sincerely hope that you will be successful in securing an early transfer."

Mayor Curley also discussed the general problem of unemployment with the President, dwelling particularly on the work which is being done in Massachusetts by the Commission of College Presidents and Professors of Economics. The aim of this body is to work out a plan of preventing the recurring cycle of business depressions.

Some such body as a Federal economic board has been suggested. Mayor Curley did not have time to go into this work being done in Massachusetts in detail, but expected to outline it more comprehensively later in the day in the course of a conference with James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.

Mayor Curley was the guest of the group of aviation leaders at noon. In the evening he and his party were the guests of honor of the Italian Ambassador at a dinner at the Embassy. The Italian Ambassador, it will be recalled, was a guest of the City of Boston on Columbus Day.

Miss Mary D. Curley accompanied her father to Washington and was with him when he and his associates called on President Hoover at the executive offices.

"O Boston, fair City enthroned like a radiant queen,
From thy hills looking down on the ship-teeming plain of the ocean,
May thy future be bright, thy skies beam with light all serene,
Ensured by thy sons' and thy daughters' unselfish devotion!"
From Boston Centennial Poem by
NATHAN HASKELL DOLE.

Boston the Place for Italy's Announcement.

To the Editor of the Transcript.

His Honor Mayor Curley will enjoy the distinction of advancing the most significant revision of diplomatic history recorded during the past sixty years. Not since England shifted her attitude in 1871 on the question of liability in connection with the Alabama claims has any country taken diplomatic action of such vital importance to the United States as that recently announced by Italy.

This matter has been the subject of discussion between the two governments since William H. Seward first took it up in 1868. Dozens of cases have occurred when Italian-born naturalized American citizens have returned to Italy and have been compelled to perform military duty there.

Now the Mussolini administration abandons the old doctrine and with superb grace causes the announcement to be made in Boston.

Mayor Curley, while in office, has been particularly affable to Italy. On several occasions he has demonstrated intimate knowledge of the Mussolini program, which he has eloquently eulogized. Therefore, the announcement of the Italian Government through its ambassador, in the presence of Mayor Curley, becomes of historic interest.

One reason why the Italian ambassador might have selected Boston as the setting for his proclamation may be that the leading case in dispute between the two governments concerned a Massachusetts man. The story may be found in the State Department War papers under the heading of "Dual Nationality." This phrase aroused the bitter indignation of Theodore Roosevelt, who demanded that the administration should repudiate the doctrine of dual nationality laid down by Mr. Bryan.

Roosevelt vigorously asserted that America should not for a moment tolerate the assumption by any foreign power that foreign-born citizens of the United States can retain citizenship in or allegiance to the country from which they came. Roosevelt denounced the attitude of the Department as "dangerously close to treason."

Frank Ghiloni was born in Marlboro, Mass., in 1885, where his father kept a small store. Frank found himself in Italy in 1914 and was put into the Italian army. In January, 1915, Mr. Bryan cabled to the ambassador at Rome, asking for the release of Ghiloni on the ground that he was an American citizen. Correspondence, usual in such cases, ensued and the cables were kept busy.

On the 25th of October the Embassy was informed that Ghiloni's release was definitely refused and Ghiloni still remained in the Italian army. In January, 1916, one year after the first message was sent, news was received by the State Department that Ghiloni had been taken prisoner by the Austrians on October 21 preceding and he was then in the custody of the Austrian army.

Thereupon the State Department made its appeal through our ambassador at Vienna to have Ghiloni, an American citizen, who was held in custody as a prisoner of war, surrendered to the American Government, emphasizing the fact that he was an American citizen and that he had never voluntarily entered the Italian Army.

In March, 1916, the Austrian Government made inquiries as to what guarantee would be given that Ghiloni would not bear arms against Austria in the event of his release. In May, Austria agreed to surrender Ghiloni to the American embassy upon sworn affidavits that he would not take up arms against his captors, and on June 19 Ghiloni was released.

In his Columbus Day speech De Martino made an eloquent appeal, saying: "We say to the Italo-Americans: 'You must be first of all good and true American citizens, loyal to the Constitution and to the laws of this country, loyal to the glorious Stars and Stripes. But you should not forget the ancient land of your forefathers. Be proud of your origin, and bring to the country of your adoption those virtues and those qualities which come with the blood flowing in your veins.'"

"I have had repeated occasions to develop and explain in public speeches this line of our policy, which, mark you, we apply exclusively to the United States and not, for instance, on the shores of the Mediterranean, where we endeavor to keep the Italians under our own citizenship."

The announcement of this new doctrine indicates the desire of the Italian Government to weld the bonds of friendship between the people of the two countries by personal and political association and by diplomatic negotiations.

The Transcript editorial is as follows:

ITALY TAKES THE RIGHT STEP.

Up to July last, American citizens of Italian birth who happened to have come to this country without first serving time in the Italian army were liable, on visiting Italy, to be impressed for such military service, and the same thing occurs in Greece with reference to Greco-Americans. But so far as Italians are concerned it is now morally certain that this high-handed practise is a thing of the past as regards Italian-Americans who have become naturalized citizens of this country. For several months ago, apparently on its own initiative, the Italian Government decided to exempt naturalized Italians here from such military service, actuated, says Italian Ambassador Nobile Giacomo de Martino, by a desire to show its friendship and good will for the United States. Inasmuch as our State Department has long and vainly tried to arrange a naturalization treaty with Italy to prevent the impressment mentioned, it is but natural that the Washington administration hesitates to regard its abolishment as an accomplished fact until some more formal step shall have been taken by both governments, yet meantime the State Department has received recent assurances enough to warrant its action in placing on passport papers a notice to the effect that the impressment no longer applies to "former Italian subjects naturalized in the United States and persons born in the United States of Italian parents," except when the military obligation had been incurred when Italy was at war.

Pending consummation of the matter by treaty one concludes that the Italian Government — or Mussolini — foreseeing that exemption from such impressment was bound to come in time and conceiving a wholesome respect for American public opinion, including the sentiments of Americans of Italian birth, decided to anticipate any treaty obligations by an act of grace, of purely national policy, graciously discriminating in our favor when enforcing impressments as a voluntary act of special, exclusively American application. Noblesse oblige! Mussolini's sincere admiration of American talent and capacity is well known and, much as he prefers Fascism to democracy, he is far too sagacious to underrate the value of democratic America's good will. Whatever may be his aspirations in Europe and his sentiments toward various European nations, he must consider the abandonment of impressing Italian-Americans a cheap price for assuring the continuance of warm friendship between the two countries. And whatever be the motives of the Italian Government, the prospect of freedom from what has been an unwarrantable hardship for Americans of Italian origin is doubly and triply welcome.

It is when one considers the broader aspects of such a practice that one fails to see any real precedent in Italy's present attitude. It ought not to be as a special favor to any nation that another nation is abolishing such an obnoxious practice. It should be abandoned as a matter of right. And should a treaty so treat it, it thenceforth, to the extent of the treaty, would become an international right and not merely an act of national policy.

LEGIONNAIRES STILL WRITING COMMENDATORY LETTERS.

Mayor Curley continues to receive enthusiastic letters praising Boston's entertainment of the Legion. Some of them follow.

Mayor Curley, on October 17, received the following communication from Mr. Frank C. Webb, Tax Collector of Okaloosa County, Crestview, Fla.:

MY DEAR MR. MAYOR,—I have just returned from a most delightful five-day visit to your wonderful city with the Florida delegation of the American Legion.

I just want to take this means of thanking you for the City of Boston for the wonderful hospitality exhibited during our stay, which will be long remembered.

I called at your office twice during the time I was there, but was either too early or too late to see you.

Assuring you that I will look forward to another visit to Boston at the earliest possible time, I am,

Yours very truly,
FRANK C. WEBB.

Mayor Curley, on October 21, received the following communication from J. M. Saunders, chairman, the American Legion, Cuyahoga County Council, Cleveland, Ohio:

Permit me to thank you for your assistance in securing for us here photographs of the sign erected on the Governor Square Subway Extension, which referred to the employment of veterans.

I have received from Commissioner Thomas F. Sullivan photographs of the sign as well as a letter of explanation. This information will be of considerable importance to us here in Cleveland in our efforts to secure employment of the several thousand veterans out of work. Boston is to be congratulated for its progressive step in this direction.

Permit me at this time to tell you how much we enjoyed the splendid hospitality of Boston during the recent convention of the Legion. Your splendid address to the convention and that of Governor Allen made us glad we went.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,
J. M. SAUNDERS,
Chairman.

Mayor Curley, on October 20, received the following communication from Miss Anna M. Manion of Waltham, Mass., Department President of the American Legion Auxiliary in Massachusetts:

On the eve of my retirement as Department President, I want to take this opportunity to thank you for the many splendid things you have done for our organization during the past year and especially for the kindnesses you showed our visitors during the National Convention.

It was nice of you to come to the tea given in honor of Mrs. Macrae and the national officers. We all appreciated it and I know the national officers did.

Mayor Curley, on October 20, received the following communication from Robert G. Brand, Council Commander, Wayne County Council, the American Legion, Detroit, Mich.:

On behalf of the Legionnaires of Wayne County and Detroit, I wish to thank you for the splendid reception accorded us during our stay in your wonderful city. This convention, without a doubt, was the finest in the history of our organization and the hospitality of Boston was one of the finest things we have ever witnessed. Our comrades in Detroit are very high in their praise of the courtesies extended to us.

We hope that we may, next year, be able to do as well in entertaining the convention as you have done.

Again thanking you, we remain.

Mayor Curley, on October 20, received the following letter from Major O. L. Bodenhamer, Past National Commander of the American Legion:

The consensus of opinion is to the effect that the Boston Convention of the American Legion stands out as the greatest and most constructive in the history of the organization. You made a definite contribution to the success of the American Legion this year. You have been our friend upon every occasion. For your friendship as well as for your contribution, I again express personal and official gratitude. You will never know the affection and the high regard with which you are held by the members of the American Legion with whom you have been associated during the year 1930. With warm personal regards and with the best of good wishes, I am.

Mayor Curley, on October 20, received the following communication from Brigadier Frederick P. Osmond, Divisional Officer of the Salvation Army, 8 East Brookline street, Boston:

I want to extend to you the hearty thanks of the Salvation Army for courtesies extended in connection with the granting us permission to pitch a tent on the Common for the distribution of coffee and doughnuts during the recent American Legion Convention.

The location you selected for us was admirably suited for our work, and enabled us to render efficient service not only to the war veterans, but to the Legionnaires in general.

Appreciating all favors granted, I am,

Sincerely yours,
FREDERICK P. OSMOND,
Brigadier,
Divisional Officer.

Mayor Curley, on October 20, received the following communication from Col. Carroll J. Swan, president, 1930 National Convention Corporation, the American Legion, 602 Statler Building, Boston:

Now that the 1930 National Convention of the American Legion is history I want you to know that words are entirely inadequate to express the wholehearted and sincere appreciation of this corporation for your splendid cooperation, assistance and personal service, as well as that of the officials and personnel of your several departments, for the city's splendid part in carrying out what is admitted by those most qualified to know as not only the greatest convention of the American Legion but the greatest gathering of its kind in history.

I hope that some time we may find a few spare moments when we may sit down together and read over the hundreds of splendid letters of commendation from not only leaders of the American Legion, but persons of recognized standing and repute from all over the world whom we were privileged to have as our guests during that ever memorable week.

As Mayor of the City of Boston you should and must be proud of the excellent manner in which your municipal organization met the greatest situation which it has yet been called upon to handle and which proved that Boston still, as host and servant, is the leader of the nation.

Mayor Curley, on October 20, received the following communication from Mr. Patrick J. Connolly, president, Dorchester Board of Trade:

The members of the Dorchester Board of Trade are vitally interested in your program to relieve business depression and the consequent unemployment situation.

At a meeting of the directors of our association held on October 16, 1930, a special committee was appointed to make a survey of the situation in this district, calling together civic and industrial leaders, in order to devise ways and means of overcoming this tense period.

The services of our entire organization are at your disposal, to assist you in your splendid efforts to stimulate business and improve conditions. Any suggestions or ideas are welcome.

Mayor Curley, on October 11, received the following communication from Lieut.-Col. H. E. Lavigne, M. P., Mayor of the City of Quebec:

Hon. Charles S. Sullivan, Justice of the Municipal Court of the City of Boston, has presented to me your kind letter of September 29 and the key made from the wood of the historic elm which stood for 200 years at Lexington near the spot where the first battle of the American Revolution took place.

Let me express to you my sincere appreciation of this valuable souvenir of one of the greatest historic events of the birth of the American Republic. Following my visit to Boston and the privilege that I had of witnessing the memorable celebration of the third centenary of your city, I will keep it as a very happy remembrance of my visit and the kind courtesy that was shown to us while in Boston.

With the best greetings of the City of Quebec and the kind regards of Mrs. Lavigne and myself.

MAYOR CURLEY CALLS CONFERENCE TO UNITE FORCES TO BATTLE FREIGHT DIFFERENTIALS.

His Honor the Mayor, on October 17, called a conference of prominent railroad and traffic men at the Parker House to discuss the port differential situation. The case of the City of Boston against the port of New York and railroads serving it, now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be heard in Boston on December 1, at the Chamber of Commerce Building, and the Mayor is desirous of discussing the situation with all parties who may be interested. The city, which is joined with the Boston Port Authority in this case, contends that the present railroad rates to the port of New York are discriminatory and unfair to the port of Boston because the rates of the railroads serving the port of New York include the cost and expense of lighterage, car heatage and trucking service at the port of New York and these roads refuse to perform and refrain from performing these accessorial services at the port of Boston, refuse to establish lower rates for the lesser service performed by them at Boston. This attitude on the part of the railroads serving New York results in a preference and advantage to the port of New York and has resulted in diverting export traffic to the port of New York that might come to the port of Boston.

At the conference were present:

Edgar J. Rich, attorney of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.
 P. J. Dowd, traffic manager of the Associated Industries.
 Francis Dowd, assistant traffic manager of the Associated Industries.
 Gerrit Fort, president of Raymond & Whitcomb.
 William P. Libby, traffic manager, Plymouth Cordage Company.
 George L. Graham, traffic manager, American Woolen Company.
 A. B. Ferguson, traffic manager, Chamber of Commerce, New Bedford.
 William Cole, solicitor, Boston & Maine Legal Department.
 Elmer E. Elwell, of Stone & Downer, 148 State street, Boston.
 Hon. Mark Potter, associate counsel for Boston & Maine in differential cases.
 Hon. Johnston B. Campbell, associate counsel of the City of Boston and Boston Port Authority in differential cases.
 Louis E. Kirstein, chairman, Boston Port Authority.
 Richard Parkhurst, secretary, Boston Port Authority.
 Frank S. Davis, manager, Maritime Division of Boston Chamber of Commerce and member of the Boston Port Authority.
 Charles E. Ware, Jr., member of Boston Port Authority.
 Philip Stockton, president, First National Bank of Boston.
 Samuel Silverman, Corporation Counsel of City of Boston.
 Edward French, president, Boston & Maine Railroad.
 Thomas Nelson Perkins, chairman of Board of Boston & Maine Railroad.
 Arthur P. Russell, vice president, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.
 Thomas A. Mullen, director of Publicity Bureau of City of Boston.
 John T. Scully, director of Industrial Bureau of City of Boston.

The conference stressed the necessity for a united front in the coming case and the necessity for full cooperation with the City of Boston and the Boston Port Authority by all the commercial and business interests of the city and state.

As a result of the conference all the parties present promised their fullest cooperation and assistance in helping the case to be brought to a successful conclusion. The various aspects of the situation were fully discussed and the little differences of opinion that existed were eradicated and it now appears that all parties will join in pushing the case to the utmost.

Mayor Curley feels that the conference will result in a unification of all the forces of the city and the state and that the efforts of the city and the Port Authority will be crowned with success, which will result in reviving the port and bringing more business to the city.

A further conference was held at the offices of the Boston Port Authority on Monday, October 20, at which time plans were discussed for the further prosecution of the differential case by the various commercial and business interests of the city. All those present at the conference gave the Mayor assurances of their desire to lend every possible assistance in his attempt to revive the business of the Port of Boston.

MAYOR SALTER PRAISES BOSTON FOR HOSPITALITY.

His Honor the Mayor, on October 17, received the following communication from His Worship Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, England:

MY DEAR SIR,—Now that we have settled down to work again in Old Boston, after the excitement and rush during our visit to your fine city, I want to send you a word of grateful thanks for the many kindnesses you showed to the deputation from home.

We shall never forget what you did for us, the time you placed at our disposal and the personal interest taken by yourself for our pleasure and profit. The generous gifts you have given us, the unbounded hospitality showered upon us, and the wonderful time we have had, will be remembered as long as we live.

We all feel highly honored to make the acquaintance of yourself and family. Old Boston is ringing with your praises, and if your ears don't burn it won't be the fault of the part from the old town.

A display of all the gifts you have given us has been made in the center of the town, and everybody here is amazed and delighted beyond measure at the wonderful reception we received. We had a royal welcome home and everybody wants to know all about it. A record sale of the local papers was made on account of our visit.

I should like to ask, if your proposed visit to the Old Country takes place, that you will let me know at the earliest when we may expect you to visit Old Boston. We will try in some small degree to make up for the unbounded hospitality we received at your hands.

I want to thank you also for the services rendered to us by Mr. Standish Willcox, who we all agreed was a lovable old soul, and who looked after us like a hen looking after her chicks.

I have had a lot to explain away since I came home, as you can imagine, but my explanation has been that I was simply carrying out "official duties." Whether they believe it all I don't know.

We had arranged, of course, to visit Washington, but when we had been in New York two days we were simply washed out with the heat and the strenuous time at Boston. I wired to Washington of our altered arrangements.

I think you will hear later from us all collectively, but in the meantime, may I again express my gratitude for all you have done.

With kind regards to yourself and family, with which my wife and daughters wish to join me.

Yours very sincerely,

R. SALTER,
Mayor.

Upon being informed of the death of Sherman L. Whipple, Mayor Curley today made the following statement:

The death of Sherman L. Whipple is indeed a tragedy and every individual in Massachusetts shares with the members of his immediate family the loss of a most lovable and truly great man. In his death his children suffer the loss of a kindly, genial and devoted father. The citizenship of Massachusetts suffer the loss of a leader and champion. For myself I lose that which no man can lose without the deepest of heartfelt sorrow, a sincere and faithful friend.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The following is the report of attendance at the Fifteenth Conference of Superintendents and Principals of American Schools for the Deaf held at Colorado Springs, September 29 to October 3, 1930.

To the Board of Superintendents, Boston.

Only heads of schools can be legal members of the conference. There were 39 of these present, with 23 other persons, either wives of members, or educators invited to participate. When it is considered that there are less than 18,000 deaf pupils registered in schools for the deaf in the entire country this showing is by no means meager, although it seems small beside the numbers in attendance at the great National Education Association, Department of Superintendence.

The educational interest of the conference included higher education for the deaf, health, character training, more practical vocational training, the work of the National Research Council and President Hoover's Child Welfare Survey, and the school's relations with parents.

The outstanding visiting speakers were Dr. Hubert Work who gave an illuminating address on the health of pupils and their needs, and Miss Emily Griffith who held us spellbound after the dinner, with her description of the inception and development of the great Opportunity School in Denver, of which she is the head.

The conference was unanimous in its demand for higher education for the deaf, provided that education could be of a vocational type. It was agreed that to the average person handicapped by deafness thorough vocational training and placement were the most desirable ends to be attained; the character of the vocational training to be determined by the mental capacity and aptitudes of the individual and the character of the region where he lived. The day schools and classes for the deaf are at some disadvantage in the matter of vocational training due to shorter hours and small plant, and by invitation I read a paper on this subject.

There was much discussion of the necessity of standardization of the curriculum throughout the country, to minimize educational loss to pupils changing schools.

The questions of the training of teachers came up for discussion, and a committee was appointed to prepare a report. I was appointed to serve on this committee.

It was interesting and gratifying to observe that the program of this conference on the interest of the deaf concerned itself with the selfsame questions and reached practically the same conclusions as do any of the conferences and conventions of educators of normal children. Modern education flows in much the same channels whether for the deaf or the hearing.

I append to this report a copy of the official program of the conference, wherein may be found the names of individual speakers.

It is with a feeling of gratitude to the School Committee for allowing me the time and in supplying financial aid that I respectfully submit this report.

MABEL E. ADAMS,

Principal, Horace Mann School for the Deaf.

POLICE DEPARTMENT ORDERS.

General Order No. 133.

The commissioner's attention has been drawn to the meritorious police work performed by Patrolman Richard T. Dale of Division 21 on September 20, 1930, at about 5.55 p. m., upon the arrest of a dangerous character on St. Germain street, who, with two confederates, were attempting to steal an automobile. One of the men had a gun which he attempted to use upon the owner of the automobile, but fortunately, the trigger jammed and probably saved some innocent person from serious injury.

Patrolman Dale displayed excellent judgment and courage in effecting this important arrest and the commissioner directs that Patrolman Richard T. Dale be, and hereby is, commended in General Orders.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

General Order No. 134.

Patrolmen John F. Tobin and Thomas W. Barry of Division 9 and Patrolmen Eldred Adair and Daniel J. Kerr of Division 11 are hereby commended in General Orders for the good judgment and efficiency shown on October 15, in the early morning, in the capture of two men armed with a revolver and with a complete set of burglar's tools in their possession. Had it not been for the timely response of these officers to a call for help coming from a woman who saw two men attempting to burglarize a store at Upham's Corner section through a skylight, these culprits perhaps would have accomplished their purpose and made their escape.

The commissioner is pleased to commend the above named men for the prompt and efficient manner in which they performed their duty.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

General Order No. 135.

In the future all civilian employees as defined in Rule 3 of the Police Rules and Regulations, Subdivision B, will be required to take the oath prescribed for police officers under Rule 6 of the Rules and Regulations.

All persons performing the duties mentioned in Rule 3, Subdivision B, shall be held to be amenable to all rules and regulations of the Police Department of the City of Boston.

The Superintendent of Police will promulgate this order.

EUGENE C. HULTMAN,
Commissioner.

AIRPORTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The number of airports in the country continues to grow steadily, and the listing compiled by the Department of Commerce showed 1,520 airports in operation on October 2 of this year. Of these, 442 were municipal airports, and 468 were privately owned and operated. The rest included army fields, naval air stations, Department of Commerce intermediate fields, marked auxiliary fields and miscellaneous others. As will be noted, the municipal airports comprise 29 per cent of the total number now in use in the country. The fact that 442 cities of various sizes have indicated their interest by investing substantial funds in the purchase of property and construction of these airports illustrates the stability of aviation today. As indicative of the volume of traffic already in evidence at municipal airports, it might be noted that in a recent representative week the Des Moines airport showed 88 airplanes arriving and 86 leaving. Oakland, California, showed 55 arriving, 52 leaving; while the Tulsa, Oklahoma, airport showed 272 arriving and 265 leaving. These figures are constantly increasing, and they show that the city airport is already being used.

PORT OF BOSTON.

Boston Harbor comprises an area of about 47 square miles (exclusive of the islands), including all the expanse of tidewater within a straight line from Point Allerton to Point Shirley and extending therefrom to the mainland. It is the best of natural harbors, near open sea, sheltered and spacious for anchorage; main ship channel 35 feet in depth at mean low water, increasing to 40 feet from President Roads to open sea; new dredging operations in charge of United States engineers are under way for increasing depth of said main channel to 40 feet; waterfront (i. e., lineal pier space) 40 miles, 6 miles fronting on 30 feet depth at low water.

Commonwealth Pier No. 5, South Boston, 1,200 feet long, 400 feet wide, accommodating five 600-foot ships at one time, 40 feet depth at mean low water on both sides, with three 2-story fireproof buildings of steel and concrete construction, containing 900,000 square feet of floor space, total cost of this enterprise to State, $4,500,000. Commonwealth Pier No. 6, South Boston (Fish Pier), buildings on same erected by lessee, Boston Fish Market Corporation, cost to State, $1,487,361. Commonwealth Pier, No. 1, East Boston, 900 feet long, costing State $764,600 for site and $426,674 for construction. New dry dock at South Boston (probably the largest in world), completed in 1919, 1,200 feet long and 120 wide, costing $3,169,651 and taken by United States Government at total cost.

Islands in Boston Harbor over 3 acres in area, 17, with total area of 965 acres; Long Island the largest, or 215.5 acres. Owned by United States, 392 acres; by City of Boston, 334 acres. Number of wharves, 143, of which eight are owned by the city.

There are 38 foreign steamship lines with regular sailings to and from Boston, ten coastwise lines and three intercoastal. In 1915 a revision of the harbor lines was made and the project undertaken whereby 600 acres of flats between Governor's Island and Jeffries Pt. will be filled in and used for extensive commercial developments under State control. About 175 acres of flats have recently been filled in and added to the land area of East Boston and 160 acres to that of South Boston.

In April, 1918, the Government decided to establish its Army Supply Base on a portion of the Commonwealth lands in South Boston. About 57.6 acres were purchased of the State, the price being $1,317,510, soon followed by the construction of two pier sheds, each 920 feet long, a wharf shed and other buildings, including one of the largest storehouses in the world, built of reinforced concrete, eight stories high, 1,638 feet long, 126 feet wide and with floor space of over 1,650,000 square feet. The total outlay for the plant was $26,000,000.

Total expenditure by State for improvement of Boston Harbor $22,575,827 from 1859 to November 30, 1927, inclusive; in the same period, there was expended additionally $951,992 on small channels; total Federal expenditure from 1790 to June 30, 1927, $13,258,846.

FLAG DAYS.

By order of the City Council it is the duty of the City Messenger to have the national colors displayed upon the public flagstaffs on the following days:

Franklin's Birthday, January 17; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Evacuation Day, March 17; Patriot's Day, April 19; Grant's Birthday, April 27; Memorial Day, May 30; Anniversary of Adoption of National Colors, June 14; Bunker Hill Day, June 17; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, September (first Monday); Anniversary of Foudning of Boston, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Armistice Day, November 11.

THE COST OF DIPHTHERIA.

Diphtheria costs New York City over $5,000,000 annually, according to Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, whose statement, given in a news release from the department, is based on the calculations of the value of the lives lost, the cost of hospital care, and the expense of caring for patients in their homes.

Last year the loss occasioned by diphtheria in New York City was as follows:

Value of 642 human lives lost.....	$4,575,000
Cost of hospital care for 2,976 cases in the Contagious Disease Hospitals.....	391,000
Cost of caring for 7,800 cases in private homes.....	273,000

As against an annual economic loss of over $5,000,000 a year it is stated that an expenditure of less than 10 per cent of this sum will suffice to wipe out diphtheria and thus save the community $4,500,000 annually.

Figures by the New York City Department of Health show that thus far this year over 25,000 children have been immunized against diphtheria, nearly 12,000 having been protected by private physicians. The growing interest on the part of parents is well shown in the steady increase in the number of children immunized, which increased from 555 in the first week of the present campaign to 4,702 during the first week in April, or almost ninefold.

MUNICIPALITY TAKES OVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AIRPORT.

Oklahoma City has voted $425,000 in bonds for the enlargement and improvement of its municipal airport. The Aviation Committee of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce has operated the airport for the past four years and was largely instrumental in putting over the bond-issue campaign. The port will in the future be operated by the city as a strictly municipal project.

When completed, the new field will comprise 360 acres and will meet all of the qualifications for an A 1A airport as set forth by the United States Department of Commerce.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS REDUCE BALTIMORE TRAFFIC TOLL.

An analysis of traffic accidents at street intersections in Baltimore indicates that the automatic traffic signal is proving very effective in reducing the number of such accidents.

There were 419 traffic accidents at all intersections covered in the report issued by the Baltimore Safety Council for the first six months of 1927, before the signals were installed. In direct contrast, only 259 such accidents were recorded for the first six months of this year, with the signals in operation.

The casualties were: one person killed and 129 injured before the installation of the signals, as compared with two killed but only 92 injured after. A reduction in the number of accidents was reported at thirty-two intersections, following the installation of the signals, while seventeen other intersections have shown little or no change as yet, and ten actually have experienced an increase since the use of the signals.

THROUGH TRAFFIC STREETS.

Many a city government, confronted almost unawares by the ever-increasing traffic problem, has seized upon the "through street" idea as the least expensive sop to those who clamor for something to relieve the distress. This situation is reflected in many city traffic ordinances which give absolute right-of-way to vehicles on any of the "arterial highways" included in a long list, and which fail entirely to provide for stop requirements, signs, enforcement facilities, or public education. Unfortunately, traffic regulation is not so simple. It cannot be successfully accomplished by merely designating certain through streets.

Still, through streets are useful. Their successful application depends only on an understanding of what can and what cannot be expected of them, and on a realization of where they fit into the traffic control picture. Consider a street as it develops with the increasing traffic from a minor highway to a heavily traveled main thoroughfare. Traffic control will logically develop in successive steps something like these:

1. No control at all.
2. Slow or stop signs at isolated intersections.
3. Through streets with stop signs at every intersection.
4. Occasional automatic signals introduced where there is heavy cross traffic.
5. Complete flexible progressive signal control.
6. Grade separation at important intersecting streets.
7. Elevated or depressed roadway without intersecting streets.

LIFE-GIVING PATRIOTISM IS LOCAL.

By civic patriotism is meant the feeling and the taking of a deep, unselfish, earnest, ever-wakeful, active interest in the affairs of one's own city or local community, regarding it as having an autonomy, a distinct personality, a name and interests of its own, and, if one pleases, endowed with a sense of personal honor and with all laudable ambitions for the promotion of the welfare of its people.

Where such civic virtues exist the local community will neither suffer from the dry-rot of public indifference and neglect nor become tainted with graft or corruption. Its life will be healthful, and, like the ocean, will be kept pure by its own

MAYOR CURLEY URGES PRESIDENT HOOVER TO UNDERTAKE $1,000,000,000 MISSISSIPPI VALLEY IMPROVEMENT AS MEANS OF UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF AND PERMANENT RELIEF AS WELL AS NATIONAL INVESTMENT OF UNTOLD VALUE TO INLAND INDUSTRIAL EMPIRE.

His Honor the Mayor, on October 27, forwarded copies of the following communication to Hon. Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, Hon. R. P. Lamont, Secretary of Commerce for the United States, and Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, and Hon. James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.

I am taking the liberty of forwarding to you a brief outline with reference to a subject with which you are familiar and the possibilities of which as a means of relieving industrial depression and adding to the present and future wealth of America must impress you once they are called to your attention.

The project for an expenditure of $1,000,000,000 in the Mississippi River Valley for the promotion of electrical energy at a minimum of the present cost, for the development of the cheapest character of water freight transportation, absolute flood control and an industrial development unprecedented in the history of any portion of the world has an appeal that fires the imagination.

The development of an industrial empire in the Mississippi Valley and the enlargement of the agricultural and commercial opportunities for the people now residing there, who would benefit through a project of this character, are impossible of realization through a lesser expenditure.

The matter of flood control is possible of solution through the development of a system of water basins located along the course of the Mississippi, the Missouri, the Ohio, the Red, the Arkansas, and other tributary rivers, where in time of flood, water may be stored, to be released in time of drought.

At the entrance to these water basins, hydro-electric installation would permit of the development and storage, and of the distribution of power at a fraction of a cent a kilowatt, while the deepening of the channel of the Mississippi river would permit of freight transportation at a minimum of cost as compared with the expensive rail system at present in vogue, which requires both the delay of from two to three handlings and is responsible for the disappearance of profits that should accrue to the agriculturists located in this region.

It should be possible, in consequence of flood control and the deepening of the channel, to accelerate the flow of the Mississippi river to at least seven miles an hour and to provide direct contact by way of the Mississippi, the Gulf and the Panama Canal, with the Orient, for cotton, cereals, minerals, coal and other products developed in the Mississippi Valley area, and it would expedite and facilitate the penetration of the industrial products of American labor into the Latin-American markets, adjacent to us, in which European competitors are striving to regain their pre-war advantage.

It is generally accepted that the struggle for existence in Europe marks an end for at least a quarter of a century for American goods for export. Consequently, the future commercially of America would appear to lie in trade between the people of North America and South America, and the Orient, and through the use of cheap water transportation it would be possible for America even to offset the advantages of cheaper labor costs which today make possible the invasion of the markets of the world by European nations.

The investment by the Federal Government of one billion dollars for the promotion of navigation, of commerce, of flood control and the development of hydro-electric energy would make this territory so inviting to capable business interests in America and in the world that no major concern could afford to be without a manufacturing plant located in this vicinity because of the tremendous saving possible through a lower cost for electrical energy and a minimum charge for transportation of goods by water.

The proposition to stagger any expenditure that may be made in this region over a period of years is indefensible for the reason that every student of economics is in agreement that the mere announcement that the Government proposes a major expenditure of this character would inspire confidence and faith so necessary at this time.

In the event that the Government expended one billion dollars upon this Mississippi river project it is not unreasonable to assume that within a period of five years an amount equally as great would be expended by these business concerns now located throughout the world. The expenditure of one billion dollars by the Federal Government would not only provide relief for those in the Mississippi river area whose services would be required in connection with the development work, but to the basic industries of the United States it would prove invaluable at the present time.

Vast quantities of steel and iron, of cement and lumber, would be necessary, in addition to electrical equipment, and all these requirements would provide employment to many thousands of persons throughout America employed in these basic industries and in the major electrical plants such as the Westinghouse, General Electric Company and similar establishments.

The railroads, which during the past five years have reduced the number of their employees by nearly one million, and the steamship lines would undoubtedly be required to adopt a twenty-four hour schedule in order to transport the necessary materials to the region where the contemplated work is to be conducted.

The War Department unquestionably has given considerable study at some time to a similar project and it is just possible that they may have in their files plans for the development that could be utilized at once in connection with a project of this larger scope.

MAYOR CURLEY TELLS OF COMPLETE AND EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR AIRPORT IMPROVEMENTS IN EAST BOSTON—SPEAKS OVER RADIO BEFORE THE JORDAN-TRAVELER JUNIOR AVIATION LEAGUE.

Mayor Curley, during the Jordan-Traveler Junior Aviation League broadcast on Tuesday night over station WBZ, told, for the first time, the complete details concerning his recent conference with President Hoover on the proposed extension of the Boston Airport to include Governor's Island.

Mayor Curley outlined the complete plans for this new project to the Jordan-Traveler Junior Aviation League and pictured in glowing terms the possibilities of making Boston one of the greatest aviation centers and described the part he expected the Junior Aviation League to play in the future of this project.

His speech not only drew the attention of the Jordan-Traveler Aviation League members but of the older folks as well and proved to be the sensation of the early evening broadcasts. Even before he had concluded his talk many telegrams and telephone calls were received at station WBZ lauding Mayor Curley for his great interest in aviation.

Most of them were from Jordan-Traveler League cadets and because of these messages of commendation Mayor Curley promised the league officials that he would pay a personal visit in the near future to one of the regular Saturday meetings for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with the cadets.

Mayor Curley's speech in its entirety is as follows:

The airplane industry is probably now at the stage that the automobile was twenty years ago. Then the automobile was a fair-weather luxury. Today it is a necessity in nearly every family. Twenty years ago the automobile was little operated at night, in wet weather and in the winter. The past twenty years have seen one of the most phenomenal developments in the production and use of automobiles and in the building of the necessary roads and highways on which they must operate.

The status of the airplane today is much similar to that of the automobile twenty years ago. It cannot be operated safely under certain weather conditions. Night flying is just beginning to be engaged in. The airplane, similarly to the automobile of twenty years ago, is thought of either as a novelty, as a thrill producer, or as a rich man's luxury in so far as it relates to transportation between distant points.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT.

In the past twenty years much has been learned about mass production, much has been learned about the science of machinery, engines and the manufacture of more efficient construction, materials and tools. All this knowledge will be applied with the few changes to the development of the airplane and air transportation; so that we may expect that the development of the airplane and of air transportation will not take twenty years as has the development of the automobile, but we may expect rather, that the development of the airplane industry to a state comparable to that of the automobile of today, will take place in the space of time not exceeding five to ten years.

The automobile industry did not gain great impetus until good roads were built and so the airplane industry can not help but be retarded unless good airports of sufficient size are brought into existence.

TO DEVELOP AIRPORTS.

The City of Boston is the principal railroad terminal for the northeastern section of the United States. It is a focal point of the network of roads and highways extending throughout New England to every part of the country. It has the finest harbor and docking facilities in the world. It is the major port to European countries, and so it is necessary to look forward, that it may be made one of the world's greatest centers of air transportation.

It is with the foregoing in mind that I propose to develop under my present administration an airport in East Boston that will be second to none in the world. Such a development will not only be of lasting value to the present generation, but it will afford employment to the many thousands of people of Boston who are almost destitute and will provide for you, the youth of today and the citizens of tomorrow, the necessary facilities to make aviation practicable, safe and convenient.

The Boston Airport was one of the first in the country to be developed as such and one of the first to be developed as a commercial activity as distinguished from the previous military flying fields. Under its previous control it was allowed, unfortunately, to lie dormant and without improvement for years. In 1924, during my previous administration, I made great personal efforts to improve it, and made possible the landing at Boston on September 6, 1924, of the first flight around the world by the United States army flyers. A tablet to commemorate this historic flight will soon be put in place at the Boston Airport.

Boston is indeed fortunate in having as a site for its airport one which is admirably suited to her needs, and one, the location of which, relative to the city, is without parallel in the world. Most airports are located some ten miles from the center of the city. The Boston Airport is just two miles from City Hall, is connected thereto by a rapid transit tunnel, by ferry service, and with the completion of the East Boston Tunnel, it will be less than five minutes from the heart of the city. It is surrounded on practically all sides by water, making it easy of access for airplanes, making it safe for take-offs and landings, and making it free from annoyance to the surrounding population. The development which is now going forward will greatly increase all these factors. The extension of the airport toward Governor's Island and the leveling and grading of Governor's Island, will, without question, make it the best and largest airport in the world.

This development will leave the present site free for transport operation to and from other cities, will provide next, an adjacent area which may be used for local flying, for army maneuvers, for teaching the youth of tomorrow how to fly; and the site now occupied by Governor's Island will afford an all important area for the mooring and housing of dirigibles and other lighter-than-air craft.

ADAPTED TO SEAPLANES.

The Boston Airport, in addition to being so well suited for airplanes, is also admirably suited, owing to its proximity to the harbor, for the operation of seaplanes. It is easy to visualize that future transatlantic air transportation will be by means of huge seaplanes and dirigibles. It may be also seen how easily it will be for such aircraft from abroad to land at the Boston Airport and transfer their passengers to transcontinental airplanes.

Recognition of Boston's adaptability along these lines has been recognized by such manufacturers as the Ford Motor Company, who several times have flown their huge trimotor planes to the Boston Airport and have then directly loaded them on to steamships in the adjacent harbor for shipment.

WILL EXPEND MILLIONS.

If we wish our city to prosper we must not shut ourselves off from the rest of the world and we have therefore provided Boston with roads, docks and railroad lines. If we wish her to be connected with the rest of the world by this future method of transportation, the airplane, we must have an adequate airport. This alone is sufficient justification for the expenditure by the city at the airport of many millions of dollars.

There are, however, many other benefits which will accrue to the city from the development from a mud hole to one of the finest airports in the country. Millions of dollars worth of buildings and taxable property have been brought to our city by private capital. Directly in the past year there has been spent out of the city funds approximately $560,000—a very small sum when compared with the amounts required for similar developments by other major municipalities.

MANY EMPLOYED.

During the past year at the airport there have been employed an average of 200 persons, which at an average salary of $2,000 a year means that $400,000 has been returned to the wage earners of Boston, resulting from expenditures of $500,000. In addition there has been added to the assessors' list well over a million dollars in taxable property, the citizens of Greater Boston have been provided with safe, fast, economical transportation to distant places by the several air lines operating from Boston. The entire character and physical aspect of the East Boston section has been improved and there will, without question, result therefrom a tremendous increase in property values to East Boston land-owners.

In conclusion the Boston Airport has been, through the efforts of the Park Department, beautifully landscaped and made one of the most attractive, as well as one of the best from an operating point of view, of any airport in the country.

MAYOR SENDS PLANS OF GOVERNOR'S ISLAND TO WAR DEPARTMENT.

His Honor the Mayor, on October 27, forwarded the following communication to Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.:

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY,—I beg to forward herewith plan showing the meets and bounds of Governor's Island, located in Boston Harbor, which property the City of Boston desires to utilize in connection with the development and extension of the Boston Airport.

The City of Boston is desirous of acquiring this land by lease, license or such method as may be agreeable to the War Department for a nominal payment of $1 a year, or upon such terms as the War Department may deem proper.

The City of Boston, through its Board of Park Commissioners, in conjunction with the Commonwealth and private enterprises, has expended to the present time for development and improvements of the Boston Airport approximately five millions of dollars.

A contract for dredging, involving an expenditure of $140,000, will be awarded this week and provision has been made to expend $1,250,000 next year for extension of airport, provided that the transfer of the use of Governor's Island is made to the City of Boston.

The Public Works Department of the City of Boston has made provision for an additional expenditure of $500,000 for the construction of a boulevard extending from a proposed tunnel from the heart of the city to Porter street, East Boston, representing a further expenditure of $16,000,000, a contract for which will be advertised and awarded early in December.

This huge expenditure by a single municipality with a population of less than 800,000 should be a valued contributing factor in the reduction of unemployment, and providing a necessary measure of relief.

I assume that the customary proviso will be inserted by the War Department, namely, that in the event of the property being required at any time by the Federal Government for defense purposes that the title or lease will permit the reversion to the Government of the Island, and to this reversion the City of Boston is agreeable.

Awaiting speedy, and I trust, favorable action in conformity with the recommendation of the President of the United States, Hon. Herbert Hoover, I beg to remain,

Respectfully,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

ADDITIONS TO CONTRACT.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Thomas O'Connor & Co., Limited, has been ordered to make the following addition to the contract for erecting and completing a Fire Department building at Cambridge and Bulfinch streets. Addition No. VII: A. Changing plumbing fixtures from nickel plate to chromium plate, $435; B. Changing glazing in the alarm room from factrolite glass to Libby Owen, 3-16, 39 ounce, flat drawn sheet glass in the lower lights of case-ment windows and plate glass in both doors, $62; C. Reconditioning and rebuilding of the old foundation wall that crosses the new basement floor, including necessary waterproofing and new brick work, $1,575; D. Shutters and brickwork for tower openings with solid bronze hardware, $1,905; E. Door for signal alarm room and two desks to match present finish, $171, net addition, $4,148. Original contract, $270,000; addition No. 1 (January 10, 1930), $4,088.60; amendment (February 7, 1930), $4,083.75; addition No. II (February 28, 1930), $18,520; addition No. III (March 8, 1930), $2,370; addition No. IV (June 18, 1930), $2,217; addition No. V (August 6, 1930), $7,390.68; addition No. VI (August 23, 1930), $9,657; total contract with additions, deductions and amendments, $322,475.03.

Although the foregoing is in addition to the work contemplated in the original contract it is incidental thereto.

EXPLANATIONS.

A. Changing of plumbing fixtures from nickel plate to chromium plate is being done because chromium plate is more lasting and is the most modern method of treating plumbing fixtures. It will mean a saving eventually because of its durable quality and it will be in keeping with the type of building which is being erected.

B. The contractor installed opaque glass in the alarm room as the contract stated that all interior glazing would be opaque glass, but it is very important that the alarm room be glazed with clear glass in order that the man on patrol will have a clear vision of the entire main floor.

C. The reconditioning of the basement wall is necessary in order to leave the basement in a finished condition, as in its present state the basement will be damp and this will interfere with the proper care of fire hose which is stored there. The plans call for this wall to remain on account of the great expense involved to remove the same.

D. The original design of the building called for the installation of shutters on the drill tower, but they were omitted when the plans were revised in order to have the building erected within the appropriation. In view of the fact that we have money available to place the shutters in the tower as was originally desired this work should be done. These shutters will keep snow and rain from the interior of the tower and will protect the stairway. It will also make it safer for men drilling in the tower in winter weather.

E. The desks in the signal alarm room have to be built in and around the signal board and of such a character that they could not have been designed prior to the installation of the board. The door is required in order to protect the complicated wiring in the interior of the sounding board.

PROCLAMATION TO THE PEOPLE OF BOSTON.

On October 27 the Mayor issued the following proclamation:

Whereas, Monday, October the twenty-seventh, by commendable custom and with the approval of the President, has been designated as Navy Day as well as marking the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt; and

Whereas, A fitting observance will tend to promote a better understanding of our naval service, its glorious history and traditions, and its necessity to the Nation's commercial welfare; and
